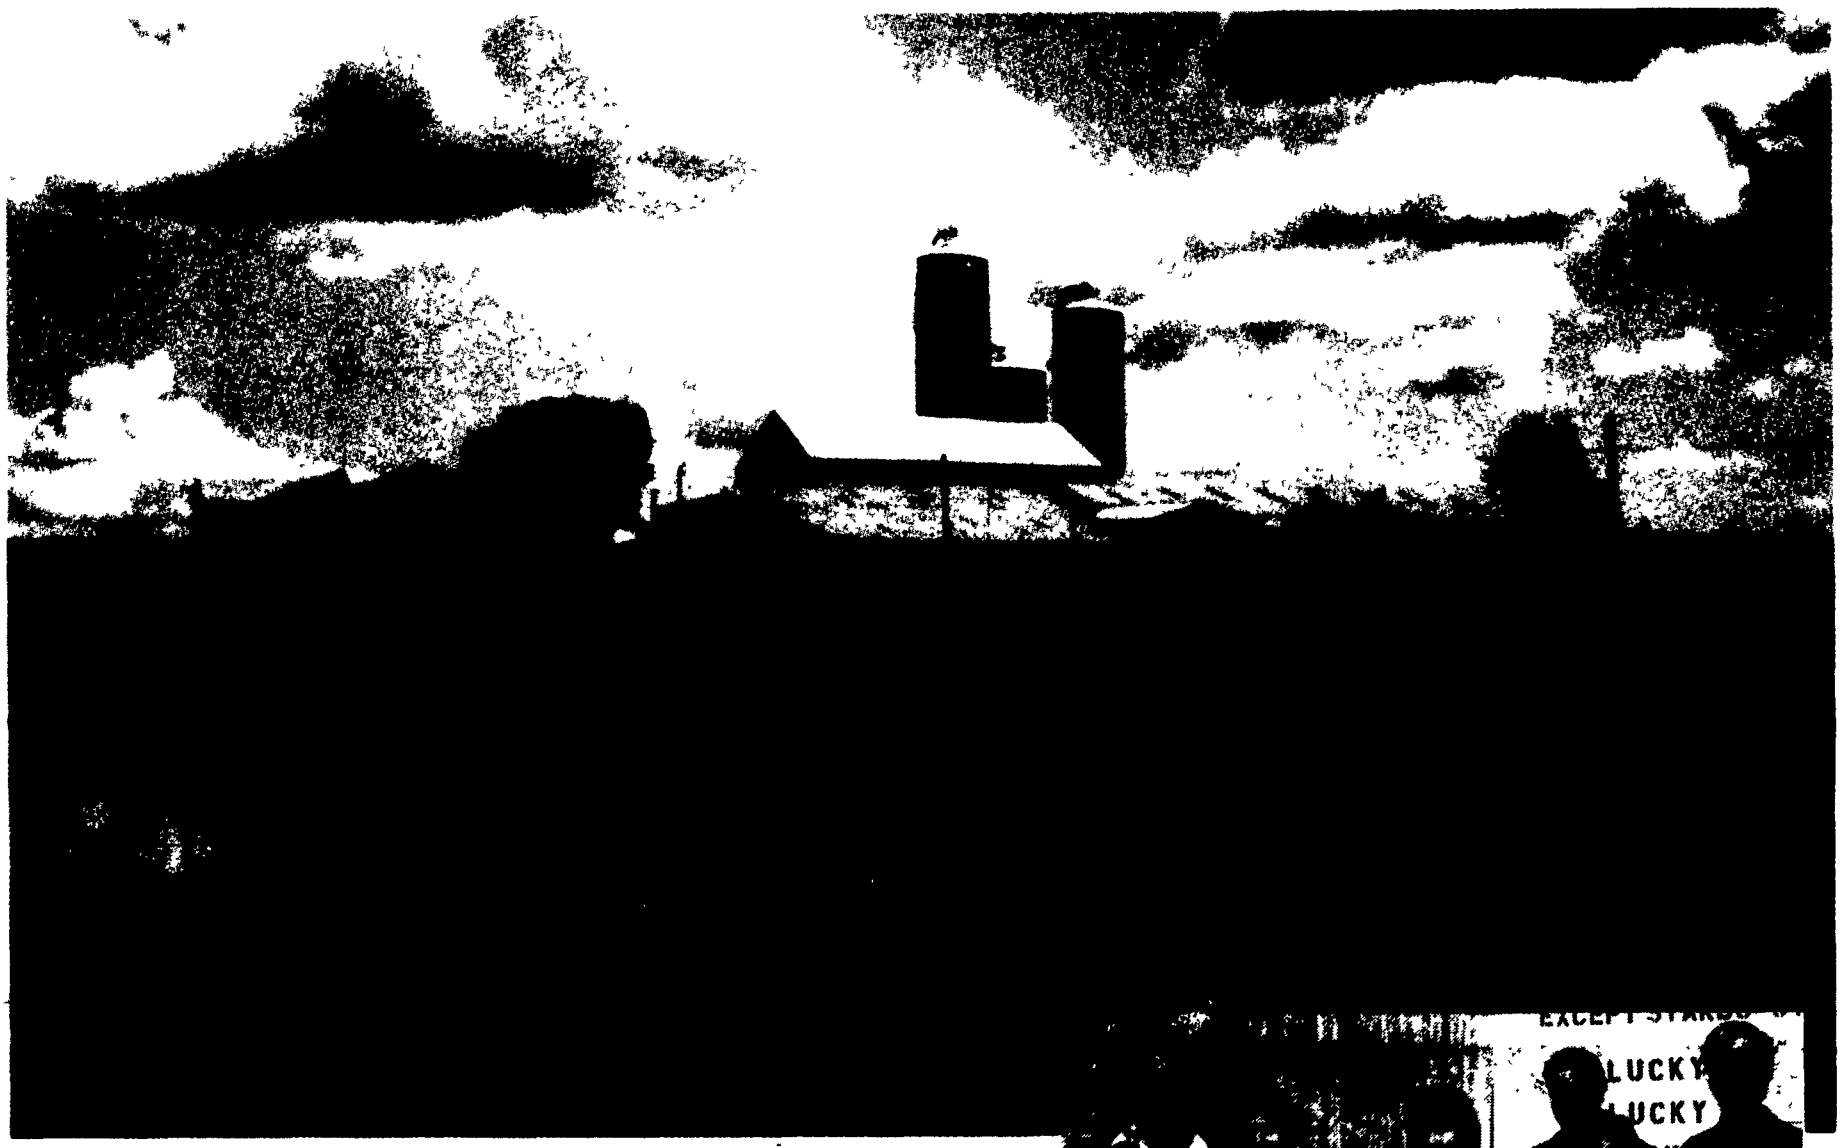
VOL. 38 No. 13 | Five Sections | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, February 6, 1993 | 60¢ Per Copy | $19.00 Per Year



This scenic home farm of the Raymond Butters family located off Route 414 between Liberty and Morris will be open to visitors on the Tioga County Farm-City Day this year. The first such event was held last year and 2,000 people responded to the countywide invitation for city people to visit the farm. In the photo at right, the Butters family was introduced at the recent Farm-City banquet. They are from left, Raymond and Peggy Butters; Joyce Krisanda and David Butters; and Pat and Terry Butters. In front, Pat and Terry's children, Erick and Jillian.

MIDDLEBURY CENTER (Tioga Co.) — It was an evening of recognition and thanks. It was also an evening of introductions. The Tioga County Farm-City Day Appreciation Banquet drew over 100 people who gathered to congratulate Glenside Dairy owners Dennis and Arletta Owlett and son and daughter-in-law Larena Owlett, and all who helped the 1992 Farm-City become a success.

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — An impressive lineup of speakers highlighted the Pennsylvania Crop Management Association's (PCMA) ninth annual meeting held recently here at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

PCMA directors, members, and employees converged to assess accomplishments, to set crop management goals, and to hear, along with their guests, industry specialists who updated information in their area of expertise.

All attending the conference had one goal in mind — to successfully manage crops and the environment. PCMA President John Ligo opened the conference.

Building upon two goals set at last year's meeting — to get infor-

Price, Quality Factors Hurt Beef Consumption, Says Meat Specialist

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Why won't consumers buy beef?

Smith, who holds the prestigious Monfort Endowed Chair in Meat Science from the university, presented his findings on the recently completed National Cattlemen's Association Audit at the Cattle Feeder's Day on Tuesday at the Farm and Home Center.

And those findings bring into question a lot of the ways and means that cattle producers bring their product from the feedlot to the packers. Ultimately, cattle producers must have a say in all the stages of production in order to keep producers buying, Smith told LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Hershey Bare is a well-known name in this southern Pennsylvania county.

It's not the name of an ice hockey team, but of a dairyman who gets his share of comments about the similarity in sounds between names — it is Hershey Bare's farm, not the Hershey Bears' farm.

The 50ish, tow-headed dairyman is partly known for his frequent smile, community involvement and generousity.

He is also well known because he has allowed and encouraged hundreds and hundreds, if not thousands, of people to tour his dairy farm so they can understand milk production and view a family farm.

His name is known to many children and past children who attended city schools, retired people living in homes, the county's businessmen, the extension service, 4-H, Farm-City program workers, editors and staff of daily newspapers in the county, etc.

His popularity was no less evi-

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer Market

Wednesday, February 3, 1993

Movement of ready-to-cook whole broiler/fryers was light to fair and generally disappointing. Offerings were fully adequate to ample and extra product was difficult to place. Weights varied in a full range, but were mostly desirable to light. Processing schedules were heavy and operations were planned for the weekend. Less than trucklot asking prices wY.*9 l9at 49 to 60 cents. Trade sentiment was steady at best. All parts were at least adequate. Breast items were slow to clear at several plants. Leg items were in better balance; however, movement was below expectations.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, February 3, 1993

Trucklot buying interest was light but the trade expects a fairly good weekend and some improvement following the past two bitter cold days. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were at least adequate and some buyer resistance was noted at current prices. The trade sentiment was barely steady to weak. Line run breasts were available at several locations and offered to very cautious buyers. Trading was reported at lower prices and the undertone was weak. Leg quarters were adequate for the light to fair demand and the trade sentiment was fully steady. Wings continued to improve but trading was at steady prices.

Viking Ship® Calcium Nitrate

The fertilizer to start with ...the fertilizer to stay with

GROWTH

Nitrate nitrogen is the fast-acting, controllable N-source for fruit trees. Unlike ammonium nitrogen (NH_4), nitrate-N affords optimum nutrition timing for rapid growth and early production. Calcium Nitrate supplies 14.5% nitrate nitrogen.

QUALITY

Calcium availability, at adequate levels, is essential to early and sustained production of high-quality tree fruit. Young trees, as well as mature, producing orchards never outgrow their need for calcium.

Specifically, root vigor, reduced fruit disorders, optimum color and size and storage quality of fruit are directly related to adequate calcium levels. With Calcium Nitrate as your orchard fertilizer, trees and soil receive 19% water-soluble calcium.

HYDRO AGRI

YIELD

Heavy production of high-quality tree fruit has been achieved—for more than 40 years—by growers using Viking Ship Calcium Nitrate fertilizer.

Use Calcium Nitrate in your fertilizer program. You will be pleased by the predictable response—the growth, quality and yield improvement possible with Calcium Nitrate's combination of essential orchard nutrients. For the life of your trees...Calcium Nitrate...the fertilizer to start with, the fertilizer to stay with!

As with any fertilizer application, consult your extension office or other advisory service for recommended practice that meets local crop and soil conditions.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

FEBRUARY 8-14, 1993

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA FOUNDED, 1910.

ONE GOOD TURN

The story of Scouting in America actually starts in England in 1909, when an anonymous British Boy Scout did a Good Turn for an American. William D. Boyce was lost in a dense fog in London when the boy offered assistance, guided Mr Boyce to his destination, and then refused a tip for his efforts, explaining that he was a Scout. On finishing his errand, Boyce asked the boy to take him to the British Scouting office, where he met Lord Robert Baden-Powell, the founder of Scouting. Boyce was impressed by what he learned in England and resolved to bring Scouting home to America On February 8, 1910, Boyce and three other men founded the Boy Scouts of America, but it really all started with one boy doing one Good Turn.

Be Prepared — The Boy Scout motto

OPINION

Let's Give Urban Pollution Some Attention

We have heard a lot of discussion about nutrient management during the past four years. Now everything is coming to a head in the form of mandatory state regulations in Pennsylvania. This week the newest version of the State House of Representatives' bill on nutrient management, with amendments a little more protective of farmers, passed with very little opposition. Apparently the Senate will also agree, and Gov. Casey will sign the legislation when it gets to his desk.

We have a number of concerns about the public impressions this process has given. From all the rhetoric, you would think, if you didn't know better, that all farmers ignore environmentally sound practices for the sake of the almighty dollar. Two major points seem to be overlooked.

First, more and more evidence shows that septic systems, suburban run off, factory and air pollution, and municipal waste are major non-point excess nitrogen sources in the "Bay." Why would anyone interested in this subject, especially environmentalists, not insist that these sources also be identified and forced into compliance with sound "save the Bay" procedures?

Secondly, no one seems to grasp the information that farmers already have made magnificent progress toward cleaning up their pollution in the environment. John Schwartz, Lancaster County agricultural agent, told us this week that Lancaster farmers already have written more than 1,600 nutrient management plans and have them in place. This is more than half of the bona fide farms in Lancaster County. We also know farmers in other agricultural areas of the state have also written plans.

For these excellent farmers who are true environmentalists, and others who practice good farm management methods, the new expected state legislation will have very little impact on their operations. It's simply the direction the ag community has already gone.

From media attention to this issue, the uninitiated may believe agriculture is the only culprit in this environmental issue. But agriculture already has taken seriously its part in the problem. Let's make sure the urban side of the problem (which is also addressed in the new nutrient management bill expected to become law) receives the same attention and enforcement of regulations as the urban community wants to impose on farmers.

NOW IS THE TIME

By John Schwartz
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Prepare Heifers For Calving

As calving season arrives, Extension Livestock Agent Chester Hughes reminds us it is important to prevent calving problems, especially with first calf heifers.

A heifer needs to reach 85 to 90 percent of her mature body weight before delivering her calf. That may require her to gain one to one and quarter pounds per day.

To achieve this gain, the type of ration you choose is important. Avoid high protein rations such as alfalfa hay with 20 percent protein. High protein feeds may cause more calving problems because they increase the calf birth weight and overcondition the heifer. A 12 percent growing ration is best because it has enough energy for added gain without getting heifers too fat.

During calving season, first calf heifers must be given extra attention because they are structurally smaller than mature cows.

Separate heifers from the herd for closer management and observation before calving. Provide shelter to protect newborns from extremely low temperatures. Be prepared to give calves colostrum if they do not nurse within six hours.

Finally, keep birth weight and calving ease records to identify sires and dams responsible for calving problems. Cull those females with a history of calving problems and avoid selecting replacement heifers from those dams.

To Stay Competitive

Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, says dairying is a very competitive business. Those who are the most efficient will survive.

To increase your competitive edge, Shirk recommends you focus on:

- Getting cows to milk well.
- Keeping the herd healthy so they may conceive well and stay in the herd longer.
- Breeding and selecting for genetic improvement.
- Reducing replacement costs and overhead costs.
- Reducing operating expenses.
- Producing high quality forage.

When land, labor, and capital resources are scarce, use them where they have the greatest and quickest return — on efficient, high producing cows. Then you must keep them healthy, have them bred, and keep them in the herd longer.

To help cut costs, consider hiring custom operators, purchasing the grains you need, and contracting heifer raising in order to reduce the equipment, facilities, and labor to grow crops and raise replacements.

As price structures change (cost of equipment, labor, interest rates, etc.) you need to re-examine the economics of the various segments of your operation and make the necessary adjustments.

Do not get caught in the trap of never making any changes. That is the sure way to lose your competitive edge.

To Be Aware Of Pesticide Law

Starting January 1 this year, farmers applying pesticides are required under the provisions of the 1990 Farm Bill to keep records for restricted use pesticides they apply.

The new rules will have little impact on Pennsylvania farmers, since Pennsylvania Law already requires that pesticide application records be kept.

Starting in 1993, private applicators will be required under the farm bill to keep the following records when applying restricted use pesticides: the month, day and year of application, the brand or product name used, the formulation used, the EPA registration number, the total amount used, the rate of application, the address and location of where it was applied, the size of area treated, the targeted pest, the crop or commodity the pesticide was applied to, and the name, address, and certification number of the applicator or applicator's supervisor.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

NOT AN ELECTIVE
February 7, 1993

Background Scripture:
Luke 24: 13-53
Devotional Reading:
Acts 1:1-18

As in school, we find in life that there are some things which are generally 'required', while others are 'elective'. This is also true in the life of the church: some activities are essential to Christian discipleship, while others are valuable, but not essential. When people join a local congregation, we usually indicate that faithful worship attendance and stewardship of one's self and substance are required of all members. For many people that may be as far as it goes.

The New Testament indicates that it is therefore easier to be a church member than it is a disciple or follower of Jesus, for the requirements of discipleship are considerably higher than the support of a local congregation. For one thing, witness was not optional in the early church. If you were a Christian you were a witness, nothing less. Today, lots of Christians regard witnessing as an elective in the life of the church.

WHAT'S A WITNESS?

Maybe some of the problem is that we are unsure about what it means to be a witness. Witness is an Old English word that originally meant 'knowledge' or 'wisdom'. Later, 'witness' came to mean 'knowledge gained by observation and first hand experience' and eventually it was expanded to mean 'observed knowledge given in testimony'. So a witness is a someone who both personally experiences something and testifies in some way as to what has been personally experienced.

What intimidates a lot of Christians is the testifying part. We think that it will be difficult to verbalize our Christian faith. But I suspect that our basic problem is not so much with testifying as it is in having something about which to tesify. Witnessing may overawe us because we are not sure we have enough faith to share with someone else.

We can point to Jesus' apostles and say, "Well, they had a pretty convincing experience of the resurrected Christ, but I've never heard a heavenly voice or seen a vision." But the experience on the Emmaus Road is suggestive for those of us who think we may not have something to share with the world.

RECOGNIZING THE CHRIST

The resurrected Jesus, says Luke, walked with two disciples on the Emmaus road. But note that "their eyes were kept from recognizing him" (24:16). It was only in the breaking of bread that they recognized his familiar manner and then they realized that for miles they had been walking with the resurrected Christ without realizing it. "Did not our hearts burn within us while he talked to us on the road...?" (24:32).

Are there not likely to be many times in our lives when Christ walks with us and we do not recognize or see him? Are there not times in our Christian experience when, looking back, we recall that there was a strange warmth or burning in our hearts in certain experiences? In reading a passage of scripture, in hearing a sermon or a prayer, in helping someone in need, or lying in a hospital bed? Perhaps the problem was not that Christ was not there, but that we failed to see him in our experience.

What we have experienced personally, that is what it is to which we are called to witness. We don't have to be theologically learned or eloquent in speech—all we are called to do is to find ways of means of telling others what we have experienced of Jesus in our lives. Jesus said, "You are witnesses of these things" (23:48). We must share what we have found it means to be followers of Jesus Christ. That is never an elective.

For me, the test of any alfalfa is how many pounds of nutrients per acre it produces.

I'm as interested as the next guy in what researchers are doing to improve the alfalfa varieties on the market today. But sometimes, I think seed companies forget that more leaves or better disease resistance by themselves don't produce more milk. The bottom line is pounds of nutrients per acre.

That's why I plant Multi-plier alfalfa from Jacques. Sure it's a multileaf and has good winter-hardiness and terrific disease resistance. But all that says to me is that Multi-plier has the potential to produce more pounds of nutrients per acre on my farm.

I look at my corn silage hybrids the same way. So I also plant a lot of 7970 from Jacques. Yes, it's big and leafy and yes, it makes a lot of grain and fits my operation. But my analysis only measures total digestible nutrients and that's what I'm looking for.

I'm open to new alfalfa varieties and silage corn hybrids, but only if they'll deliver more pounds of nutrients per acre than my Jacques' Multi-plier and 7970.

Vegetable Day In New Holland

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The Adult Farmer Program of the Eastern Lancaster County School District will conduct an all-day program for vegetable growers at the Summit Valley Elementary School on Monday, February 15.

The program will begin at 9 a.m. with coffee, donuts, and visiting exhibits. General sessions will cover topics such as vegetable insect identification and control and managing plant stress.

There will be a series of concurrent meetings going on during the day including topics on marketing, vegetable transplant productions, two bedding plant sessions, strawberries, sweet corn, pumpkins, greenhouse tomatoes, soil compaction, and potato grading.

A special session will presented for growers thinking about getting started in vegetable production. Some valuable tips will be shared. Producers may want to bring more than one member of the family in order to attend sessions going on at the same time.

Credits toward pesticide recertification will be awarded to those with private applicator licenses (3 core plus 2 category). Be sure to bring your current private applicator license with you. A special session for those needing category 21 credits for soil fumigation will be held in the afternoon.

Presenters on the program will include several Penn State specialists; Ray Samulis, a New Jersey Extension Agent; representatives from greenhouse supply firms; David Lankford, a Maryland producer; Boyd Mertz, greenhouse tomato producer; and Ed Stoner, PDA potato inspector.

The Summit Valley Elementary School is located on Eastern School Rd., one and one-half miles south of New Holland between Brimmer and Kinzer Aves. The meeting will be in the all-purpose room on the east side of the building. Car and team parking available. Lunch will be available at a nominal fee.

All area vegetable producers are invited. For more information, contact Don Robinson at the Adult Farmer Office at (717) 354-1522 or Bruce Hellerick at the county extension office at (717) 394-6851.

PDPP Shows Promotion Progress, Awards Promoters

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program held a fifth annual meeting for dairy producers, at the Atherton Hilton Hotel, in State College, on Tuesday.

The meeting focused on the theme "Meeting the Challenge" and included discussions about the challenging issues faced by promoters during the past year. Two outstanding dairy promoters were also recognized at the meeting.

Karl Kroeck, PDPP Board chairman, began the meeting by presenting his thoughts about the dairy promotion situation. He explained that the Board of Directors had worked during the past year to create effective promotions for dairy farmers.

"The bottom line is that our cooperative efforts are designed with one intention," said Kroeck. "We want to sell more dairy products to improve the economic future of our dairy farmers."

The meeting included the featured presentation by Lanny Frattare, Pittsburgh Pirate broadcaster.

Frattare thanked Pennsylvania Dairy for their support of the National League East champion Pirates. He recalled an experience that he had at the age of nine, when he spent a weekend working on his uncle's dairy farm, in upstate New York. He said that he has never worked as hard in his life and appreciates the hard work and effort of Pennsylvania dairy farmers.

"Following this experience I decided that I wanted to become a baseball announcer," Frattare said. "I feel blessed that I have been able to pursue this career with many teams, most importantly the Pirates."

Two outstanding local dairy promoters received recognition at the meeting. For three years, Pennsylvania Dairy has recognized several dairy promoters for their efforts.

Cyndy Cass, from Wattsburg, Erie County was selected as the 1992 "Promoter of the Year." Charlie Lockhart, from Smicksburg, Indiana County, was also recognized as a finalist for the award.

Cass has been an active member of the Erie County Dairy Princess and Promotion Committee for several years. She has been credited with creating several new promotions in the county as well as the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Cookbook. Lockhart was recognized for his many years of service to the Indiana County Dairy Promotion Committee.

The meeting concluded with a panel presentation examining Pennsylvania Dairy programming over the past year. The panel review included advertising programs, nutrition education activities, retail marketing, and public relations events. The panel focused on the challenges faced during the year and the Pennsylvania Dairy's response to these demands.

Following the meeting program, PDPP board members and guests toured the Hanover Brands food plant, in Centre Hall.

Cyndy Cass is "Promoter of the Year" for the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, while Charlie Lockhart is outstanding in dairy product promotion.

First N.E. Grazing Conference Offers Alternative Possibilities

Submit Now For Refund

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Refunds of amounts deducted for 1992 commercial milk marketings under the Dairy Refund Payment Program (DRPP) began in January 1993, according to Ray Brubaker, county extension director of the Lancaster County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The program is authorized by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990.

Farmers had 11.25 cents per hundredweight deducted from the price paid for all milk produced and marketed for commercial use beginning in January 1992.

"This amount was increased on May 1, 1992 by 2.4 cents per hundredweight, for a total of 13.65 cents per hundredweight, to compensate for refunds paid under the 1991 program," Brubaker said.

USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service collects the milk assessments and ASCS will issue any refunds required.

Under the DRPP, milk producers requesting a refund must establish their milk marketings for the refund year, 1992, and the immediately preceding calendar year, 1991, before the refund request is made.

"They must request refunds from our office between January and March 15, 1993," ASCS official Brubaker said.

Producers may be eligible for a refund payment under the DRPP if they can provide evidence that their 1992 milk marketings did not exceed their 1991 milk marketings.

For more information on the DRPP, producers should contact their local ASCS office.

4-H Clubs Present Two New Honors At Recognition Banquet

Troy Bollinger, 19, son of Glenn and Edna Bollinger, Ephrata, was honored as Shepherd of the Year from the club.

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — Award winners in two new categories — including a Lancaster 4-H Woolies Club Scholarship Award and the Hoss Steer of the Year honor for the highest placing county steer at the recent Farm Show — accepted their honors at the county 4-H recognition banquet Thursday night.

The Hoss Steer of the Year Award, from a fund established by Jodie Weaver and Kristin Chupp from the sale of Weaver's high-selling 1992 Farm Show steer, was presented to two members of the Lancaster 4-H Beef Club, Dale Livengood and Casey High. Both exhibited first place crossbred steers at the 1993 Farm Show.

Jeff Bollinger was presented with a new Woolies Club Scholarship Award, sponsored by the Gerald Engle family.

Troy Bollinger, 19, son of Glenn and Edna Bollinger, Ephrata, was honored as Shepherd of the Year from the club. Troy, a graduate of Ephrata H.S., works as a carpenter for Bollinger Builders. The past two years, Troy has sheared sheep in a special school, shearing 300 one year and 450 the past year. He said he is pursuing a career in carpentry.

Ryan Donough, 9, son of Ed and LaRue Donough, Manheim, was honored as county Novice Shepherd at the banquet. Ryan is a third grader at Sporting Hill Elementary.

A Red Rose 4-H Award was presented to Lori Harnish, graduate of the beef club. The Jason L. Weaver Memorial Leadership Award was presented to another beef club graduate, Dwain Livengood.

Dwain, active for nine years for the club, recalled his first club calf, a Christmas present he called "Blackie." He said that meeting 4-H members and forming friendships during his 4-H years will be remembered more than the trophies and awards. "Being president this year has taught me many things, some of the most obvious being that after much practice I can stand and address a crowd without too much fear and trepidation." Dwain said that 4-H does much to nuture self confidence "in a guy that grew up living in fear of crowds."

A sheep club appreciation award was presented to Ken Smoker of Walter Dunlap and Sons, Lancaster. Lancaster Farming helped sponsor several awards, including the reserve champion showman at the county beef roundup and supreme champion ewe at the 4-H sheep roundup the past year.

Chet Hughes, livestock agent, coach, and adviser, said the clubs continue to grow. In 11 years, the county had 11 state champion teams, including four junior, four senior, and three meats judging champion teams, which he attributed to the excellent coaching and support of parents and industry.

Following is a list of other honors and awards from the banquet.

Corn, Soybean Tech Conference Set

NEWARK, Del. — Reserve Wednesday, Feb. 17, to attend the 13th annual Delmarva Corn and Soybean Technology Conference at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center in Salisbury, Md.

Delmarva's agribusiness industries and the Cooperative Extension Systems of Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia are sponsoring this year's conference, "Farming in Today's Environment."

The morning program will feature topics including soil compaction, water quality, Atrazine on your farm, and lime and pH.

The afternoon program will include managing crops on droughty soils what lies ahead environmentally, and marketing grain out of Baltimore.

Conference doors will open at 8:30 a.m. to allow participants to visit the trade show and machinery exhibits. The formal program will begin at 9:50 a.m. and adjourn at 3 p.m.

Admission to the conference is free. Lunch tickets are available for $3 per person, but must be purchased by Feb. 10 from county cooperative extension offices in Delaware and Maryland.

Report Crops, Changes

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Farmers who changed their farm operations last year should report those changes to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), executive director Donald Unangst said.

"Reportable changes include new ownership or adding, combining or dividing farms. In addition, farmers must keep current records to get full program benefits," Unangst said. "Requests to combine farms or divide a farm should be made as early as possible because they require special processing and approval by the ASCS county committee."

If you receive U.S. Department of Agriculture farm program benefits, you should report all crops planted each year.

LESS ATRAZINE DOESN'T HAVE TO MEAN MORE QUACKGRASS

Use Roundup® for the best control at the best price! New regulations requiring reduced atrazine rates don't have to mean increased quackgrass competition and resulting yield and tonnage losses. Switch to economical Roundup herbicide and you'll stop quackgrass right down to the rhizomes.

Use Roundup to get a headstart on corn planting. Spray quackgrass as small as 5" tall with Roundup, wait just 72 hours then till and plant.

Get the best control at the best price. Roundup stops quackgrass for under $10 an acre at the 1 quart rate*. Don't worry about losing quackgrass control as you cut back on atrazine...see your dealer for economical Roundup.

MILK AMERICA'S HEALTH KICK

Cecil Sets Dairy Day

ELKTON, Md. — This year's Cecil County Dairy Day is scheduled for February 16 at the Calvert Grange Hall from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. and will cover cattle health, genetics, milk production, and ways to cut costs on purchasing feeds.

Dr. Doug Carmel will speak on BVD (Bovine Viral Diarrhea) and the many ways it can hurt herd production. This disease is not a simple case of diarrhea, but can be the hidden cause of low productivity, breeding problems, and sickly cattle that do not recover from other diseases as you would expect. Improper vaccination can result in cattle that fail to develop resistance to the disease and a "live" vaccination in some cows can be lethal.

Feed costs make up about half of the total operational costs on a dairy farm. Dr. Jim Russell will explain how you can buy corn and soybean meal at a guaranteed price. Locking in a price can help you feed for cost effective milk production.

Canadian Bulls are now included in U.S. sire summaries but selecting the best one for your farm is tricky. Terry Swartz will clear up the confusion. He will help you interpret and understand Canadian bull proofs.

Component pricing is occurring throughout all of Federal Order Number 4. Amy Russell will speak on ways you can feed to influence milk components in your herd's milk.

Butters Family To Host

Following speeches made by award presenters and recipients, Sherri Elders, a director with the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), introduced the Raymond Butters family as host for the 1993 event scheduled for July 10.

Butters and his wife Peggy own a picturesque 247-acre farm which was purchased by his father in 1906. Located off of Route 414, between Liberty and Morris, the farm is also worked by Raymond's sons, David and Terry.

The Butters rent enough land to till a total of 350 acres. According to David, they plant 72 acres of corn, 31 of oats, 18 of rye, 12 of soy beans, and 100 of alfalfa. The rest goes into a timothy-alfalfa mix, while 15 acres are reserved for pasture.

With a grade herd of 83 Holsteins, they milk approximately 77 head, and have 50 young stock.

While everyone helps out wherever they are needed, Terry said his mother deserved a lot of credit for the milking. "She's always in the barn before us, making sure things get done right and on time."

In addition to farming, Terry explained that they are set up as a small dealer in seed and fertilizer, selling to neighboring farms, and also provide a little custom work on the side, as well.

When asked what one might expect to see when visiting their farm this summer, David replied, "There will be a wagon tour planned through the woods where logging and timber management practices such as thinning a woods will be demonstrated. Our neighbor has sheep and goats, and we hope to have the tour run past the fields where they are pastured."

Craig and Larena Owslett with their sons Clint and Wade accept recognition for the 1992 Farm-City Day.

Dennis and Arletta Owlett were honored for their part in the 1992 Farm-City Day.

While neither David nor Terry were anxious to work the long hours involved in the preparation necessary to ready their farm for public viewing, Raymond's enthusiasm prevailed and he convinced his sons it would be an undertaking worth their while.

A prime example of this was witnessed at the banquet when Elders introduced a special guest to speak as a result of a thank-you note the Owletts received after Farm-City Day last year.

The note, sent by Pat Chappel on behalf of her hearing-impaired, 11-year-old son Blair, said that he wants to be a farmer some day. Blair spent most of the day in the barn with workers who were kind and patient in answering his many questions. Because of the Owletts and Farm-City Day, Blair's dream is becoming a reality. He now works on a neighbor's farm two days a week.

As Pat addressed the banquet audience, her story brought tears to more than a few eyes. "Blair enjoyed the day immensly, as did I," she said. "It's easy to complain, and not say 'thank you' enough. That's why I'm here. Please continue to support Farm-City Day. Other businesses will take note and learn from what you do."

"People in the agricultural community have said people don't know where food comes from, don't know what farmers go through. Farm-City Day brings urban neighbors out to the farm," said Elders who faced a major hurdle when she began organizing the first Farm-City Day in 1991. Many thought the event would draw only 200 to 300 people. Her experience with the event in other counties told her otherwise. Reluctant at first, other groups eventually participated due to her determination.

The shock of what has evolved into a major event can still be felt throughout the county. Le-Ma-Re Farm, owned by Erick and Dixie Coolidge of Wellsboro, was the first site for Farm-City DaAy, and in spite of intermittent rain, the event drew 2,000 people. The Owletts experienced an even larger crowd.

Keven Houghtaling, president of the Tioga County Fair, said of Farm-City Day, "There are some who think that it is just another fair, but the two serve different purposes. The fair is a display of

Cost Sharing Available For Integrated Management

SMOKETOWN (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County ASCS office has announced a sign-up period for farmers interested in receiving cost sharing for integrated crop management and other water quality practices.

The cost sharing is part of the Water Quality Incentive Program(WQIP). To be eligible for the cost sharing, farmers must live in the Pequea or Mill Creek watersheds in Lancaster County.

Farmers will receive $7/per acre to offset the cost of hiring an approved crop consultant to soil test, regularly scout for insects, weeds, and other crop pests. Consultants will use this information to make fertilizer and pesticide management recommendations.

The sign-up period will be open from Feb. 22 until March 12. Farmers will need to visit the ASCS office in the Farm and Home Center during that time period to sign up.

This initiative is part of the USDA funded Pequea-Mill Creek Project to improve water quality in central Lancaster County. For more information and a list of approved crop consultants, contact the Pequea-Mill Creek Project office at (717) 396-9423.

Animal Groups To Meet For Educational Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A statewide conference for animal users will be held on February 12 here at the Days Inn Airport.

Sponsored by Pennsylvanians for the Responsible Use of Animals (PRUA), the second annual "Conference on the ABC's of Responsible Animal Use" will feature a hard-hitting educational program aimed at reversing myths about animal use and combatting infringements on the individual's right to use animals in a humane manner.

The day-long program is geared for groups and individuals who are involved in agriculture, the food industry, biomedical research, wildlife conservation, and entertainment.

To receive a conference registration form or more information about Pennsylvanians for the Responsible Use of Animals, contact Kenneth Brandt, P.O. Box 61, Elizabethtown, PA 17022, (717) 367-5223.

the 150 cattle producers and industry representatives present.

Decline in consumption

Smith noted the decline in beef consumption, since its heyday in 1976 when the average amount of beef consumed was 94.4 pounds per year. Compare that to 67.2 pounds in 1992.

The rise in poultry consumed (from 52.2 pounds in 1976 to 84.3 pounds in 1992) has contributed to the decline in beef consumed, because it is simply less expensive to produce and the quality controls have been better.

In a 1992 survey conducted by the National Broiler Council with 50,000 consumers, 76 percent of those polled said it was the price that made them buy poultry over other meat products. Simply put, according to Smith, the price of beef is greater than many consumers are willing to pay.

However, the NCA audit, conducted in 1991 and completed April 15 of last year, conducted face-to-face interviews with 107 key people in the industry. They included packing plants, supermarket representatives, and a whole array of industry representatives.

High on the list were purveyors (those who sell the meat) and restauranteurs (chefs, owners of fast food restaurants, and others). The top 10 concerns related to quality from the restauranteurs included:

- Excessive exterior fat. Trim size should be about ¼ to ½ inch, and no more.
- Injection site blemishes. Some of them were the size of baseballs, but many golf ball size, most notably in the top sirloin cuts.
- Too large of ribeyes and loin eyes.
- Too much seam fat and too much fat in the muscle.
- Lack of uniformity in the meat. Smith calls this the "Crackerjack" syndrome, named after the popcorn treat that promises a surprise in the package, "and you don't know what the surprise is," he said.
- Low overall cutability, or too much bone-to-muscle ratio.
- Dark cutters — dark, damaged meat.
- Low overall palatability and inconsistent tenderness.

Beef simply costs too much, and what consumers are getting they're not satisfied with, for quite a number of reasons, according to Dr. Gary Smith, professor of animal science at Colorado State University. Smith presented his findings on the recently completed National Cattlemen's Association Audit at the Cattle Feeder's Day on Tuesday at the Farm and Home Center.

- Bruse damage. Bruises from mishandling while loading and unloading cause too much bruises in the flank and loin areas.
- Insufficient marbeling. Not enough marbeling to allow for palatability in the meat.

Many restauranteurs had to use "jaccard" machines — devices to make meat tender, according to Smith.

Packer concerns

Packer concerns (according to representatives from IBP, Excel, and Monfort/Con-Agra) were also asked the same questions. They provided the following responses about what was wrong with the beef they'd been seeing:

- Hide problems, including branding and implant damage.
- Injection-site blemishes which caused excessive muscling damages.
- Excess carcass weight, which produced excessive cut weights in the rib and loin areas.
- Bruises from mistakes in handling.
- Implant damage, which causes tougher beef.
- Liver condemnations from bacteria traveling from rumen to bloodstream.
- Insufficient choice cattle, with less deposit marbeling than years ago.
- Too many yield grade #4 and #5 carcasses.
- Lack of uniformity of any kind, or too many of each kind.
- Dark cutters.

Kill floor and cooler personnel also contibuted concerns related to too much bruising, liver condemnations, tripe, tongue, head, shoulder, side, and other condemnations.

Conclusions reached by the audit determined that cattle producers need to consider getting rid of waste fat, but to keep the taste fat. Packer quality conclusions (from Monfort/Con-Agra) determined that upward of $280 is lost for every single slaughter steer or heifer sold in 1991 for all the problems listed above.

As a result of the audit, the conclusions were simple, according to Smith. Producers and packers need to attack waste, enhance taste, improve management, and control the cattle weight. Topmost is weight control, according to Smith.

"We've got to control those weight problems," he said. "We've gotten them too big and we've got to do something about it."

Presented findings

A workshop conducted in Colorado which presented the findings outlined 10 specific strategies for producers and packers. Those include make trim size ¼ inch, change live carcass: price logic, keep heat on cutability ("sell this, communicate this," said Smith), go after management practices that create nonconformity, eliminate biological types of cattle that fail to conform, instill quality based marketing, repeat the audits, and others.

Topping the to-do list is handling the excessive fat. "We've lost the war on fat," said Smith. "We've never had an argument about the war on fat."

As part of the strategies, packers have instituted the CARDS (computer-assisted retail decision support) system to keep the heat on meat cutability. Stores, retailers, producers, and beef quality assurance programs in several states have involved many in the industry to attack these problems.

Smith spoke about a recent partnership conducted with several private producers. In Oberland, Kan., Decatur County, 1,253 cattle will be sent to the Excel packing company in Dodge City, Kan., and sent to stores in Denver, Colo. early in June this year as part of a privately funded venture to test the results of the audit, according to Smith.

Ultimately, producers need to become involved in this war. Smith told them they must ask themselves, "What do you bring to the table? We have to build something they'll come to and that they'll come back to again and again and again and again. This represents a tremendous success story of what the industry can do if we work together."

Smith also spoke about the recent problems with alleged E. coli poisoning, out in the West, from a major fast food chain. Much of the problem related to that was reported in a major paper as "undercooked beef," said Smith, emphasizing how much damage that a single workperson can cause by not following proper sanitary procedures and proper cooking times for beef.

He also emphasized the excessive media attention given to so-called problems regarding pesticides in meat, when "God put in plants their own natural pesticides," he said, which far outweigh any of the miniscule amounts that were found in few examples of much of the meat tested over the years.

Feeder prices

Cattle feeders can expect steady to declining prices for their product through the remainder of the year because of inexpensive feed and a general overproduction of beef, according to a Penn State economist.

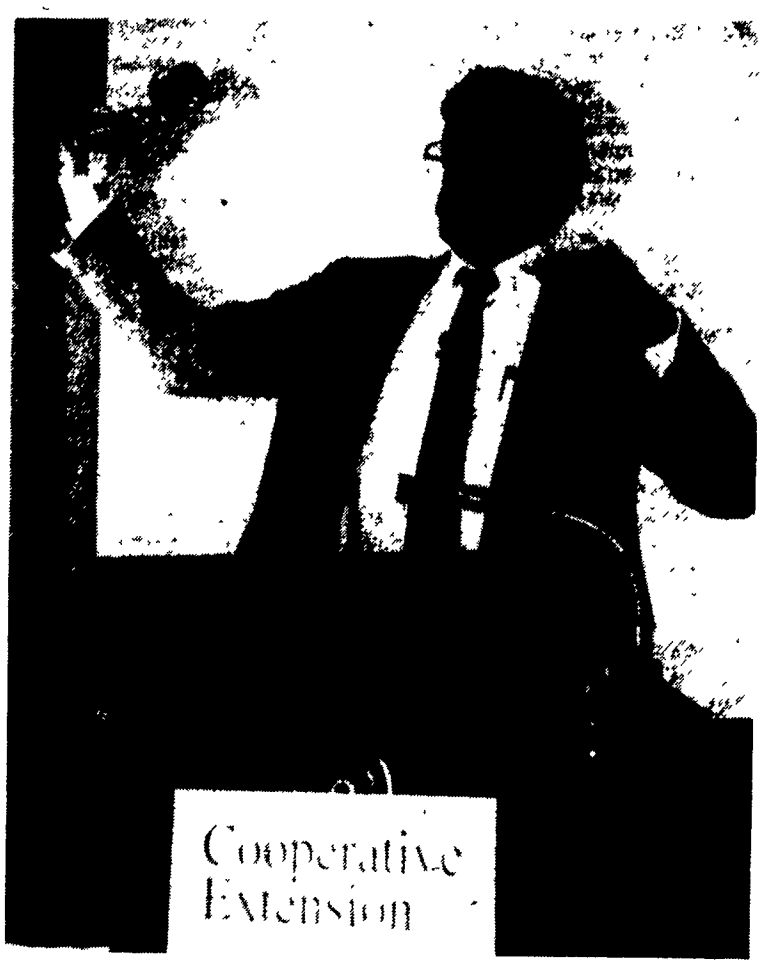
H. Louis Moore, Penn State economist, presented his outlook for cattle feeders.

Moore said negative factors, including a new president, the building recession in Europe, a $400 billion national deficit, the stalling of GATT talks, the lowest consumer confidence rating for a president since records were kept in 1952, and slow growth means the recovery will last all year.

Good news is that the U.S. will lean over backward to sell grain to the former Soviet Union. Our only fault is agricultural's excess capacity, which may be a negative factor.

The good news for feeders is that grain will be relatively inexpensive, because of record harvests in the U.S. in corn (9.48 billion bushels in 1992, the largest ever) and 2.46 billion bushels of wheat (one of the largest ever), and 2.20 billion bushels of soybeans (the second largest ever). Pennsylvania corn yields totalled 111.6 million bushels, a record year.

Carryover for September of 1993 will be 2.154 billion bushels of corn, 523 million bushels of wheat, and 310 million bushels of soybeans. The record domestic use of corn will weigh on markets, cutting price to cash croppers but allowing feeders to purchase corn at inexpensive prices. Moore predicts inexpensive feed through next year.



Ted Perry, beef cattle extension associate from Cornell, provided an implant update at the Cattle Feeder's Day.

Moore says it pays to be optimistic, despite some astounding statistics:

- We lost 56 percent of our hog farms over a 10-year period, from 1981-1991.
- At the current rate, there will be only 5,000 decision makers in hog production by the year 2,000. (This may be attributable to the growing number of contract operations.)
- No cattle kill data from Illinois, Michigan, or North Carolina. USDA allows the packers to keep from distributing data when only one or two packers control the kill in each state.
- Seven plants kill a total of 26.5 percent of the cattle.
- Although the good news is that consumers continue to spend more on eating places, the trend will start to decline.

There is excess capity of meat, and broiler consumption continues to grow. There is simply too much meat on the market now, although herd size will increase 1 percent a year. In 1992 along, beef made up about 34.6 percent of the meat supply, at 23.2 billion pounds. (Broilers, on the other hand, made up 30.9 percent of the beef supply, at 20.7 billion pounds.)

Projected beef production will be up as high as perhaps 2 percent, according to Moore, for 1993, due to the inexpensive feed. Pork will increase upward of 4 percent, and broilers about the same. Turkeys will increase 2 percent this year.

This year should mark a record for meat production and consumption, according to the economist. But prices may already have hit their peak for the year. Futures obtained by Moore on Jan. 29 this year show a February price of 77.50, 76.85 for April, 72.52 for June, 71.40 for October, and 71.17 for Feb. 1994.

Moore said he is "guardedly optimistic about the industry for the year ahead," with prices about $3 less than they are right now for producers in the Mid-Atlantic region.

Also at the Feeder's Day, Dan McFarland, Penn State ag engineer, provided a rundown on retrofitting ventilation systems for barns. Ted Perry, beef cattle extension associate from Cornell, provided an implant update. Also, Robert Anderson, extension agronomist, spoke about mixing site safety.

This year should mark a record for meat production and consumption, according to H. Louis Moore, Penn State economist, who presented his outlook for cattle feeders.

Butters Family To Host

the best the county has to offer. The best crops, the best animals. Farm-City Day lets people see exactly what it takes to produce the best. The equipment, the chores, the up-keep, the expenses, and the long hours a farmer must invest are all aspects of farming people won't see at the fair. Farm-City Day is the answer."

Of the 55 organizations and business, and individuals too numerous to count who volunteered their services to make Farm-City Day a success, several were singled out to receive a special thanks or a plaque at the appreciation banquet. Radio announcers Jay Scott and John Antonio received plaques on behalf of the publicity they generated for the event. Other plaques went to John Felondis, assistant supervisor at Farmers Home Administration (FHA); Howard Rutledge of the Soil Conservation Service; Kaminski and Son Electri, of whom 1992 Farm-City Day Chairman Derek Williams said, "Tom keeps us running, literally, because without his skills we would be in the dark."

Don VanVliet of FHA also brought a smile to the audience when he acknowledged J.W. Welch, better known as "The Farmer From Mansfield." Welch donated his time to man the P.A. system for the 1992 Farm-City Day, as well as the appreciation banquet. In regards to Welch's unique style of humor, which was interspersed throughout both occasions, VanVliet said, "We were going to get a ham-bone for him, but couldn't find one."

Final recognition was made by Craig Owlett to VanVliet for all his help throughout the day, and especially to those who helped capture VanVliet's wild, big-horned ram which was brought in for the sheep sheering demonstration and escaped during clean-up. (The chase ended with a tackle by Craig who sustained a chipped tooth and black eye.)

If it's one thing Farm-City Day is not, that's dull. And the Butters brothers are nervously keeping that in mind as they plan their Day this summer.

Barn Raising Elevates Spirit Of Unity

dent than on Wednesday evening as he was saying "thankyou"s to the last of the 125 men and women who turned out that day to volunteer help rebuilding a heifer barn that burned to the ground on Christmas Day.

In addition to losing his heifer barn, Hershey also lost a lot of hay, straw and corn, a forage harvester, a blower, a chisel plow and some smaller equipment.

Forget the cost of rebuilding a burned to the foundation old bank barn. Everyone knows it isn't cheap.

It's also common knowledge that on-farm milk prices are barely substantial, let alone enough to allow a family dairy farmer to easily afford to rebuild a heifer barn.

But on Wednesday that's not why people turned out with tools in hand. The apparent reason is Hershey the friend and supporter and the character of the Lebanon farming community.

In a valley where both mountain ridges can be touched by the eye on a clear day, the closeness of the farming community is apparent to many on even the cloudiest day.

Kenneth Winebark, county extension agent, said, "I found there to be a real strong bond between the farmers in the county here. There were farmers from all over the county (Wednesday) to help out."

A layman may observe that barn raisings are curiosities of cultural custom.

Others may be inclined to offer that trust, concern and aide are behaviors exhibited in others in almost direct proportion to amount of trust, concern and aide given.

Hershey, deflecting any sense that he had anything to do with receiving acts of kindness, said that the reason the turnout at his farm was strong because, "These are wonderful, wonderful people. Great people," he said.

Hershey also quickly diverted attention away from himself by talking about a fellow Lebanon County farmer whose main milking barn was destroyed Monday morning by a fire which officials have determined to be suspicious. It is Tom Shuey Sr.'s dairy farm in Ono.

"There's been another barn burned," Hershey said, his smile disapearing and his forehead wrinking. "I hope we can all go back and give that guy a lift, just as everyone turned out to give me a lift."

Shuey milks about 80 cows, and not only lost the whole main milk barn, "but pretty much all the

State Ayrshire Convention Set For April

ULSTER (Bradford Co.) — The 1993 Pennsylvania Ayrshire Association's convention, meeting and heifer sale is set for April 2 and 3 at the Williamstown Inn, in Towanda, association representatives announced this week.

The association is also seeking applicants for its Aryshire princess contest and entries for a dairy show, both of which are to be held in conjunction with the convention.

"As always, there are a lot of activities going on this weekend and we want to let all the friends, members and enthusiasts of the Ayrshire breed to know ahead of time, so they can plan a fun-filled weekend with us," according to a news release by Ben and Kathy Hillyard, who are chairing this year's event committee.

For the heifer sale, scheduled to held during the evening on April 2, Wayne Weaver is to return to serve as auctioneer, and consignments are already coming in, according to the news release.

"Rob and Bonnie Wentworth are sending up a September calf out of Minechoag Seeker. Her dam is a 2-year-old milking 16,000 pounds," according to the Hillyards.

Plum Bottom Farm has consigned a bred heifer due June 15. The sire is Peter, a bull from the Taurus lineup. The heifer's dam is Ardrossan C. Boy Rose Lawn with a first lactation record of 15,000 and a lacation record started as a 5-year-old which resulted in 16,000 pounds of milk.

In other events, Dick Packard is to judge the dairy show scheduled to be held on April 3. Rob and Sharon Nolan are managing the show. Entry and entry fees should be sent to the Nolans by March 19. Send to: Rob and Sharon Nolan, RD1 Box 110, Cochranville, PA 19330.

The calves- and heifers-only (no milking animals) show includes an entry fee of $5 per head and offers competition in seven age classes, "best three females" and "best bred and owned" classes, and a junior division and senior division for first year showmanship.

The age classes are intermediate calf, Dec. 1, 1992 to Feb. 29, 1993; senior calf, Sept. 1, 1992 to Nov. 30, 1992; summer yearling, June 1, 1992 to August 31, 1992; junior yearling March 1, 1992 to May 30, 1992; intermediate yearling, Dec. 1, 1991 to Feb. 28, 1992; senior yearling, Sept. 1, 1991 to Nov. 30, 1991; and unfresh 2-year-olds born before August 31, 1991.

Those animals consigned for sale are automatically entered in the show and do not require an entrance fee.

For the princess pageant, any woman aged 14 to 19 with an interest in representing and promoting the breed and is available to attend meetings, shows and promotional events, should send, no later than March 10, her name and brief backround summary to Bonnie Wentworth, 1026 River Rd., Quarryville, PA 17566.

A new name or names will be added to the state Ayrshire Hall of Fame. Don Gable is again handling the program.

John Rodgers will talk about taking a new look at the association's futurity, and special guest speakers are scheduled during the weekend.

Accomodations at the Williamston Inn range from $47.70 for one night in one bed for two people, to $55.12 for one night for two people in two beds. Additional people in each room costs $4 extra per additional person. Two-night stays are also available.

Meals have also been arranged.

For Friday night dinner, the menu is for ham and roast beef, baked potato, tossed salad, a vegetable, roll and ice cream sundae for $12 per person. Fish can also be ordered, but contact the Hillyards ahead of time so hotel staff can prepare.

Saturday breakfast is to cost $6.60 per person and includes assorted juices and fruit, french toast, baked omelet or scrambled eggs, home fries, ham and bacon, pastries and coffee and tea.

For more information or to make reservations, call the Hillyards at (717) 594-4371. Or write to Ben and Kathy Hillyard, RD2 Box 235A, Ulster, PA 18850.

Farm Family Workshop Set

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A workshop entitled "How To Keep The Farm In The Family" is scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 9 at St. Anne's Parish Hall, Duke and Liberty Streets.

Sponsored by Metropolitan Financial Services, the workshop will be conducted by Cynthia Boyer Blakeslee, attorney. Large Crowd Attends Dealerhip Meeting

Jerry Thomas, territory manager, greated the crowd and made award presentations to the dealership for sales and service excellence. With sales focusing on hay equipment, Thomas presented a desk pen set award to Herbert Noll, dealership manager, because the dealership was only one of two in the territory (Southeast Pennsylvania and New Jersey) that "achieved the largest market increase in hay tool sales."

The second award was the Super Service Award that was presented to the dealership because the workers are "committed to team work and to the customer."

Noll said that sales were important, but the service and the parts departments were equally important. "We do have a group of committed people," Noll said.

"It takes a lot of effort to win a Super Service Award," Thomas said. "You don't get the opportunity to buy John Deere equipment from the average store front operation. We sell our products through a servicing organization that has parts and service facilites with people trained to service the product we sell."

The dealership was also offering the opportunity to farmers to register the serial numbers of their equipment in the dealership's computers so service could be more personal and phone calls could be handled more quickly for the customer.

Seminar Examines Land, Economical Issues Facing Farmers

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

BLUE BALL (Lancaster Co.) — With legislative mandates proposed for nutrient management, Dr. John Schwartz, extension director, encouraged farmers at the Blue Ball Bank Seminar, "Do not let what you cannot do interfere with what you can do."

Originally a quote from John Wooden, retired UCLA basketball coach, Schwartz said that it applies appropriately as farmers struggle to comply with the legislation that has passed the House and will probably pass the Senate.

The good news, according to Schwartz, is that "you can write your own nutrient management plan if you are certified. And I feel confident as an educator that I can teach you to become certified," he said.

The 276 registrants attending the tenth annual seminar offered by Blue Ball Bank listened intently as Don Weaver, a New Holland farmer, told how a nutrient management plan has worked for him during the past six years.

Weaver and his brother Nelson have a 100-acre farm in partnership and milk 80 cows. The brothers became interested in nutrient management before the idea was popular because they began having problems with water quality and were losing cows to health problems.

When Don and his wife had a daughter born mentally handicapped, there was concern that the drinking water had caused the disability. Although the drinking water can not be pinpointed as the exact cause, the possibility influenced the Weavers to take a new look at how they were managing their land.

"I previously thought that soil was simply dirt," Don said. "Now I realize that soil is life that needs to be nurtured and cared for in order to remain healthy."

The Weavers with the help of AgRestore, Inc. analyzed the manure, feed, acreage, animals, and crops to come up with a plan to reduce use of fertilizers and herbicides, to restore soil life, and replenish soil fertility.

Weaver said, "That was six years ago. It didn't work overnight, but I have gained confidence that the soil is now working for us."

Weaver reports that crop rotation eliminates need for rootworm control. That by not planting as early, using shallow tillage and a spot spray technique, and treating the manure before it is spread on the fields has built up the organic level of the soil.

"The soil can hold more rain; the soil stays put, and the soil erosion problem has been reduced. It feels good to know that my place is not loaded with chemicals and toxins,"

Mercer DHIA Meets

CAROL SMITH
Mercer Co. Correspondent

MERCER (Mercer Co.) — The Mercer County Dairy Herd Improvement Association held its annual meeting, January 5, at the county Extension Center in Mercer.

The meeting was called to order by chairman Dennis James and State Director George Cudoc gave his report. He informed the dairymen that milk testers would begin carrying book computers and printers to the test sites. He also mentioned the state DHIA annual meeting will be held March 19-20 at Radison Hotel Pittsburgh in Monroeville. All DHIA members are invited to attend. Mr. Cudoc cleared up some questions about the new format of the DHIA reports. Some complaints were made about the readability of the reports. He stated that changes are currently being made to improve the format.

Also during the meeting, several awards were presented and election of committee members was conducted. Chairman Dennis James and Regional Manager David Bigelow presented the awards.

Douglas Robinson received the first place Herd Management Award for the county along with second place in Class 650 - 749 lb. Milk Protein with an average of 704 lbs. and Class 750 - 849 lb. Milk Fat with an average of 836 lbs.

Rollin and Dennis James for the sixth consecutive year continue to be an outstanding dairy in Mercer County by receiving honors of having the highest herd average for milk production. The Jameses also received the award for highest county herd production for protein and highest county herd production for milk fat with 773 lbs. and 938 lbs., respectively.

Others receiving awards were Ralph and Gary Oakes.

Dean Amick, guest speaker at the meeting, spoke on the subject "Unbundling the New Reports." He also commended the county dairymen for another successful year and the county association for completing its 75th year.

said Weaver, who has formed Homestead Nutrition, a company promoting biological agriculture.

Estate planning

During the day-long seminar held on Wednesday, topics included estate planning, farming trends in '93, and the pros and cons of having the right to sell their property for whatever intended use.

Richard Denison, associate administrator of Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, stressed the importance of farmers having accurate figures for their assets. If the figures are wrong, surviving family members may not be financially secure.

Common mistakes made in estate planning or the lack of it are death without a will, all left to a spouse (a tax trap), and lack of communication between spouses before death in explaining what needs to be done in case of death.

To make the maximum use of the $600,000 tax exemption, property should be owned by tenants in common rather than owned individually or by joint tenants, he said. He stressed the importance of using an attorney to make sure that the wording of a will and deeds are properly set up to save heirs from paying unnecessary taxes.

A legal way to distribute an estate before death is to give anyone and as many individuals as you choose $10,000 a year for as many years as you choose without gift tax ramifications to either the giver or the receiver.

According to Denison, it is important to have ownership of life insurance in the surviving spouse's name to eliminate the insurance policy from becoming part of the estate, which would then be subject to taxes.

Denison's favorite technique for passing a farm on to a heir is to form a growing partnership, which keeps the land in the parents' name, but leases cattle and equipment to the partner. Income is split and as livestock offspring are dropped, they are owned by the partnership. New equipment is also purchased as part of the partnership.

"Within eight years, a partner will have one half ownership in the business," Denison said. The father can then sell the remaining half to the partner; if the partner can't pay, a right to purchase agreement should be drawn up.

"No matter what you do after this meeting, please do something to begin estate planning," Dennison said.

He recommends updating wills every three to five years and whenever changes are made in laws or in situations of deaths or births.

Ag future

Lou Moore, Penn State economist, predicted where Pennsylvania's agricultural industry is heading and how U.S. policy and world economy will effect it. (See the Lancaster Cattle Feeders' article in this issue for his predictions).

Dr. John Becker, Penn State ag law and economics professor, spoke on the pros and cons of farmers having the right to sell their property for whatever intended use.

"It seems deceptively simple, that the owner should be able to do as he pleases," Becker said, "but there is another side to the issue."

He reviewed laws that pertain to landowner's rights and of the government's role to protect society. He said that individual and community interests need to be taken into consideration when determining a land's use.

Workshop Set

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A workshop entitled "How To Keep The Farm In The Family" is scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 9 at St. Anne's Parish Hall, Duke and Liberty Streets from 7 p.m.-9 p.m.

Sponsored by Metropolitan Financial Services, the workshop will be conducted by Cynthia Boyer Blakeslee, attorney. Blakeslee served three terms as chair of the Agricultural Law Committee, and has been a member of the Ag Issues Forum since 1989. She is a member of the Lancaster County Estate Planning Council.

Seating will be limited. Call (717) 560-0371 to reserve seating.

PA Crop Management Annual Meeting Held In State College

mation to non-association members about the economic benefits of being a member, and to provide information to the non-farm community on the environmentally safe practices of the association based on records kept - the Association increased membership by 10% to 497 farmers and increased crop acreage by 8% to 83,513 acres.

Through services provided by the Crop Association and its technicians, Ligo said he experienced on his farm, a savings of $600 on rootworm control on 80 acres of corn, and $1,400 on insecticide on 64 acres of alfalfa.

Ligo said CMA crop technicians have access to Penn State and Extension information, and expects technicians to help farmers in the future to comply with regulations and economic restraints.

Jan Pruss, Manager on the CMP, recognized Martin Bennicoff, State Director for the Lehigh Valley area and Harold Book, State Director for the Juniata Valley area, for their years of service on the State Board.

The following speakers addressed the meeting:

Bob Herbst, the Washington Representative for the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) and Chairman of the Natural Resources Council of America and the National Environmental Education and Training Foundation, addressed TVA's role in improving fertilizers and addressed ag policies being considered in Washington.

Formed in 1933, TVA is one of the largest utilities, providing power for 8 million people. Congress mandated TVA to be a resource development agency with a role in agriculture to develop improved fertilizers.

Herbst said since only half of the applied nitrogen is used by plants through the year, TVA's goal is to develop a fertilizer of increased nutrient content with less waste. Herbst said we must not ignore organic materials available from industrial and urban areas and must find a way to separate toxic materials from these wastes.

TVA research is now centered on technology for food and fiber production that is environmentally responsible.

During the last three years, TVA has intensified research, development, and demonstrations towards water quality, environmental waste, natural resource management, economic development, educational and skills development, and stewardship.

Within the next decade, TVA, in partnership with other agencies, will be forming 100 demonstration farms as research centers for integrated pest management, nutrient management, conservation tillage, wetlands management, buffer strips along streams, control of livestock waste, feedlot management, storm water management, hazardous materials and waste management, and genetic engineering.

In regards to ag policy in Washington, Herbst says Clinton wants to expand agricultural exports and Herbst expects the new administration to address the following - the deficit, economic stimulation through infrastructure development, recycling, the North American Free Trade Agreement with agriculture as a key element, pesticide legislation, the Clean Water Act, Wetlands definition (broadening), and increase in research funds for global climate change.

To conclude, Herbst said, "We are entering an era of high hopes, an era in balance particularly with the economy, health care, education, jobs, and the environment."

Dr. Wayne Schutjer, Associate Director in Cooperative Extension, gave a College Future's

I would like to purchase your 609 tobacco.
All I want to do is pay the farmer the most money I possibly can and treat him fairly. I am not interested in carrying tales or running other buyers down or critizing the auction. I know every buyer in Lancaster County is important, especially the auction. I believe every farmer should take some of his tobacco to the auction to help support it. I will not be buying at the auction because I cannot get a volume there. I have the best price in the county at the present time.

- The Pennsylvania Economic Development Department will provide technology available to medium and small businesses, employee management, and cooperatives.
- Family Living Programs will focus less on services provided by other local agencies.

Schutjer urged all to see Pennsylvania's number one industry, agriculture, to include processing and distribution, to see it as a food system.

That food system should have long term sustainability, where those outside of agriculture understand, and will not make agriculture difficult. The food system has to work in that political dimension.

Going on, Schutjer said the food system has to be environmentally sustainable, where technology and management is consistent with environmental goals. It also has to be economically sustainable for producers - farmers need to be paid.

Schutjer called the Crop Management Program the hallmark of crop management because it fits into all three requirements, is economically, environmentally, and politically sustainable.

Walt Peechatka, Pennsylvania's Deputy Secretary for Regulatory Programs, is responsible for all regulatory programs in the five Bureaus of the Department - Animal Industry, Food Safety, Plant Industry, Rides and Measurement Standards, and Dog Law.

He addressed the cooperative efforts of the Department of Agriculture, Penn State, and the Crop Management Association.

Peechatka outlined the strides made including:

- Pennsylvania's outstanding reputation for pest management
- the Department of Agriculture gave high priority to the Integrated Pest Management Program, increased educational materials on it, and increased research funding at Penn State
- implemented a One Plan concept where the farm plans of federal, state and local agencies were integrated into one plan
- instituted a new agency called the Pennsylvania Association of Sustainable Agriculture which works closely with the Department of Agriculture and Penn State.
- Certified Crop Advisor Program
- the Agriculture Committee's response to environmental issues

Peechatka said future challenges require collective attention, including,

- the proposal of solutions rather than reacting to them
- involving the private sector in finding solutions
- setting high standards of ethics to produce high quality products
- getting the One Plan concept implemented statewide
- focusing research on gaps in Integrated Pest Management
- has urged agriculture to chart its own course on environmental issues

Don Unangst of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) said the job of the ASCS is to administer the farm programs, provide funding, and administer loan programs, all of which change daily with the new administration.

Unangst said the restructuring program is the process of looking at what we're doing and what it is costing in reference to the services provided. He originally recommended the closing or combining of 6 or 7 county offices, but Washington added 12 offices to that.

Integrated Crop Management Special Practice 53 began as a trial program in 13 counties in Pennsylvania, a cost-sharing program that, in 1991, involved 100 farms with 11,427 acres with $69,000 cost-share payments.

Al Turgeon is Professor and head of the Department of Agronomy at Penn State. He attends to the administration of all research, teaching, and extension programs as well as the management of all personnel and physical resources. He serves as project leader for the Crop Management Program and discussed information technology in agriculture.

Future technology for learning includes:

- computer technology relayed to an overhead projector for classroom instruction
- installing lessons into learning centers for students to go through by themselves
- forming modeling programs, such as the Stella Program designed by Turgeon, where students can simulate processes of what actually happens out in the field (i.e. the breakdown of manure nitrogen into Nitrate Nitrogen)
- availability of these technologies to County Extension Offices

Chris Reaver gave her Crop Management Consultant Report. She hopes the future sees a Certified Crop Advisor Exam whereby Crop Advisors can then write nutrient management plans for farms.

Bill Brubaker is Executive Secretary of the Pennsylvania Agronomic Products Association (PAPA), whose membership consists of individuals and firms engaged in the retail sale of agronomic products or services to production agriculture. Its main objectives are to offer educational opportunities to members, present a unified position for them, and establish and maintain positive working relationships with Penn State, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Penn Ag Industries Association, and allied state and national associations. Brubaker spoke on Nutrient Management Legislation and the Certified Crop Advisor Program.

Brubaker encouraged everyone to get copies of the nutrient management bill because as agricultural leaders, we must be literate should any questions arise from the non-farm sector. He complimented the One Plan program where information can flow to the farmer through one advisor to weld the government programs together as one.

Brubaker provided sign-up forms for the Certified Crop Advisor Program test to be administered on August 6, 1993. The American Society of Agronomy sees the need for uniform standards and requires non-college applicants to have four years field experience, Associate Degree candidates to have three years experience, and Bachelor Degree candidates to have two years experience. The other key part of the test, Brubaker said, is the code of ethics. A review program is being offered at Penn State June 23 and 24.

Barry Frantz is the One Plan Project Coordinator for Pennsylvania who works with both the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts and the Soil Conservation Service. The One Plan is a resource management plan that takes into account all aspects of the farm operation and enables the grower to reasonably comply with applicable government programs and regulations.

Some of the general project objectives include eliminating conflicts between resource management recommendations for individual farms, integrating resource management planning efforts of state and federal agencies, simplifying management of natural resources, saving planning time and implementation costs, providing for protection of a farm's natural resources, helping farmers comply with state and federal regulatory programs, facilitating implementation of sustainable agriculture practices intended to protect the environment, integrating crop management and water quality protection, and developing a model, integrated resource management plan for national application.

Local agencies and organizations involved would be the SCS, ASCS, Cooperative Extension, DER (Chesapeake Bay Program), Pa. Game Commission, Pa. Fish and Boat Commission, Crop Management Associations, Private Crop Consultants, Fertilizer/Pesticide Dealers, and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. A final report and recommendations on the One Plan project due out in September.

First N.E. Grazing Conference

Salatin's "Stockman Grass Farmer," offered two days of speakers including a New Zealand dairyman, a Penn State University Extension agronomist, several Pennsylvania couples who use grazing as an integral part of the diet for their dairy herds, the chairman of the Ohio State University Department of Dairy Science who discussed the pros and cons of seasonal grass dairying, an Ohio shepherd, two talks by Joel Salatin, and one by a writer for his magazine, Allan Nation.

More than 100 attended. Cost for attending the seminar was $125.

Of the couples who provided testimonial evidence of the successes of their uses of grazing systems, Axel Linde and Millie Widman, a brother-sister partnership of a family Quarryville operation, talked about their Guernsey herd and the use of pastures and grazing to maintain a good milk flow.

The two use a mixture of permanent and portable fencing to split up their farmland into long narrow pastures-crop fields.

They hay and graze off of fields that are planted to mixtures of clover, timothy, alfalfa, soybeans, rye, triticale, oats, tall fescue, matua, orchard grass, etc., to set up a rotating system whereby they can put their cattle out during most of the year in pasture.

The two also have a situation where their farm has a number of springs that have been manipulated to serve as watering sources for the different pastures.

To reduce erosion and stream bank degradation, they have cemented sections into a trough and restricted the cows' ability to walk into it by using a fence set with top strand "hot" wire and bottom strand "dead" wire. It allows the cows to easily get at the water to drink and keeps the trough clean.

They said that while most dairymen experience a summer milk production slump because of the high temperatures and cow discomfort, they actually experience an increase.

They said that this is so, because the feed value of the pastures peaks and the cows get plenty of cool fresh water and each pasture has shade trees.

According to Axel, the cows use almost the entire acreage of the 140-acre farm. The savings comes from reduced manure hauling, lower feed costs and lower harvesting costs.

The farm was designed for grazing since 1956 when their father had it.

There is more to the feeding, however, than merely allowing the cows to graze. Constant consideration of potential for digestive problems, and other problems associated with pasturing are compensated for by feeding strategy and providing additional protein sources in the winter. During the summer getting top dressing for the high producers that isn't as high in protein, because the cows are already getting enough.

However, both Millie and Axel said that they have learned to use the different forages, and use testing, to have a nutritionally complete feed program with which they can work.

Pa Bull To Test

DeFOREST, Wis. — A young Pennsylvania Holstein bull bred by Rynd Home Farm of Cochranton was recently selected for testing in a Mid West-based artificial insemination company.

29 H7384 Rynd-Home Clare-ET is a Wardin Bell Gene son from Osdel-Endeavor Mark Clara-ET, a Very Good Dam of Merit and a Cheif Mark daughter.

Clare's dam is a full sister to 29 H5619 Endeavor, backed by Rynd-Home Valiant Cutie. She is also a half sister to two A.I. sires Cubby and Curious.

Clare is to join an unspecified number of dairy cattle bulls for testing in the American Breeders Service Progeny Test Program with his semen distributed through contracted herds throughout the United States.

Barn Raising Elevates Spirit Of Unity

equipment that was in the barn," Winebark said.

Hershey and his wife Mary Anne and two sons, Mike (oldest) and Rob have several farms under their control along Hefflefinger Road, a rural delivery route for Lebanon city.

The Bares milk about 90 registered Holsteins in a stanchion setup and sells to Wengert's Dairy in Lebanon. There is hired help for milking and farm work.

Among various associations and memberships, Hershey is a past Dairy Herd Improvement Association member, a member of the agriculture committee of the Lebanon Valley Chamber of Commerce; on the Lebanon Valley Bank agricultural advisory board; heavily involved with Kenbrook Bible Camp; and a past member of the county extension board.

"He always has the doors open," Winebark said. "He has been instrumental in farm tours and with Leadership Lebanon Valley (a LV Chamber of Commerce community leader development school attended mostly by nonfarming backround businessmen to get a rounded education on the community, its businesses, government and resources).

"There were a number of folks from Leadership Lebanon Valley, at least one current member and three or four past members," Winebark said.

The men who volunteered started early and had the barn frame up just after 10 a.m.

At the end of the day the main barn structure, floor and most of the roof was completed, the barn was even extended 6 feet foward from the original, because they decided to not rebuild the forebay.

Wednesday was volunteer day, Hershey said. Hired help and others would finish the job. He said he expected that by the end of the week the top half of the barn would be finished. The interior stall area, designed to house up to about 50 heifers, would take a little more time.

"Hershey's always been very supportive of (community) activities. (The huge volunteer turnout) was a way for people to pay him back a little bit," Winebark said.

DHIA Records Meetings In Southeast

• Friday, February 26, 12:30-3:00 p.m. - Honeybrook Grange, Chester County.

For more information, contact the respective County Extension office: Berks- 215-378-1327; Bucks- 215-345-3283; Chester- 215-696-3500; Montgomery- 215-489-4315.

Participants are urged to bring their DHIA records to the meetings as there will be time to answer questions.

It would be impossible to cover the entire DHIA program in one session, so three areas will be emphasized.

The PA DHIA staff will explain the wide variety of programs and options that are available to members in 1993. A dairy producer can tailor his program to the reports that he needs and uses, and at a cost that he can afford.

The Herd Summary Page II will be the second segment of the workshop. There are 13 sections on this two-sided page ranging from the herd's genetic profile to a reproductive profile, a somatic cell county summary, and test period daily averages, to mention a few. There will be a discussion of how to use the reproductive and somatic cell count information to evaluate and improve your management practices.

The final area discussed will be the new Individual Cow Page. This is a detailed record of each cow's current production, previous lactations, genetic profile, reproduction summary, and progeny history. There are also four graphs that show variations in milk production, somatic cell count, and protein and fat percent. County Agents will point out key areas that the dairy farmer should watch and some corrective measures that could be taken if a problem is diagnosed.

The overall purpose of the workshop is to better familiarize PA DHIA members with the new information that they are receiving and how to use this data to improve their operation. The whole concept behind DHIA is "Dairy Herd Improvement." Now, it may be nice to have a stock of computer print-outs to impress the neighbors, but unless they are used to solve problems and fine-tune successful programs, the money for testing is wasted.

A few examples of the economic advantages of using DHIA records based on a 50-cow herd for one year with $12.00 cwt milk are:

1 - Dropping SCC code from 4 to 3 will increase profits $2,400.

2 - Reducing calving interval from 14 months to 13 months nets $4,500.

3 - Increasing rolling herd average 1,000 pounds per cow increases gross income by $6,000.

4 - Increased milk production of one-half pound per cow per day pays for DHIA AM/PM testing.

There are many more examples of the value of using DHIA records, so plan to attend one of the workshops and get your herd moving in '93.

Sample Brunch At Morning Meadows Farm

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MARIETTA (Lancaster Co.) — "A farmer's wife learns to do everything — she has to," said Barbara Frey.

That's why Barbara has patched plaster, sanded, painted, papered, and turned Morning Meadows Farm into a showcase of a Bed and Breakfast.

Morning Meadows Farm is one of several bed and breakfast farms open for the public to tour during the Pennsylvania Dutch Food Festival, held February 15 to 20. Each day, a festival of events is held in various areas of Lancaster County. On Wednesday, February 17, Morning Meadows and three other bed and breakfast farms will be open to the public. For a $3 ticket, guests may sample brunch foods at each of the locations.

A gracious, outgoing hostess, Barb said that she had always dreamed of having a bed and breakfast even though she had never been a guest in one before she opened her own seven years ago. At that time, Barb was working full time and continued to do so while she operated the bed and breakfast on a part-time basis. Two years ago, she quit her job to devote full time to the bed and breakfast.

Artistic flair is evident throughout the house, which Barb describes as Victorian-country style.

Barb does all the decorating and floral arrangements. She said that when she first opened her bed and breakfast, she was limited by money for decorating.

"So I did my own decorating, thinking that some day when I had enough money, I would go out and buy nice things," Barb said.

It's years later, but instead of buying new things, Barb continues using her own decorating skills because, she explains with a tinge of amazement in her voice, "People say they love my stuff."

Barb has had professional decorators as guests in her home. They tell her that they can't believe that she has never been trained professionally.

Color and design are evident in elaborate flower arrangements on walls, mantels, table centerpieces, and shelves in every nook and cranny of the house plus outside on the brick patio and the country porches.

Harold and Barbara Frey operate a bed and breakfast on their Morning Meadows Farm in Marietta.

Sometimes guests request that Barb duplicate one of her arrangements for them. Because Barb enjoys floral design, she is happy to fill their requests and has mailed them as far away as Hawaii.

Many of her skills have been honed by necessity, according to Barb, who said that she needed to learn to make lemonade out of a lot of lemons that life had given her. Years ago, a divorce had left her with four small children to raise. Twelve years ago, she married Harold Frey and the two families combined include seven children. Now the children are adults and on their own, but the skills and endless energy needed during their growing up years have trained Barb to work efficiently and happily. Qualities that enable her to entertain guests with ease.

The Freys find that guests often choose their home because they want to visit a working farm. In fact, the Freys advertise that they ha ^ a small barnyard of petting animals for children to enjoy. A sheep, Dandelion, feeds on the green grass in front of the entrance to their home.

On the weekend of Valentine's Day, guests will sip hot chocolate by the fire in the parlor at Morning Meadows Farm.

Barb, left, daughter Bambi, and grandson Joshua sample brunch foods that will be served during the Pennsylvania Dutch Food Festival. For a $3 ticket, you may sample brunch foods at four bed and breakfast inns on February 17 and tour several area food processing plants free of charge.

While Barbara pampers the barnyard animals, Harold and his identical twin brother, Herbert, take care of the for-profit animals and the field work.

Harold had purchased the farm with its 240 acres in 1965. For many years, he had a laying hen operation, but in 1989, he converted the chicken houses to a swine operation.

"It's not nearly as time consuming as chickens," said Harold of the 2,000 pigs he fattens.

He also raises beef cattle and rents an additional 800 acres on which corn, soybeans, wheat, barley, and 100 acres of hull peas are raised. The peas are raised for Cope's Dried Corn, which takes care of mechanically harvesting the peas.

Harold and Herbert also operate Frey Brothers Trucking, transporting feed and grain.

As many farmers, Harold laments the rising prices of equipment, but he likes to tell of one occasion when inflation worked to his advantage.

"In 1955, I bought a tractor and plow for $3,500. I used it for 12 years and then traded it in for $5,000," he said.

Pennsylvania Dutch Food Festival Offers Clear Toy Candy Making Demonstrations

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EAST PETERSBURG (Lancaster Co.) — "This is a hobby that went wild," Nancy Fasolt said of her Cake And Kandy Emporium (CAKE).

It's the place to go if you are searching for cake and candy molds or know how in making specialty candies and cakes. And, if you don't want to take the time to make your own, CAKE is the place to buy European-style truffles, scrumptious candies in all sizes and shapes, fabulous decorated cakes, and even have a customized model of your home made in chocolate.

As part of the Pennsylvania Dutch Food Festival, Nancy will teach clear toy candy making on Monday, February 15, and Wednesday, February 17, at the Cake And Candy Emporium, 2019 Miller Rd., East Petersburg. There is no charge for the event, which includes free sampling of clear toys and chocolates.

Clear toy candy (dierich orde glass) is crystal clear toy candy made in yellow, red, or green shapes of toys and figures. It originated in the mid 1800s when the candy was given to Pennsylvania German children as Christmas presents. The children set their plates each Christmas Eve in anticipation of the Christ-Kindel (Christ Child) riding on a donkey to leave gifts of fruit, nuts, and clear toys.

Because children played with the candy, it was named clear toy candy. Clear toy plates, cups, saucers, pitchers, and baskets graced many tea parties held by Pennsylvania German girls. The boys preferred candy molded in shapes of trains, animals, and scenery.

In the past, two Philadelphia toy mold companies produced most of the metal molds used to shape the candy. The search for the 420 original molds in a wide variety of shapes and sizes continues by collectors.

Nancy buys many antique collections of molds, which she adds to her own collection or sells.

"They are so popular, I can't keep them on the shelves," she said.

In addition, plastic molds, at a more economical cost, are now being manufactured. Nancy said that they work as well as the metal molds but they don't last very long.

In the past, clear toys were also used as Christmas tree ornaments before glass ornaments were made.

Nancy said that the clear toy candy is easy to make when you know how, but many people make it wrong by adding too much coloring.

"The toy should appear crystal clear when it is finished," she said.

Shortly after Nancy opened her first shop, an 80-year-old lady, a former candy maker, came into the store, picked up a piece of toy candy that Nancy had on display and said, "Someday I am going to teach you the proper way to make clear toy candy."

Nancy was delighted. The woman had a rare collection of clear-toy candy molds from the 1940s.

She taught Nancy to make the candy by scooping a handful of corn syrup from a bucket container, a method that Nancy continues to use although she has figured out the precise measurements for those who want the recipe.

Nancy said that her interest in candy making began about 10 years ago when she visited a friend who used turkey-shaped lollipops for Thanksgiving dinner favors.

"When she told me how much

Shoofly pie is among the most popular Pennsylvania Dutch desserts served in Lancaster County. Although not one really knows where the name originated, shoofly pie was probably first created by German immigrant housewives who innovatively used the ingredients that survived the long vogage from Europe — flour, molasses, shortening, brown sugar, and spices. Photo credit PA Dutch Visitors Bureau.

Clear toy syrup is poured into molds, which are available in many shapes and sizes.

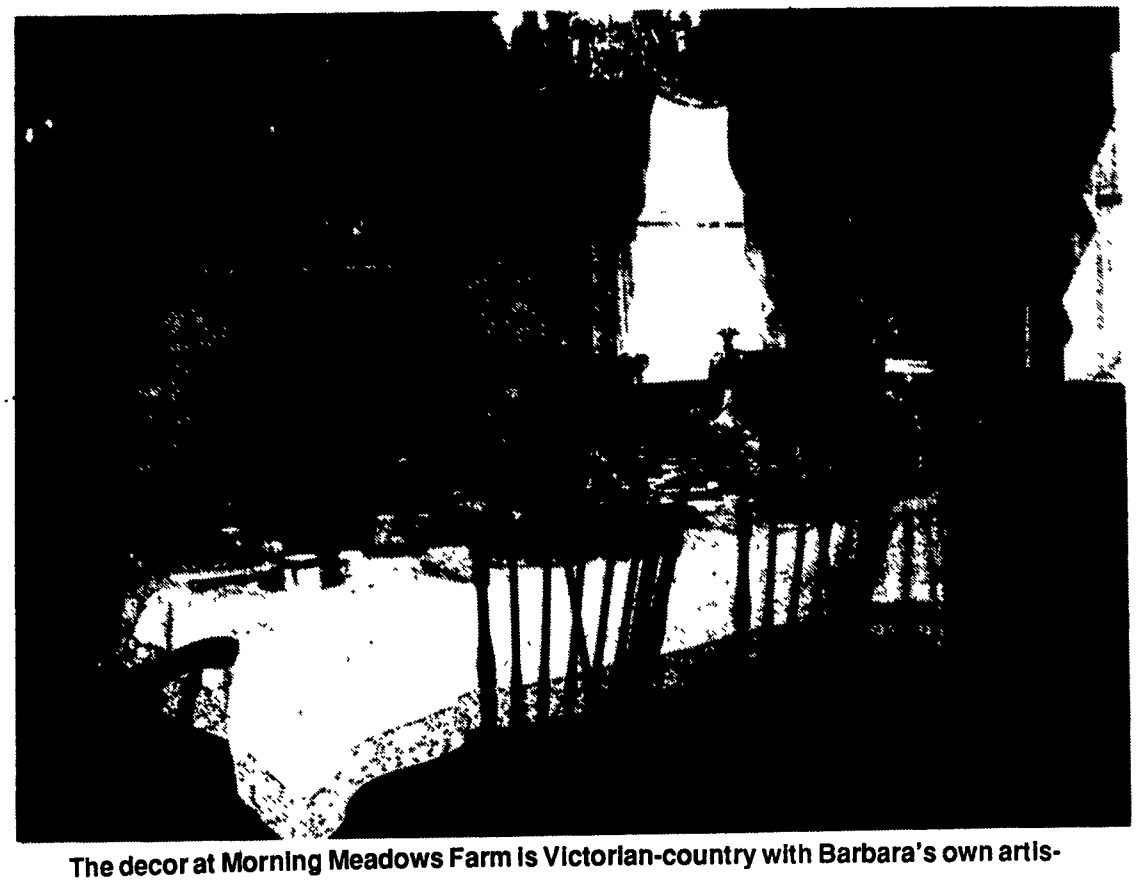
Each of the bedrooms at Morning Meadows Farm has a fireplace, private bath, air conditioning, and is decorated in a different theme. Fresh flowers are placed in each room. If requested, lunch is served in bed; otherwise in the formal dining room.



The decor at Morning Meadows Farm is Victorian-country with Barbara's own artistic flair.

With Harold busy expanding the farm operation, Barb soon learned that if she wanted anything done around the house, she needed to do it herself.

Climbing up and down ladders to reach the high ceilings in the farm house soon became second nature to Barb.

What she claims was once an ugly kitchen with plain cabinets that her husband saw no need to replace (they were in good condition but lacking aesthetics) nudged Barb into applying a lot of elbow grease as she removed the cabinet doors, sanded, and painted them in a shade of deep green. A bold floral print wallpaper in the same shade of green and hues of pink flowers now gives the kitchen a designer look.

Four bedrooms, each with a different theme, are available for guests.

"I do everything I can to make my guests feel special," Barb said. "I never cut corners."

That means the baseboards and every corner of the room is thoroughly cleaned between guests, mints placed on the bed, a pitcher of ice water on a bedside table, and matching linens and towels.

By special request, breakfast will even be served in bed.

Each bedroom has a fireplace, but the Freys do not allow guests to build fires in them because of safety codes. However, they do have electric logs burning in them for effect, and they do light a real fire in the fireplace in the parlor.

Each bedroom also has a color TV, except the children's room, decorated in Jack and Jill theme, which has a TV in an adjoining sitting room with wicker furniture.

The antiques throughout the house are not family heirlooms but have been purchased at local auctions.

"I can always find a bargain and I only go to auctions within a 10-mile radius," Barb said. "People can't believe how often I am able to pick up a piece at a real steal."

Year around, Barb displays her Byer's collection series of dolls and an assortment of old world Santas.

One of Barb's favorite activities is decorating the house to celebrate the different seasons and holidays.

"It takes days to make the transition from one season to another," Barb said.

Now the home is decorated for Valentine's Day and guests will be treated to a late night serving of hot chocolate and dainty cookies by the living room fire.

She is already planning for Easter decorating when she hangs eggs on the outside trees, places a large rabbit with a basket of carrots on the patio, and redoes the wreaths and floral arrangements in a Easter theme.

For mental therapy, Barb said that she finds release in shopping at Root's Country Market and Stauffer's of Kissel Hill.

Barb doesn't know if she will be serving one or 1,000 persons during the Bed and Breakfast tour on February 17, but it doesn't worry her. During the Christmas season, when the Freys' home was on the Marietta Candlelight Tour, more than 3,000 people traipsed through the house.

Guests who tour Morning Meadows Farm on Wednesday, February 17, will be served sausage, waffles with Ginger Peach Sauce or Strawberry Romanoff, choice of cranberry or apple juice, coffee, and fruit attached on skewers to a hand-crafted boxwood tree.

Look on page B6 for recipes for Barb's waffles and toppings under the Feature Recipe heading.

Dear Golden Pride

I am a physician. For more than 40 years, I was a staff member of a large teaching hospital. Much of my effort was devoted to patient diagnostic clinics Also, I taught hundreds of medical students, doctors, and other health science professionals.

Early in my career, I had episodes of high blood pressure. These increased in frequency and severity to a point where my doctors started me on medication some 38 years ago. These medications were changed as serious untoward reactions dictated. On one occasion, I developed signs of diabetes due to the medications. In addition, the control of my blood pressure was less than desirable in spite of the fact that over the 38 years I was given most of the types of blood pressure medicines

A little over a year ago, Harry Hersey came to speak at a Golden Pride meeting which we heard about on a local radio station I attended the meeting and was so impressed that I began taking Formulas #1 and #3 A few months later Formula #7 was introduced and I added it into my routine. After about one month, I had my cholesterol level tested and found it to be in the normal range and my blood pressure had also leveled off to normal. Normal blood pressure for the first time in my adult life seemed miraculous and with no side effects!

I have been pleased with the other FORMULAS FOR HEALTH as well, especially Propolis, which taken as a preventative to infection has saved me and my family from many days of colds and flu. It is the antibiotic of choice, definitely.

Dorin L. Hinerman, M D

Dear Golden Pride:

I am a diabetic. I had severe pains in my legs and could hardly touch them My feet were completely black from sugar diabetes. I had to go to a diabetic clinic in... I was taking 120 units of insulin per day.

I am taking Golden Pride's Formula #1 - one teaspoon each day. When my sugar started coming down, I took off one unit in the morning and one unit at night. Initially, my sugar count went up in the beginning of taking Formula #1 I am down to 80 units now. MY FEET ARE COMPLETELY NORMAL No more black legs and feet. No more fear of amputation!

I had arthritis so bad I couldn't even put a hand on my wrist watch because of so much pain Now you can squeeze my hand and no arthritis pain I am very thankful for Golden Pride.

she had paid for them, I thought if someone else can get that amount of money for doing that, I can do it too," Nancy said.

She did. Then she took a few samples to Doris Thomas, home economist at the Lancaster County Extension office, and asked if she could teach some classes on candy making.

The classes were successful. To advance her knowlege, Nancy began attending every cake or candy making class she heard about both locally and in places as far away as Toronto and England.

Soon people were coming to Nancy's home for more advanced training.

"It got to the point where either the chocolate left or I left," Nancy said of her decision to launch a cake and candy making store. She opened her first store at Fiddler's Green in Lititz. Soon, her business outgrew the space and Nancy moved her business to the newly-developed Village Common in East Petersburg. Within four years, Nancy expanded by doubling the size of her store and by adding four part-time employees.

Classes in many different kinds of candy making and cake decorating are offered throughout the year. Some classes are free; others have a small charge.

"If it doesn't suit someone to attend a regularly scheduled class, we will give private lessons," said Nancy who is always eager to share her expertise.

Students do all the cooking, eating, and cleaning up. If they don't want to eat what they have made, they may take it home with them.

The extent of the candy and cake supplies available at the Emporium can probably be best understood by knowing that more than 175 cake molds are on display. An unusual service is that the molds may be rented or purchased.

CAKE also holds children's parties to teach children to make peanut butter cups, dip pretzels in chocolate, and other specialty candies. CAKE supplies the ingredients and everything needed to make the candy. The kids get to take home the candy that they make.

For more information about classes at the Cake And Kandy Emporium, call (717) 569-5728.

Here is the recipe Nancy will use to make clear toy candy during the demonstrations held during the Pennsylvania Dutch Food Festival, a celebration of food throughout Lancaster County.

CLEAR TOY

2 cups granulated sugar
⅔ cup corn syrup
½ cup water
Red or green food coloring

Oil molds generously with olive oil or spray vegetable shortening. Combine sugar, corn syrup and water in heavy 2-quart saucepan; stir until well mixed. Wash sides of pan (must be perfectly clean above water level). Cook to 300 degrees. DO NOT STIR while cooking. Add food coloring as desired at 165 degrees. DO NOT STIR — boiling action will distribute color. Pour syrup into well oiled molds and let cool. Remove before candy sticks to mold.

Syrup may also be poured into well-oiled flat pans, scored and broken. Store candy in cool, dry place.

Soft pretzel making and sampling is part of the festival events held at Meadowbrook Farmers Market, 345 W. Main St., Leola, from 9a.m. to 8 p.m. on February 19 and 20.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

February. Huummnnnn. Let me think.

There must be something good to say about February.

No, no, no! Just kidding! February is really a neat sort of month, an optimistic pause after the post-holiday, end-of-year-wrap-up-the-farm accounting, pay-up-the--annual-tax-estimates deadlines of January. And it's just too — pick one: early, muddy, frozen, wet, cold, snowy — to begin outside yard and garden work.

Besides, a month in which we pay tribute to fat, furry rodents whose key purpose in life is to not see their shadows, and a month in which we celebrate red hearts and love — is a month obviously aimed at good humor.

In this brief, little month we pause to appreciate special mid-winter pleasures. February, for instance is for enjoying the chickadees.

A pair of these diminutive, perky little forest birds has made themselves at home at our backyard birdfeeders this winter. In past years, the "chicks" only arrived to dine on sunflower seeds when the weather turned snowy, but they've been regulars since November. Tiny as they are, the chicks seem to be some of the most durable of our feathered visitors, dining in even the most bitter, windy weather.

Their favorite feeder is the one our son crafted a few years ago of four-inch PVC drainage pipe. In an ongoing show of aerial acrobatics, the chicks have perfected flying through the baffles of smaller plastic pipe, snatching a black oil seed en route.

Feisty as they are, the chickadees keep a respectable distance when the red-bellied woodpeckers arrive. Equipped with long, lethal-looking bills, the pair of red-bellies tolerates no other bird near the feeder when they're eating. Their usual first choice is the ear of corn stuck on a spike up in the maple tree trunk.

February is for savoring the crispness of outdoors, I'll opt for cross-country skiing under a clear, star-speckled sky — provided, of course, Mother Nature cooperates with a little snow. While it's tempting to snuggle up in the easy chair after chores, a brisk evening walk or glide makes us fitter critters. And helps counter that weakness for late-night snack attacks.

February is for smelling the flowers.

A half-dozen paperwhite narcissus bulbs planted in individual pots last fall provide this wonderful sensory pleasure. By moving the potted bulbs from cold storage to kitchen, one at a time, the heavenly fragrance given off by the successive clusters of tiny, white blooms can be stretched out for weeks.

February is for studying the seed catalogs. The first arrived long before Christmas, with others still trailing. They pile up until February, when the slightly longer afternoons of sunshine stir that inevitable urge to droll over the latest offerings of plants and seeds.

February is when my common sense annually gets suckered in by poetic promises of perfect gardens.

February is for the mountains.

For years, we've set aside a weekend in February to spend at the hunting club cabin. Purpose is....to loaf. Again, preferably with snow to ski and sled on the snowmobile trails and gravel roads that crisscross the mountains around the cabin. Minus snow, we hike, take drives, read (seed catalogs) — and just enjoy sitting by the window watching the birds and squirrels.

February is for hot dogs roasted in the woodstove and hot chocolate from the microwave, for cleaning out junk drawers, reading a novel, mending jeans. It's for homemade bread and popcorn, furry mittens around a snowball, and a bluejay screaming from the pine tree.

February: one of those good things that comes in a small package.

Judges will choose the best pot pie based on flavor, ease of preparation, appearance, texture, and quality of ingredients.

The Pennfield Farms Chicken Pot Pie Cook-Off is the kickoff event for the Pennsylvania Dutch Food Festival held throughout Lancaster County from February 15-20. In addition to the Cook-Off, special events include tours of working farm bed & breakfast inns, lectures and demonstrations, PA Dutch specialties at area restaurants, tours of food processing plants and a community dinner at the Bird-in-Hand Fire Company to benefit the Fire Company and the Clinic for Special Children.

Free Pennsylvania Dutch Food Festival brochures are available at the Central Market (Spring Glen Fresh Foods stand) and at the Pennsylvania Dutch Convention & Visitors Bureau, 501 Greenfield Road, Lancaster or by calling the Bureau at (717) 299-8901.

HEARTY ENGLISH MUFFINS

1 cup sourdough starter
1½ cups milk
¼ cup brown sugar
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 tablespoon salt
½ cup pecan meal (finely chopped pecans)
½ cup quick-cooking oats
3½ cups flour sifted with
¾ teaspoon baking soda

Combine all ingredients except the flour and baking soda. Sift the baking soda with 2½ cups flour into the bowl. Beat by hand 300 times. Stir in enough flour to make dough easy to handle, about one cup. Knead lightly floured board for five minutes. Let rise, covered, in greased bowl for 8 hours.

Sprinkle a large cookie sheet with corn meal; set aside.

Place dough on lightly floured board and knead 20 times. Flatten to 3/8 inch and cut out ten muffins (use a wide mouth jar ring). Divide the leftovers in two and lightly knead into last two muffins. Place muffins on prepared cookie sheet and let rise at least 90 minutes. Sprinkle tops lightly with corn meal.

Preheat a griddle to medium heat. Gently lift muffins by hand onto the griddle. They will rise but not spread as they cook. Cook for 10 minutes, turn and cook 10 minutes more. Muffins will be lightly browned. Muffin is finished baking when a tooth pick inserted in the middle comes out clean.

Serve muffins hot from the griddle or toast them.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Carolyn Norwood, Irwin, wanted a recipe for spinach pie. Thanks to Fran Westfall, Spring Grove, for sending one, although she isn't sure that this is what the Carolyn wanted. If anyone has a lowfat, no cholesterol recipe for Spinach Pie, please send it.

Chicken and Spinach Pie

Cornmeal Pastry:
- 1⅔ cups all-purpose flour
- ¼ cup yellow cornmeal
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¾ cup cold unsalted butter, cut up
- 1 large egg, lightly beaten
- 2 teaspoons white vinegar
- 1 to 2 tablespoons ice water

Filling
- 1¼ pounds boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- Salt
- 2 10-ounce packages frozen chopped spinach, cooked
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1½ teaspoons minced garlic
- ¼ cup raisins
- ¼ cup pine nuts or slivered almonds, toasted
- 4 ounces thinly sliced prosciutto or other ham, julienned
- 2 large eggs, lightly beaten
- ¾ cup heavy cream or evaporated milk
- ¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper

Cornmeal pastry: Combine flour, cornmeal and salt in a medium bowl. With pastry blender or 2 knives, cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. In small bowl, combine egg, vinegar, and 1 tablespoon ice water. Sprinkle over cornmeal mixture, stirring with fork just until dough holds together, adding water if necessary. Shape dough into disk. Wrap and refrigerate at least 30 minutes.

Filling: Meanwhile, combine chicken with 1 teaspoon salt and water to cover in large saucepan. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer gently 10 minutes. Drain, then cool to room temperature. Shred into bite-size pieces.

Meanwhile squeeze excess liquid from frozen spinach. Heat oil and butter in large skillet over medium-high heat. Add spinach, garlic, raisins, pine nuts, and proscuitto. Cook, stirring occasionally, until liquid is evaporated, 5 minutes. Transfer to large bowl. Add chicken, eggs, cream, ½ teaspoon salt and pepper.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Divide pastry into 2 pieces, one slighly larger than the other. Between 2 sheets of floured wax papper, roll larger piece into 11-inch circle. Fit into 9-inch pie pan. Spoon filling into pie pan. Roll remaining pastry as directed above into 10-inch circle. Brush edge of bottom pastry with water. Place pastry over filling; trim and flute edges. Cut vents on top crust. Bake 45 to 50 minutes, until pastry is golden brown. Makes 8 servings.

Research Shows Parrots Think Before They Talk

TUCSON, Ariz. — Thousands of parrots flock together in the Amazon like a yelling, squawking jungle stock exchange. The messages in their noisy chatter, a trademark sound of rain forests the world over, have remained a mystery.

But in a University of Arizona laboratory in the Sonoran Desert, a talkative African gray parrot named Alex may be spilling the secrets of his wild cousins in Africa, Asia and South America.

The surprise is the apparent intelligence behind Alex's speech, how he processes general information, say scientists and conservationists familiar with the growing data from ethologist Irene Pepperberg's 15 years of research.

"What shape?" she asks, holding up a square piece of yellow paper.

Reaching for it with one greedy talon while clamped with the other to his perch on the back of a folding metal chair, Alex answers: "Four-corner."

From a tray of several toys, he succeeds in picking out the red one.

"Wool," he squawks, indicating the fuzzy red wool ball. Alex can correctly identify the color, shape, and material of hundreds of small toys.

"Saying something is red or yellow is an absolute judgment, but to say something is bigger or smaller, that's relative," Pepperberg explains. "And for a long time, people thought animals other than chimpanzees couldn't do that type of task. Well, we've been able to show a bird can."

With his nearly 100-word vocabulary, Alex has a wide repertoire of tasks. By answering categorical questions, he tends to prove he is not just mimicking — or parroting — words.

Pepperberg's research is the first to show that parrot vocalizations can actually be meaningful instead of just mimicry, Donald R. Griffin, an animal-behavior authority and professor emeritus at Rockefeller University in New York City, tells National Geographic.

Such a discovery could do for threatened wild birds what it has done for chimpanzees, dolphins and whales, suggests Charles Munn, a research zoologist with Wildlife Conservation International, a division of the New York Zoological Society.

The intelligence of those species has helped make them profitable fund-raising mascots for the environmental movement. It has won them legal protection from overhunting, habitat destruction and the pet trade.

Pepperberg says a prime motive in her research "is to educate the public that these birds are sentient beings."

But are animals with intelligence more important than those without it?

"No," she says. "But once you interest people in an animal to which they can relate, they will begin to realize that destroying their habitat will kill them off. It's not just the parrot that will be saved when the rain forests are saved or when the clear-cutting ends in Africa. All the species involved will be saved, and that's really what's important."

But more knowledge about parrot intelligence can also make the birds more desirable as pets. The Wild Bird Conservation Act of 1992, signed by President Bush in October, imposed an immediate moratorium on the import of eight species of birds thought to be especially at risk from the pet trade.

Conservation groups estimate that parrots account for roughly half of the 500,000 birds imported legally and illegally into the United States each year. African gray parrots are not included in the moratorium, because they are still widely found in Africa. They are classified as threatened, not endangered.

Correctly calling out the color and number of these keys is easy for this Afican gray parrot named Alex. Ethologist Irene Pepperberg of the University of Arizona says she has taught the bird to identify the color, shape, and material of hundreds of small toys and to distinguish between bigtger and smaller sizes.

Pepperberg explains that her bird-training technique is based on "what these birds probably do in the wild." She creates a social atmosphere in which parrots learn by watching and hearing their peers and parents.

Traditional techniques basically rely on repetition of words until the bird says the word and is rewarded with a food item that doesn't relate to the word's meaning. But Pepperberg teaches Alex by letting him watch her "teach" a person who serves as a model.

Pepperberg holds an object and repeats its name until the model says it correctly. She then rewards the model with the object, not food.

Alex learns as he might from his parents in the wild. Pepperberg now uses Alex as the model for some of the training of two younger birds.

Recognition of Pepperberg's work has taken time, says Griffin, because of skepticism among scientists long trained in the strict behavioralist tradition that animals have no real thoughts or consciousness.

Pepperberg prefers to let others interpret what she has proved about Alex. Griffin, who has written textbooks on animal thought, believes her work does suggest what goes on in an animal's head.

"Here is a case where an animal's communication tells us he is really thinking . . . and it's rather unlikely he's the only one," Griffin says. "It's a sort of opening up of the whole recognition of mental versatility of non-human animals. Insofar as her research is correct, it changes the whole way we think about parrots and other animals."

Pepperberg hopes to reinforce her findings with two younger African grays — Kyaaro and Alo — that she has been training for a year in Tucson.

But other scientists are already incorporating her findings into their own research. Pepperberg's work has helped confirm Munn's belief that these "incredibly noisy" animals really are communicating ideas.

When thousands of parrots come together in the wild "like a stock exchange with a lot of shouting and yelling, they're probably trying to trade off information about the resources they use," he says.

Munn's own bird-conservation research in the Peruvian Amazon has taught him that "different shrieks mean different things" to parrots. For example, he says he can identify vocalizations used by the colorful Amazon parrot to signal such things as a U-turn in flight or a brief flight from one tree to another.

But Alex's revelations have convinced Munn that parrots in the wild could be communicating complex information such as seasonal variations of fruit and the navigational problems of finding that fruit in dense forest.

With a life expectancy of more than 50 years, Alex may yet reveal much more — and redefine what it means to be bird-brained.

A talkative African gray parrot named Alex may be spilling secrets in a University of Arizona laboratory about how his cousins in rain forests throughout the world process general information. The apparent intelligence behind Alex's speech indicates that parrot vocalizations may be more than just mimicry.

Laughter Is Healing

When was the last time you had a good laugh?

Unfortunately, most of us have become far too serious, losing touch with the importance of fun.

Researchers say you will stay healthier if you laugh 15 to 20 times a day for at least 20 seconds each time. Humor and laughter are positive, healthy ways to deal with stress and change. But many people have difficulty taking time to laugh or finding something to laugh about.

People are not born with a sense of humor, but they can develop it. Here are some suggestions to help you add more laughter to your life:

* Recognize the value of humor. Don't worry or analyze why people laugh — just participate.

* Adopt a playful attitude. Be open to silly and outrageous things.

* Think funny. See the funny side of every situation.

* Laugh at yourself. Acknowledge and accept that you are not perfect.

* Laugh with others for what they do rather than for what they are.

* Surround yourself with happy people.

* Take yourself — but not your responsibilities — lightly.

* Clip some stories, articles or cartoons that make you laugh and keep them in your own "humor kit." Use the kit frequently on yourself and others.

Humor can be a major tool for gaining insight. It can help you laugh at some of your own quirks as well as laugh with others at their fun-worthy failings.

Laughing may not cure all your ills, but it can make the bad times easier to take.

ANSWER — Linda Modica, Asbury, N.J., wanted a recipe for the thick custard filling used in the extra large eclairs sold at an Amish stand at the Meadowbrook Market in Leola. Thanks to Jill Groff, Manheim, for sending what she calls an excellent recipe to fill large eclairs or cream puffs.

Cream Puff Dough

1 cup water
1 cup flour
4 eggs
⅓ cup salad oil
½ teaspoon salt

Bring water and oil to a boil. Sift together flour and salt. Add all at once to water and stir vigorously over low heat until mixture forms a ball and leaves sides of a pan. Remove from heat and cool slightly. Add unbeaten eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Drop by tablespoons on greased baking sheet. Bake 15 minutes at 425 degrees, reduce heat to 375 and bake an additional 20 minutes. Cool and fill.

Filling:

2 tablespoons butter
¾ cup granulated sugar
2 cups milk
2 egg yolks
¼ cup cornstarch
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Melt butter, blend in cornstarch, sugar, and salt. Gradually add milk and heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Stir into slightly beaten egg yolks. Return to heat and cook 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Add vanilla, stir and cool. Fill cream puffs while filling is still warm. Sprinkle with confectioner's sugar or ice with chocolate frosting.

ANSWER — Thanks to Jane Ferguson, Kirkwood, and to Phyllis Kelley, Hillsboro, Ohio, for sending a recipe for taffy apples on a stick and one for candy apples (cinnamon).

Apples On A Stick

2 cups sugar
⅔ cup light corn syrup
1 cup water
Dash salt
½ teaspoon red food coloring

Stir until mixture dissolves over low heat. Continue cooking without stirring to 300 degrees (hard crack stage) Twirl apples in syrup, drain, and place on buttered surface to set.

Candy Apples

2 cups granulated sugar
½ cup white corn syrup
¾ cup water
Red food coloring
½ teaspoon oil of cinnamon
12 red apples
12 wooden sticks

Cook sugar, corn syrup, and water in a small saucepan stirring until 300 degrees is reached or brittle stage. During cooking, any crystals thrown on the sides of pan should be washed off with a damp cloth wrapped around the tines of a fork. Remove syrup from heat and set at once in hot water. Add coloring and flavoring and mix well. Insert sticks in blossom end of apples and plunge into the syrup and draw it out quickly and twirl until syrup is spread smoothly over apples. Place on waxed paper (not letting them touch) until they have hardened.

Phyllis writes that she learned to make these in the 1950s. She just retired as a teacher's aide and secretary. Now her hobby is collecting recipes and cooking.

Floral Design With Herbs And Everlastings Appeal To Growers

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — During the Pennsylvania Vegetable Conference held in Hershey recently, Keppy Arnoldsen told growers how to use herbs and everlastings in floral arrangements.

"My favorite way to use herbs is to add them to fresh cut flowers," she said. "They add wonderful aromas and create interest that really enhances floral design."

Foliage from herbs varies in shades of green, gray, yellow, and burgundy and in an assortment of texture and shapes. Herbs add unique touches to arrangements because the leaves can be feathery of leathery; soft or glossy.

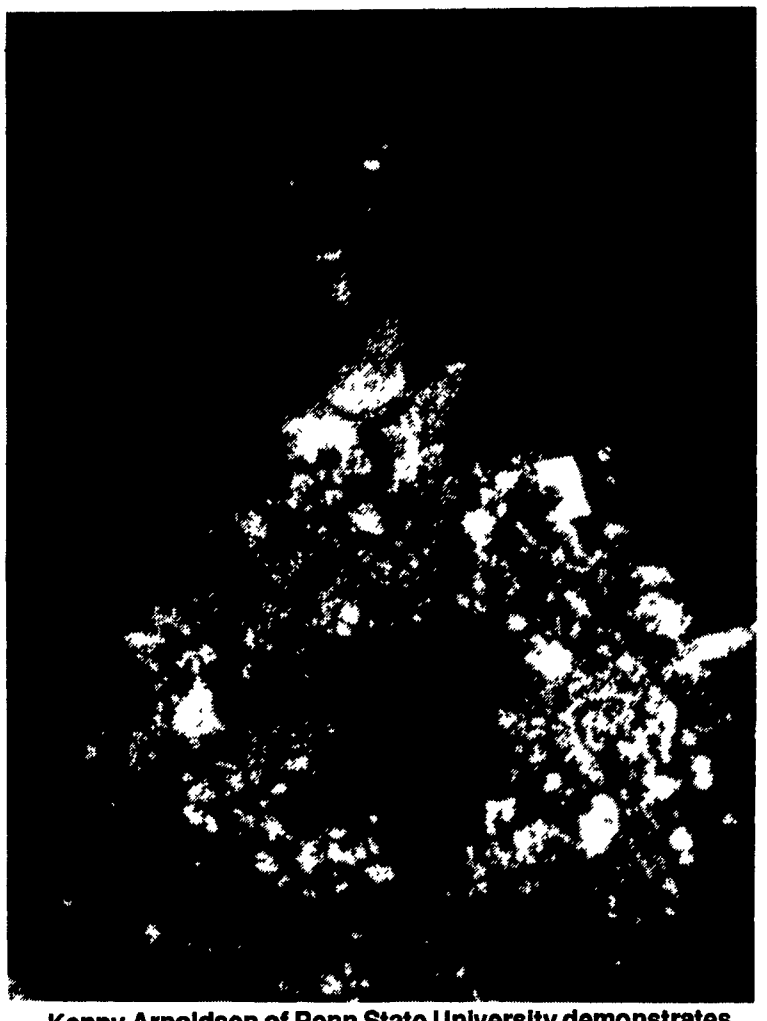
Arnoldsen, who is works in the horticulture department at Penn State University and previously operated an interiorscaping business in Southern California, displayed several wreaths. She often inserts fresh herbs into wreaths and lets them dry after the wreath is finished.

"It will look a bit wilted for awhile, but it gives off a wonderful aroma and in a few weeks it is completely dried," she said.

Slides of wreaths, garlands, nosegays, and floral arrangements showed how simple or how complex the finished design may be. One wreath simply used potatoes.

Arnoldsen arranged a wreath by using a base of foam covered with moss as the audience watched. Other bases can be used such as grape vine rings, metal frames, cardboard or foam forms. The base should be completely covered with dried materials such as Spanish or sphagnum moss.

The audience examines wreaths made with herbs and flowers during the Pennsylvania Vegetables Conference and Trade Show.



Keppy Arnoldsen of Penn State University demonstrates floral design with fresh herbs and everlastings.

In the wreath that Arnoldsen made, she used a variety of herbs such as thyme, lavender, statice, caspia, rosemary, winged everlasting, Cleveland sage, and others.

The dried materials may be attached to the base either with a hot glue gun or wired.

Participants at the conference were given a list of herbs that are good for drying and for fragrance in potpourris.

For readers interested in knowing more about using herbs and everlastings in floral design, Arnoldsen suggested the following books, which can be purchased at bookstores or borrowed from libraries: "Flower Decoration" published by Gallery Books; "Wreath Book" by Rob Pulleyn; "Heirloom Herbs" published by Villiard Books; and "Herbs: A Practical Guide."

EFFECTIVE TIME MANAGEMENT FOR POULTRY PRODUCERS

Dennis E. Buffington
Professor & Head
Dept. of Agricultural & Biological Engineering

Each of us are facing pressures to "do more with less." Many of us bought fancy computer systems to do more work for us and save us time.

Years ago people were forecasting that the work week would decrease to 35 hours or maybe as low as 30 hours. After the investments in computer systems and many systems of automation to improve efficiencies, we find that the work week has actually increased. What happened?

I am not exactly sure, but effective time management will help us regain some of the hours that are stolen from us each week because of inefficient management of time.

An anecdote is told about a woodsman who bought a new ax. With his new ax, he was able to chop 20 trees per day. After a while he found he was working more hours per day and chopping fewer trees. Finally it got to the point where he was only chopping 10 trees and working 16 hours per day. When someone asked him why he didn't sharpen his ax, he responded, "I'm too busy; I have to chop down more trees."

We probably cannot identify one single thing to do that will significantly decrease the demands on our time. However, there are many small incremental changes that we can make to increase the effectiveness of our time utilization.

For example, saving just 30 seconds every five minutes translates into saving one hour for every ten-hour work day. Such time savings are indeed significant!

The first essential requirement to use time more efficiently is to create a neat, efficient, organized work environment. Spending modest amounts of money to create an organized work environment is money well spent if you can save several hours of time per week.

With many demands on everyone's time, it is easy to lose sight of the really important things that need to be done. Often we find we are spending our time "putting out brush fires." Developing and using a master "to do" list is very effective. At the end of each day, create a "to do" list for the next day, with the items of highest priority at the top of the list.

Undoubtedly, there will be days when not everything is completed on your list; however, it is important to start each day with a clear vision of your priorities for the day rather than just diving into the work.

Each of us knows our individual prime time of the day. For some, it may be the period before sunrise until breakfast. For others it may be from 7 a.m. until 11 a.m. or in the late afternoon. The night owls might find that their prime time is from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Do the most important work in your prime hours since this is when you are most alert, most efficient, and most productive.

One of the worst enemies of effective time management is procrastination. I find it hard to say that no one should procrastinate when I realize that I waited until the last minute to prpare this article for Lancaster Farming. Developing and using "to do" lists will reduce the tendency to procrastinate.

Often when a procrastinated job is finally completed, we wonder why we put it off so long because it wasn't a nearly as difficult task as we thought it would be.

Another effective way to reduce the tendency to procrastinate is to set completion deadlines for ourselves and to stick with the deadlines as firmly as though the deadlines were appointments with other people.

With effective time management, we really can "count our chickens before they are hatched" because there is a guarantee that effective time management will yield several hours per week of additional time available. The new-found hours can be enjoyed by spending more time with family, indulging in some hobbies, or relaxing with any activity.

In short, we need to take command of our work and our chickens rather than letting them take command of us.

The teams have been practicing for the contest for the last 12 weeks. The contest consists of:

- Deciding if each of 100 potatoes is either in or out of grade - a time and accuracy relationship.
- Identifying 20 potato defects on 40 potatoes.
- Placing 2 classes of 4 plates of potatoes.

The 4-H judging process is designed to help youth develop decision-making skills. Decision-making skills are related to the character of the individual for the rest of their life.

JOHN DEERE 7240 MAXEMERGE 2 PLANTER

Narrow it down from corn to beans... widen your options in no-till

Only one planter offers MaxEmerge 2 Planter accuracy for both narrow-row beans and wider-row corn – the 7240 MaxEmerge 2 Planter.

For beans, engage all the units and plant eleven 15-inch rows. For corn, simply lock up every other unit and plant six 30-inch rows. For heavy residue or no-till ground, equip your 7240 Planter with frame-mounted coulters, heavy-duty down-force springs, row cleaners, and other conservation-minded options.

Best of all, you still get the outstanding depth control of Tru-Vee™ openers – and the excellent seed spacing of John Deere's VacuMeter system. It offers up to 17 percent better seed spacing in corn than finger pickup units – lots more in soybeans.‡

Now you can accurately narrow down your choices to one planter that's right for corn, narrow-row beans, and conservation fields – the 7240 MaxEmerge 2 Planter.

‡ Your results may vary based on field conditions, planting rate, and seed size

Sheep Producers Urged To File Early

DENVER, Colo.—With the end of the year quickly approaching, now is the time for sheep producers to begin thinking about applying for the 1992 wool incentive payment.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will announce an average 1992 wool price at the end of March 1993, at which time a wool incentive rate will be calculated. The support level for the 1992 marketing year is $1.97.

To ensure that all wool sold during the 1992 marketing year is included in determining the average price, ASCS requests that all producers file for payment by Jan. 31. Filing by this date ensures a timely issuance of incentive checks, which will be processed around April 15. The absolute deadline for filing is March 1.

To be eligible to receive an incentive payment, producers must own the sheep, which were shorn, for a minimum of 30 days and may only recieve an incentive payment on the net proceeds received for shorn wool. The net proceeds equal gross sales less all marketing charges. Producers also are eligible to receive a payment on all unshorn lambs sold that were owned a minimum of 30 days.

Previously, ASCS allowed producers to file sales receipts that were two to three years old. New rules implemented last year now state that receipts for any wool or unshorn lambs sold must be submitted for payment during the same year as the sale. Producers currently holding older receipts may petition their local ASCS office.

Additionally, the maximum incentive payment any one producer can receive for the 1992 marketing year now is $175,000. Producers who meet certain eligibility requirements, however, may qualify to increase this amount by applying for payments under three different entities.

For additional information about the wool incentive payment program, please contact your local ASCS office or the American Sheep Industry Association, 6911 S. Yosemite St., Englewood, CO 80112, (303)771-3500.

Evaluate Nutrient Needs Before Building Facility

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Livestock and poultry managers should calculate nutrient management requirements before building a new facility for expansion, say two Penn State agronomists.

"Before proposing a new facility as part of a business plan, it's prudent to evaluate the costs and returns of the facility under different sets of nutrient management conditions," said Dr. Les Lanyon, associate professor of agronomy. "Different conditions require different manure application practices and perhaps alternative methods of dealing with manure."

For livestock and poultry managers who wish to make their own calculations, the local Penn State Cooperative Extension office or conservation district office can assist. Private consultants and companies also can handle these calculations.

Livestock and poultry managers should first estimate the available nutrients in the manure and compare that to the requirements of their crops. Since the availability of nitrogen in manure varies with how it is handled and applied, calculations for different periods before incorporation will result in different acreages required to balance the supply with the crop needs.

"For example, there is less than half as much available N in unincorporated manure than in manure that is incorporated immediately," said Lanyon.

A nutrient management plan based on nitrogen will require more than twice as many acres when manure is incorporated immediately than when manure is unincorporated.

"Even though a nutrient management plan may call for applying manure but not plowing it under, nutrients might still be incorporated into the soil by rainfall," said Dr. Douglas Beegle, associate professor of agronomy.

Incorporation of manure and increased availability of the nitrogen will occur with one-half inch of rain within 3 to 4 days of manure application. This amount of rain is very likely in the early spring when manure is being spread.

Calculating the available nitrogen with no incorporation followed by another estimate of the nitrogen with incorporation after three days can illustrate the range in nitrogen that likely will be available to crops under different conditions. This figure can help in deciding how many acres will be routinely required to manage nutrients for crop production and environmental protection.

Another preliminary calculation would be to estimate the balance between the phosphorus in the manure and the phosphorus requirements of the crops to be grown. "Losses of phosphorus during manure handling and spreading are generally much less than for nitrogen," said Lanyon. "The area required for phosphorus application can be several times greater than the area required to supply the nitrogen needed by crops."

There's also a possibility of unexpected costs. The requirements for nitrogen and phosphorus management may change during the life of the mortgage or loan on a new facility. Additional acres may be required for manure application at additional costs, or alternatives to land application at the site of the new facility may need to be developed.

It's also important to get an accurate estimate of nutrients in a planned manure storage. Estimating the actual nutrients to be excreted by the animals is a good starting point to evaluate a proposal for a new livestock or poultry facility. This calculation will indicate the maximum amount of nutrients that will have to be managed.

Manure samples from comparable manure storages can be used to estimate the nutrients that will be available to be applied to crops. But if the samples are unrepresentative of the manure actually in the storage, then estimates of the area required for manure application may be misleading. "Truly representative samples are difficult to collect from some types of manure storage structures," said Lanyon.

If there is a large difference between the estimate of nutrients produced and the estimate of nutrients coming out of a proposed storage, the proposed storage and handling system should be evaluated in more detail. The source of the difference between the nutrients produced and the estimated removal from a storage may be in the estimates of manure production, losses unaccounted during handling, or in the difficulty in sampling comparable storages.

If the problem is in sampling, that may signal potential management problems. There may actually be more manure nutrients to manage than are estimated by the samples. Manure solids that are difficult to agitate can accumulate in some storages. The nutrients in these solids will need to be handled in a safe way, as will the rest of the nutrients Problems in sampling also can mean that the nutrient content of the manure removed from the storage varies widely.

Delivering a dependable amount of nutrients to the crop fields, even when the necessary number of acres is available, will be difficult when this happens. In either case, more effort will be required to manage nutrients for crop production and environmental protection. These management demands should be considered before the project is begun.

Finally, different projected crop yields can be used in the calculations. "Projected yields should rarely exceed by more than 20 to 25 percent the average yields for the last five years," said Beegle. It's also important to do additional calculations to estimate the different acreages required at average and below average crop yields.

The final projected crop area for manure application probably will be a compromise between all the different calculations, Lanyon and Beegle agree. "After making these calculations, it may be necessary to modify the business plan for the proposed livestock or poultry facility to cover costs of manure application on a larger number of acres, to develop a management strategy to enhance potential crop yields, or to find an alternative way to deal with the manure produced."

If these calculations are done before building the facility, the livestock or poultry manager will know the most demanding case from the outset. A contingency plan then can be made in case of changing on-farm decisions or new governmental policies.

Say Yes To Yogurt

Yogurt, that tart pudding with the foreign sounding name, has become synonymous with a healthy lifestyle in the last several years. Quick and easy to eat, low-fat yogurt should be a frequent part of your cholesterol lowering meals and snacks.

Yogurt is made when special bacteria are added to milk. The result is a smooth, pudding-like texture with a tangy taste. Heart-healthy yogurts made with low-fat or skim milk are perfect for cholesterol-lowering diets since they provide little or no fat and only a small amount of cholesterol. In addition, yogurt contains the same amount of protein and B-vitamins as milk, and also contains more calcium.

Yogurt is delicious by itself, but it can also be very useful in cooking. Yogurt can be seasoned with herbs or sweetened with honey. It can be thickened for a sauce or thinned for a creamy drink. And it is the perfect low-fat substitute for sour cream, milk, or heavy cream. Read on for cooking tips and suggestions that will help make yogurt a staple in your heart-healthy meals.

Yogurt Cooking Tips

* To measure yogurt, spoon into a measuring cup and level off with a straight-edged spatula.

* Gently stir or fold yogurt into other ingredients to maintain its delicate gel structure.

* Stir yogurt before using to mix the liquid that may have separated.

* Keep heat low when cooking with yogurt since high temperatures can cause separation, evaporation, and curdling. Flavor and nutrition, however, are not affected by heat.

* To keep yogurt from separating, blend a small amount with one tablespoon of cornstarch. Stir the mixture into the remaining cup of yogurt and use in recipes according to directions.

* To use as a base for soups, casseroles, or sauces, add two tablespoons of all-purpose flour to each cup of yogurt.

* To make yogurt thicker, drain for at least two hours.

* To make yogurt cheese, line a strainer with two layers of cheesecloth or a coffee filter. Spoon plain yogurt into the strainer. Place a bowl underneath to catch the liquid that separates out, and refrigerate for 24 hours. One quart of yogurt makes 2 cups of yogurt cheese. One cup of yogurt cheese has about 200 calories. Season yogurt cheese with herbs and spices and use as a dip or spread on crackers. Or, substitute for cottage, ricotta, or cream cheese in recipes.

Yogurt Quick Meal Ideas

* Blend plain low-fat or non-fat yogurt with fresh or canned fruit for a refreshing dessert or snack.

* Add lemon or vanilla yogurt to fruit dishes, salad dressings, and desserts for a cooling flavor.

* Mix fruited yogurt with fresh fruit and blend with crushed ice for a tropical experience.

* Marinate meat or poultry in yogurt before grilling for a moist dish with a tang.

* Mix two tablespoons of salsa with one cup of yogurt to make a spicy dip.

* Creamy, frozen yogurt is a great substitute for high-fat ice cream. It is lower in fat, compared to an otherwise "sinful" dessert.

While you might be tempted to eat gallons of fat-free frozen yogurt to satisfy your sweet tooth, remember that frozen yogurt, for the most part, is sugar. The majority of frozen yogurts do not contain the beneficial bacteria or the abundance of nutrients found in regular yogurt. So enjoy fat-free frozen yogurt in small amounts as a substitute for high-fat desserts.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

As we have quite a bit of woodland on our farm, we also have a lot of fallen dead trees. My husband has been sawing this wood for our son to burn in his stove. Our daughter and son-in-law in Wyoming County also bought a new stove to help heat their house.

The year before we moved from the farmhouse, we installed a new furnace that burned wood but automatically switched over to fuel oil if the water temperature dropped. Allen spent most of that winter hauling very large chunks of wood in the wheelbarrow to satisfy the furnace's need for fuel.

I like trees and do not like to see them cut down as it takes so long to grow another to replace the one that is removed. However, our son in Atlanta has weeks of work because a big oak tree fell on the corner of his house. Now he must repair his chimney, the railing on the deck, the roof and replace the rain gutters. Till he gets all of that done, I'm not sure how he will feel about trees.

Recently, I reread a letter that one of my sisters sent to me long ago. In it, she tells me that she feels that I got her interested in wild flowers. And, I in turn would say that my father got me interested in plants and trees. As we worked in the fields, he would name each weed that we hoed out of the tobacco field.

Often we do not realize how we influence others. Sometimes people will say to me, "Do you remember what you said?" No, I don't know but they remembered. Everything that we hear, see or read influences us in some manner. A teacher's influence extends beyond the classroom. Even in our families, there is no way to know what our children will remember about us.

Breakfast In School Is Cool With Pizza

SYRACUSE, New York — Designed to increase milk sales through increased student participation in the School Breakfast Program, the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council's (ADADC) "Breakfast in School is Cool" promotion resulted in a six percent increase in breakfast participation across ADADC's region. New breakfast items such as breakfast pizza, egg in a cheese pocket, and pancake on a stick were offered to entice students to eat a healthy breakfast in school.

Cranberry the Clown, Raggedy Ann and Andy and Moo Moo the Cow, along with other notable celebrities, visited various schools to encourage students to eat school breakfast. Coloring, poster and slogan contests were conducted during the promotion with ice cream and pizza parties, t-shirts, stuffed animals, sport bags and caps offered as prizes for best classroom participation.

To enhance the promotion, ADADC provided colorful neon posters and stickers to catch the attention of the students, brochures for parents, clip art and a list of school breakfast ideas for school food service directors. In addition to providing promotional materials, ADADC began marketing a new nutrition program to second grade teachers called Healthy Choices: Balanced Meals. This program reinforces the benefits of school breakfast while teaching students about the four food groups.

Fifteen media outlets, including television and radio stations in major markets, aired interviews with ADADC staff who focused on children's health and the importance of eating breakfast.

Research studies in Boston showed students who ate school breakfast scored better on standardized tests than those who didn't eat breakfast. The same study showed less absenteeism and tardiness among students who ate breakfast. School breakfast not only helps students; dairy farmers benefit through increased milk sales since a carton of milk is a standard part of school breakfasts.

ADADC will continue in 1993 to work with food service directors and teachers in elementary schools by providing educational and promotional materials promoting healthy meals which include the four food groups. A refresher kit will be mailed to school in time for National School Breakfast Week in March.

The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. is a dairy promotion organization representing dairy producers in New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Ridge Walnuts Bring Home Blue Ribbons

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

NEW PARIS (Bedford Co.) — This year, George Dickum brought home six blue ribbons and eight other places from the Pennsylvania State Farm Show. They were all for his outstanding edible nuts.

The ribbons were added to the pile he has already won at both state and national levels.

Dickum's interest in horticulture goes back many years. He was reading a magazine article when he first learned about the Carpathian walnut. "My forefathers came from the Carpathian Mountains in Czechoslovakia. I knew that was a cold weather country and it surprised me. I spoke to my mother about it, then, just tucked the information in my head for later use."

Years later, he was strolling through the Herman Furry orchard near New Enterprise and became interested in Furry's method of grafting walnut trees to black walnut. "Right after that, I wanted to try it myself," he remembers.

Then a steelworker in Johnstown, Dickum planted a few trees near his home in Geistown. When the family moved a few years later, he took his orchard along.

"My greatest desire was to live in Bedford County," Dickum remembers. "I always loved this area. And, I knew that if apples would grow in Chestnut Ridge, so would nut trees. They require the same type of soil."

Seventeen years ago, he bought a small 12-acre farm just outside of Schellsburg, and planted as many nut trees as he could afford.

Now a leading member of the Northern Nutgrowers Association, George has won prizes in both state and national competition. National competition is held in Nebraska and he has taken both first and second places there.

This May, he plans to travel to New Zealand to a nut growers symposium. "I would like to learn how I could earn international recognition," Dickum explains.

He says he has been disappointed that Pennsylvania State University has not paid more attention to the need for nut trees in the north.

"They are an old and valuable food source," explains the outgoing and knowledgeable Dickum. "And, English walnuts have only good cholesterol. They are a good meat substitute."

He says Nebraska is now leading the nation in the study of nut trees. "Last year I returned from a trip to find a botanist from Nebraska wanting to see some of my trees," Dickum says.

Dickum explains the importance of developing food growing areas in the north. "Irrigation such as they are doing in northern California can only last so long, when they eventually hit salt water, it will all end. The cold weather fruits and vegetables that can be grown in the north will be a valuable source of food. And, nuts will be included."

English walnuts grown in the cold weather areas of the country are larger and sweeter than those normally shipped from California. "Candy makers love them," he explains. "They can get the whole walnut out of the shell to dip in chocolate."

The Dickum farm now includes a tree nursery where George has a number of cloned varieties of nut trees. Included are his English walnut grafted to black walnut; buart nut which is a cross between a butternut and heart nut; a pecan grafted to hickory (they are both in the same family), and his giant sized Napier filbert, named in honor of Napier Township.

Last year, George and his two sons who live in the area picked 1,500 pounds of various types of nut. There are about 30 pounds of nuts to the bushel.

Nuts sell for $1.50 to $2 per pound. "It's a lucrative business," George points out. "If you would plant yourself a nice grove of nut trees at age 40, the trees would be keeping you by the time you reached 65."

While Dickum has a few fruit trees intermingled in his orchard, he prefers the nut trees. "One reason is that I don't have to worry about bee pollination," he says. "Nut trees are all wind pollinated."

Cold weather is not as detrimental to the nut trees and frost in the spring does not seem to harm them.

Grafting does require 85-degree temperatures lasting for at least 30 days. "However, we find we can cover the graft area with plastic and the summer sun will maintain the temperature we need even if the air temperature lets us down," he explains.

Like all plant species, the nut trees and filbert nut bushes do have enemies. The husk fly can lay eggs in the shell causing them to rot. Therefore, the Dickums find it necessary to spray.

The peskiest pests, however, are the squirrels and deer. Deer attack only the chestnut trees, but squirrels will eat any kind of nuts.

"They think they found heaven when they get in here," Dickum grins.

To combat the fuzzy tailed tree rats, he uses both traps and Jack Russell Terrier dogs. Jack Russells were originally bred to kill fox and will attack a squirrel with equal ferocity.

The Dickums use the nuts in many forms of cooking including cookies and they add crushed walnuts to their hamburg for a real taste treat.

George points to the location of the graft of an English walnut onto a black walnut tree.

George Dickum in a nursery of nut trees.

Nuts from the Dickum orchards are also marketed all across the county. "Mostly by word of mouth," he explains. "Someone gets them, gives a few away, and before long I'm getting more orders."

A wide variety of handmade nutcrackers provides ready samples for browsing customers. He is presently working on a belt-driven model of a nutcracker which he hopes to be able to offer to local farmers with black walnut trees on their land. "The worst part about those is the cracking," he says.

Another source of nut income for George is the trees themselves. "About March," he explains, "As soon as you can get a shovel in the ground, people will be stopping to buy trees."

Always willing to lend a hand, he has helped two area farmers, Cliff Zimmerman and Charlie Betsch, start their own small nut orchards.

"I learned a lot from other people and I am always willing to share my knowledge," says Dickum.

Dairy Farmers Join Basketball Network

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Penn State Basketball has moved into big league action and Pennsylvania dairy farmers have continued their sponsorship of the team's network. The Penn State Radio Network is one of the strongest collegiate networks in the country, bringing live Big Ten basketball to fans throughout Pennsylvania.

Dairy farmers, through the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, are targeting fans with messages about dairy products. Basketball and dairy products make a great team. Athletes of all ages depend on nutritious dairy foods to help them become strong and agile.

On the Network, fans are encouraged to use dairy products to maintain their "edge." One message explains "Why Milk Really Scores with Basketball," with reminders that milk builds strong bones and great muscle tone. Fans are told "the next time someone passes you a cold glass of milk, give it a shot!"

Real Pennsylvania cheese is also a focus of dairy farmers' messages. Farmers offer fans a tasteful cheese "basketball" line-up that includes: "Monterey Jack Nachos," "Parmesan Popcorn," and "Swiss Cheese Fondue." All of these delicious cheese snacks provide plenty of nutrition to fans and athletes.

Pennsylvania dairy farmers have been sponsors of the Penn State Network for over seven years. The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program is a non-profit, dairy farmer funded generic promotion organization. The Program works on behalf of dairy farmers to share product and industry information with the public.

Coverlets Weave History With Beauty

BETH MILLER
Adams Co. Correspondent

LITTLESTOWN (Adams Co.) — For more than 10 years, weaver Peg Mearns has been working with yarn and history at the looms in the studio of her old farm house.

At the same time she is making coverlets and napkins and runners, Mearns is thinking about the people who made those same treasures long before she was born.

"It is a great curiosity to me," she said of her craft. "It helps you think back and personalize things."

Mearns said she began weaving in 1980, after retiring from a career working for extension services in New Jersey and Maryland.

One of her looms was given to her when she retired from the extension service, she said.

Mearns said she weaves three to four hours every day in the studio at the back of her house, which dates from the time of the Civil War.

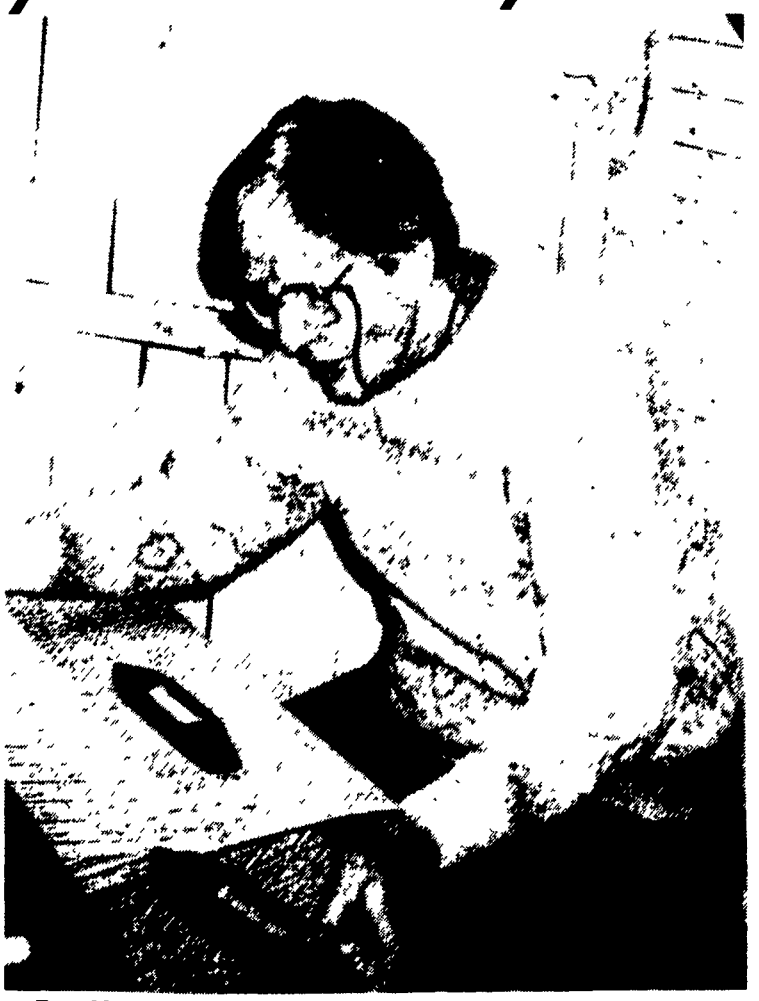
She said she makes about 10 full-sized coverlets a year, as well as napkins, placemats, towels, pillow tops, stoles and scarves, lap robes, and tablecloths.

Mearns said she had been interested in weaving for a long time, at least since her college days, but never pursued her interest until she retired.

Some of the proudest moments in her weaving career have been at the South Mountain Fair, she said. Her prizes there include twice achieving the Best of Show award for a twin bed coverlet and a king-size coverlet.

Mearns said she uses cotton warp and wool weft in her works, and weaves in colors from moss green to baby pink to all types and shades of blue.

She markets her items from her home, where people can see her selections and works in progress on her two looms and order whatever catches their eyes.



Peg Mearns practices weaving in the studio of her Civil War era home.

Recently, Mearns said, she has gotten more involved in the stories behind the names of the weaving patterns she works with.

Some of the patterns look like their names, but the majority do not, she said.

She said many patterns were named for historical or Biblical events. For example, she said, there is "Lee's Surrender," "The Star of Bethlehem" and the "Maltese Cross."

One very old pattern that is still very popular is the "Whig Rose," Mearns said. That one is named after a political party that was popular in the early years of the country, but has since disappeared.

She said some patterns have flowery or leafy names, like "Wandering Vine," or "Catalpa Flower."

Many others have sentimental meanings, like "Love Knot" or "Soldier's Return," she added. Still others have names of states in them, such as "Kentucky Snowball" and "Virginia Snowball," she said.

A lot of other patterns have the words "beauty" and "fancy" in them, Mearns said.

Mearns said many of the patterns have several names. For instance, the pattern "Cat's Paw" is also called "Wandering Vine" and "Rattlesnake," she said.

In the old days, weaving patterns were like recipes and were handed down from generation to generation, from family to family, and shared between friends, she said.

The patterns travelled across the country as settlers headed west and their names changed in the process, she said.

The journey sometimes caused slight variations in their designs also, Mearns said.

She said of the patterns she has investigated date back before the Civil War. That is when people had to weave out of necessity, she said.

Cotton and wool were used by weavers back then because the cotton thread was manufactured and most farms had sheep to provide the wool, Merans said.

In the 1700s and 1800s both men and women were weavers, she said. They had to weave out of necessity, she said, but out of necessity they came up with beautiful patterns to add some beauty to their homes, Mearns said.

So, it seems that Mearns is following tradition by making works that are just as beautiful to decorate modern homes.

Peg Mearns displays some of her favorite coverlet patterns, Cats Paws and Snails Trails; Whig Rose, and Catalpa Flower.

Farmer Tops In Sorghum Yield

DEKALB, Ill. — Greg Manners of Ringoes, N.J. won a state first-place award in the National Grain Sorghum Producers (NGSP) yield and management contest, nonirrigated division.

He will be honored by DeKalb Plant Genetics at a reception during the NGSP convention Feb. 14-16 in St. Louis. Manners also will receive special recognition from the NGSP. He won the award with a DeKalb sorghum hybrid.

Manners planted DK48 seed which produced 81.13 bushels per acre. This yield ranked him among DeKalb's 22 national and state first-place winners. He planted his crop on May 30, 1992 in 20-inch rows and harvested it on Nov. 20.

To qualify for the award, contestants were scored against the five-year average established for his county by the Crop Reporting Service. Winners are those producers whose yields were highest in relation to the county average.

Manners, who has been farming 20 years, grows 700 acres of sorghum, wheat, soybeans, rye, oats, hay, pumpkins, and corn. He also raises cattle and hogs.

DeKalb sorghum hybrids won national first and second place awards in the irrigated division and a national third place in the nonirrigated division.

In state results, DeKalb hybrids won 22 of 38 yield and management contests, more than double the winners of any other seed company and more than all other companies combined.

BY HELPING THE 4-H AND FFA, WE'RE HELPING ALL OF US.

In the Agri-Finance Department of Hamilton Bank, we finance projects for active 4-H and FFA members.

That's because we believe that helping preserve the family farm is one of the best ways to insure a better future for us all. And that involves working with our young people.

It's important to give them guidance, instill the proper values, and help them acquire the skills they need to be successful farmers.

The 4-H and FFA are working toward these goals. And so, we support their efforts. If you or someone in your family needs money for a project, stop by and see us. It just might help us all.

Warwick H.S. To Host Soy Conference

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Warwick High School has been selected as one of 400 sites to host town hall meeting satellite teleconferences for soybean growers in March.

The interactive telecasts, sponsored by the United Soybean Board (USB), will address issues related to the National Soybean Checkoff and allow producers in 28 states to question USB members about the checkoff.

All soybean growers are invited to attend one of two town hall meetings being held on Monday, March 1, at 8 p.m. and Tuesday, March 2, at 10 a.m. at the Warwick High School. Reservations can be made by calling (800) 462-6866 between 9:30 a.m. and 9 p.m.

The teleconferences will help inform soybean producers of how checkoff dollars are managed, who makes decisions, how programs are determined, and how the checkoff benefits producers. Updates of producer-funded Soy-Diesel and production research projects and changes in European and Asian marketing strategies will be provided.

During a special segment, producers will get tips for a successful marketing year from nationally known marketing strategist Richard Brock.

PSEUDORABIES — BETWEEN-FARM SPREAD

Timothy P. Trayer, DVM
Veterinary Practitioner
Denver, Pa.

The primary method of spread of pseudorabies is still pig-to-pig.

The key to control exposure of your farm to pseudorabies (PR) is to maintain a well thought-out plan of animal movement on and off your farm. The infected pig is still the largest single source of pseudorabies virus (PRV).

When new herd replacements come to the farm, they should be placed in an isolation facility that houses these animals away from the main herd. They should remain there for 21 to 30 days. During isolation, these animals should be tested for disease and vaccinated.

No matter how good the boar next door, dont bring him to your farm to service your sows. He could be a source of PRV.

Control of movement of pigs within and off your farm can be just as critical as control of new pigs coming to your farm. Dedicate one truck to the movement of animals within your farm.

Never use the same truck to haul market or cull animals and nursery or grower pigs between facilities on the farm. Trucks and trailers that are used to haul pigs off the farm should be cleaned and disinfected before coming back to the farm. Never allow a partial load of pigs from another farm to come to your farm.

Try not to borrow from or loan equipment to another farm. If this becomes necessary, clean and disinfect the equipment and let it stand for three days.

Swine should not have access for two days to pastures which were recently spread with manure.

It has been documented that PRV virus can be transported through the air five miles downwind of a PR outbreak. Certain geographical and climatic conditions must be considered as well as the swine density in the area and the swine population that is not vaccinated and has a low resistance to PR.

Producers need to keep in tune with the PR status in their area. Be cooperative with the surveillance program being conducted by the state and U.S. Department of Agriculture. Vaccinate for PR if other PR farms are within two miles of your farm.

Strengthen your on-farm biosecurity and continue your off-farm biosecurity. Knowing the neighborhood disease status will help in making testing and vaccination decisions.

Unless delivery trucks have direct contact with swine or their manure, the chance for PR transmission is very low. Precautions still should be taken. Check for manure contamination of delivered grain. Organic material, like hog manure or feed, can harbor PR virus for four days. Therefore, purchased grain should be stored for a minimum of four days before it is fed to pigs.

Do not use the same truck to haul livestock and feed. In central Pennsylvania, producers rarely use the same vehicle to haul pigs and feed. Any grain imported from the Midwest has a storage and transit time which usually exceeds four days.

People should be considered a source of disease spread. Manure can be carried between groups of pigs on shoes and clothing. Do not let people wander through your facilities. When people come to your farm, insist that they wear clean clothing or coveralls and disinfected rubber boots or disposable plastic boots. A supply of plastic boots can be purchased from a farm supply store and kept on hand.

The key to keep PR from spreading to your farm is to manage the whole system. Key areas to control are the swine, their manure and manure from other sources, the source of your feed, and people who visit your farm. Consider vaccinating your pigs to reduce the chance of PR infection through the air from neighboring infected farms.

Attendance At Md. Ag Fairs Tops 2 Million

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker has announced that attendance at agricultural fairs in Maryland during 1992 totaled 2,230,015 people.

These figures come from the Maryland Agricultural Fair Board which, since its inception in 1937, has promoted Maryland's largest industry — agriculture — by providing financial assistance to agricultural fairs, shows, and youth activities throughout the state.

"In 1991 and 1992 we topped 2 million people each year. I think these attendance figures demonstrate that Maryland's agricultural fairs continue to prosper and attract huge interest. They are a fantastic place to show off the dynamic nature of Maryland's agricultural industry," Walker said.

"As somebody from the city, I appreciate, as do thousands of our citizens, the county fairs that allow us to learn about the tremendous agricultural bounty of Maryland. I enjoy these fairs because they bring people together to share experiences, skills, and fun," said Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer.

During 1992, the Maryland Agricultural Fair Board helped fund and promote 148 events reaching every county in Maryland. For more information on the Maryland Agricultural Fair Board, contact Katrina Bradshaw, the Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401, (410) 841-5770.

FARM MANAGEMENT

1992 TAX CHANGES

Alan W. Strock
Farm Management Agent
Chester, Lancaster Counties

Tax season is upon us with that emotionally draining job of organizing your tax return information for later use in preparing your return.

If you are a farmer, or you prepare even one farm tax return, now is the time to pick up your 1992 Farmer's Tax Guide, IRS Publication 225, at your local Cooperative Extension office.

The Farmers tax guide is an invaluable guide to helping any farmer or tax preparer understand farm taxes.

No major tax law was passed in 1992, so the changes for 1992's taxes are few and minor. The changes that did occur were the result of indexing due to inflation, new revised IRS interpretations of present tax code, or the expiration of existing laws.

A few of these changes include:

Exemption, Standard Deduction Changes, And Itemized Deduction Changes

The personal and dependent exemptions is increased $150 to $2,300 per individual. The rate for 1993 will be $2,350.

The basic standard deduction for married filing jointly is $6,000, which is $350 higher than last year. The extra standard deduction allowed when a taxpayer is 65 or older, or blind, is up $50 to $700 for married taxpayers and $900 for singles.

IRS will now accept certain financial account statements as proof of payments made by check, credit card, or electronic funds transfer.

Business Deductions /Taxes

The standard mileage rate for 1992 is $.28 a mile for all business miles on passenger automobiles, vans, pickups, and light duty or panel trucks.

You can deduct as a farm business expense on schedule "F" the cost of preparing that part of your tax return relating to your farm business. Ask your tax preparer for an itemized bill so you know the exact cost of your shedule D, F, SE, 4797, 2210F, 4562, 6251 and other farm-related tax schedules.

You can deduct the remaining cost of tax preparation as an itemized deduction on schedule A as a miscellaneous itemized deduction subject to a 2 percent floor, if you have enough expenses to itemize your deductions.

The self-employment tax rate on net earnings for 1992 is 15.3 percent. This rate is a total of 12.4 percent for social security (old age, survivors, disability insurance) and 2.9 percent for medicare (hospital insurance). In 1992 the maximum wages subject to social security portion is $55,500 and $132,200 for the medicate portion. For 1993 the base amounts increase to $57,600 and $135,000, respectively.

The 25 percent deduction for medical insurance costs for all self-employed persons which was to expire on December 31, 1991, was extended through June 30, 1992. So you will only be able to deduct 25 percent of your insurance premiums for the first half of 1992.

Kiddie Taxes

The tax on unearned income, which is interest or dividend income of children under age 14, kicks in at $1,200 for 1992, an increase of $100.

This represents a standard deduction of $600 for unearned income with the next $600 being taxable at the child's tax rate.

Sold or Exchanged A Farm?

If you have purchased or sold a farm you should sit down with the seller or purchaser and file a form 8594. This form signed by both the seller and buyer establishes the allocation of the farm sale price into its components of land, farm buildings, farm machinery, personal residence, and tenant house. This way both the buyer and seller will use the same value for each component of the sale. This form should be filled with your tax return by both the buyer and the seller.

If you take part in a like kind exchange of property, you must file Form 8824, Like Kind Exchanges form, in addition to Schedule D, Form 1040.

Capital Gain Taxation

The maximum income tax rate on net capital gains remains at 28 percent. Remember this capital gains profit is added in with all other taxable income sources, so some gains may not be subject to tax and the first $35,800 of taxable income is taxed at the 15 percent rate for a married filling jointly couple.

The 15 percent bracket goes to $21,450 for a single individual and $28,750 for a head of household filer.

Special Farmland Use Evaluation

A recapture of federal estate and gift tax occured when land valued under IRS Code Section 2032A (Special Farmland Use Evaluation) was cash rented by the decedent's heir, a son or daughter. The "qualified use" ended when the cash rent started.

Those who inherit property subject to IRS Code Section 2032A must be financially "at risk" and "materially participate in the management of the farm."

Farmers Tax Guide

So stop by and pick up your 1992 "Farmer's Tax Guide" at your local cooperative extension office. The guide is an invaluable help and, best of all, it is free.

Watershed Project Extended

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Pownall Jones, Toughkenamon, chairman of the Chester County Conservation District, announced an extension of the highly successful Red and White Clay Watershed project.

This project, started in 1990 in southern Chester County, has resulted in the installation of more than $390,000 worth of best management practices (BMPs) on farms within the watershed to improve water quality in the streams and water courses in the area.

In addition, three demonstration farms were established where interested farmers can visit to see the BMPs in action. The demonstration farms are Barclay Hoopes farm, Landenburg; Modern Mushroom Farms, Kennett Square; and Guizzetti & Son's farm, Avondale.

Jones said that an additional $50,000 is available to develop two new demonstration farms. Once the farms are selected, a water quality management plan will be developed for each, and BMPs needed will be installed.

A sign-up period will be held throughout the month of February. Interested mushroom farmers should contact Dan Greig, district manager at the conservation district office, (215) 696-5126.

Jones said that Robert Francis, West Chester, has been named coordinator of the Red and White Clay Watershed project to work with farmers and others in providing information and planning assistance as needed. Francis can also be reached by calling the conservation district office or (215) 296-3564.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

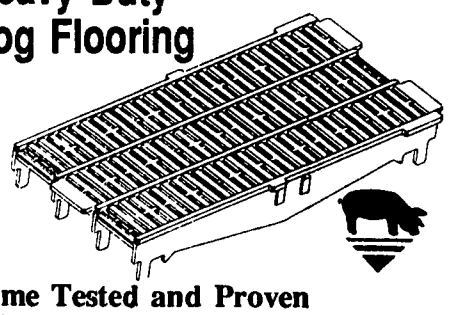
REPLACING HOG FLOORING? CONSIDERING NEW CONSTRUCTION? ☑ CHECK OUT Polygrate™

Heavy Duty Hog Flooring



Time Tested and Proven
This style of POLYGRATE was first introduced in 1981. Over the years Faroex has continued to refine this product. POLYGRATE is one of only a few "World Class" floors that has stood this test of time.

Outstanding Traction
POLYGRATE'S unique "high-low" finger design provides outstanding traction for pigs of all sizes, while enhancing safety and comfort.

- POLYGRATE'S rounded corners minimize injuries. The edges are bevelled providing a smoother, safer surface that promotes comfort, too.

What Does This All Add Up To?
- More piglets survive until weaning
- Less splay/spraddle leg problems
- Heavier piglets at weaning
- Better conditioned sows at weaning

I would like to purchase your 609 tobacco. All I want to do is pay the farmer the most money I possibly can and treat him fairly. I am not interested in carrying tails or running other buyers down or critizing the auction. I know every buyer in Lancaster County is important, especially the auction. I believe every farmer should take some of his tobacco to the auction to help support it. I will not be buying at the acution because I cannot get a volume there. I have the best price in the county at the present time. Call 717-575-4062 or 717-354-8663 to find out where my receiving station will be and other details. CENTRAL TOBACCO CO. L.L. Irving.

The most popular medium-duty harvester

If you want high-quality feed, you'll like the fine, uniform chop you get from the Model 718 forage harvester It's the only medium-duty harvester available with a 12-knife cutterhead to give you a controlled, even cut. The uniform length of cut makes for easier unloading, blowing, storing and feeding And you can choose from four crop-saving heads — a one- or two-row cornhead, a windrow pickup or a sicklebar
No wonder the "718" is the best-selling medium-duty forage harvester in the country. Stop in soon and set up a demonstration.

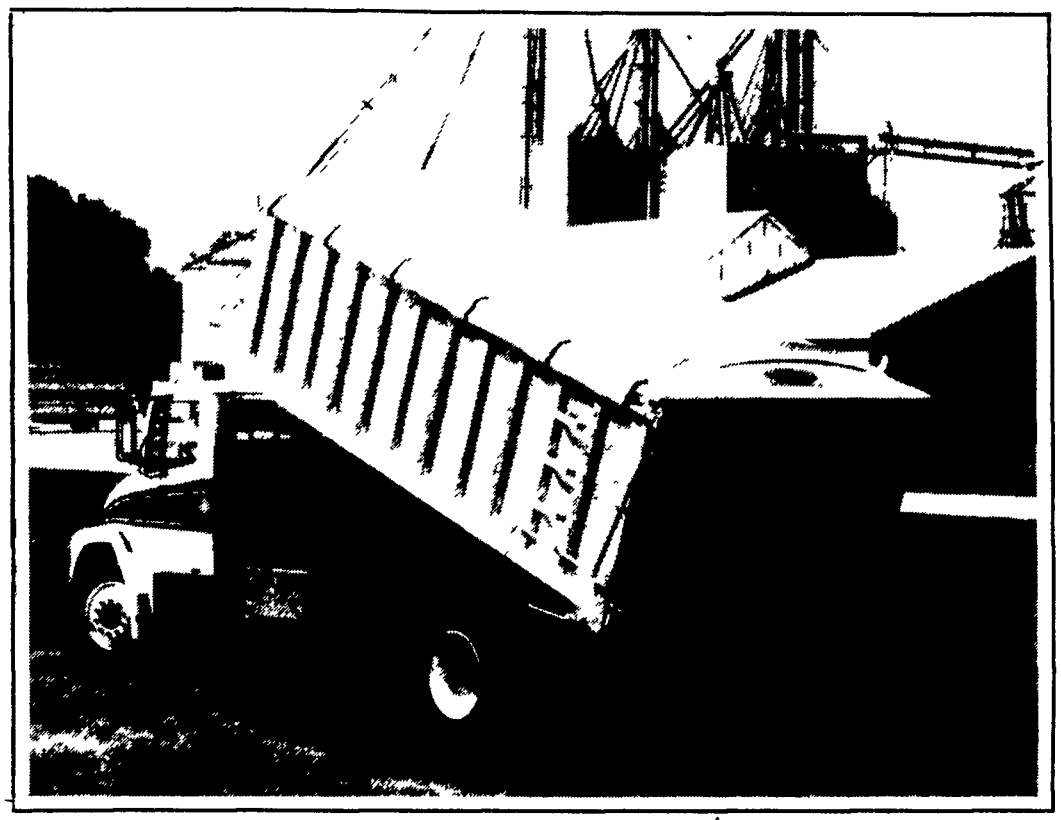
In grain bodies, aluminum makes Sense.



Eby Aluminum Grain Bodies pay off in dependable long-term service. Their all-aluminum construction means:

- Greater payload efficiency
- Maintenance-free service
- Substantially higher resale value.

If you think that steel is cheaper, think again. We can show you how aluminum actually saves you dollars in the long run.

Eby's time-tested design is available in lengths to 24' and a 48" standard height; optional heights include 54", 60" and 72". A long list of standard features such as tie rail, built-in steps, aerodynamic uprights and Harsh hoist is complemented by a full range of custom options, including tailgates, Wahpeton tarps and chute.
When you select your next grain body, consider the value that aluminum offers. It's a worry-free investment in your future.

S-Tine Basket Harrow Provides Uniform Seedbed

BRILLION, Wis. — Brillion's new CMDB S-tine basket harrow provides a smooth, uniform seedbed for optimum seed/soil contact and maximum germination and growth.

Four rows of S-tine shanks penetrate and shatter the soil up to five inches for a better soil mix and incorporation of chemicals. The 15-inch underframe clearance and the wide, 19-inch spacing between ranks allow residue to flow through the machine for fast, easy tillage.

An independent, coil-tine drag follows the shanks to break up clods and level the field. The tough, flexible tines provide easy, even trash flow.

A large, 12-inch diameter roller basket crumbles and firms the soil, providing a smooth, flat seedbed. The finer soil is deposited in the planting zone while heavier particles remain on top to reduce air pockets and trap moisture.

"The new S-tine basket harrow is built tough for long wear and quality performance," said Michael Irish, Brillion's national sales manager. "And it's economically priced compared with other tillage equipment."

The S-tine basket harrow is available as a complete unit, a harrow and drag unit, or a harrow only to match your field conditions. Three models — 12, 15 and 18-foot units — are available with a three-point hitch.

For more information, contact your local Brillion dealer or write Brillion Iron Works, Inc., Brillion, WI 54110, (414) 756-2121.

ABS Jerseys Offer Superior Genetics

DEFOREST, Wis. — "ABS has held its position with the best Jersey lineup available," according to Dick Smith, dairy product manager.

"We've held strong with the best sons of Duncan, Yankee, TOP BRASS, ROYAL, and three of the top five bulls in the breed for milk fat protein dollar value (MFP$). For type, ABS also maintains dominance as LESTER continues his reign as an exceptionally elite type sire," he said.

Leading off the ABS lineup for profitability, 29 J2910 GLENWOOD repeated his debut as the breed's #1 MFP$ (+242) bull. With PTA's of +1993 and +55P, GLENWOOD's exceptional production combined with his linear type traits yield a PTI equal to +347, improved rear udders, and improved teat placement. GLENWOOD is an exciting cross on Sooner daughters for maximizing profit.

29 J2877 SKY LINE maintained the title of the breed's number one living protein bull (+65) on his sixth summary and ranks fifth in the USDA's MFP$ list. SKY LINE sires medium-sized cattle that excel in dairyness. He also improves both fore and rear udder attachments and is an especially nice mating on LESTER daughters. The SKY LINE x LESTER cross should maximize protein. This cross is very complimentary from a type standpoint and it combins two different sire lines — Yankee Chief and Duncan. SKY LINE sons are already playing an important role at ABS.

While 29 J2875 LESTER reigns as the breed's number one type sire, his PTI of +384 also ranks him as a breed leader. LESTER sires strong, powerful, open-ribbed cattle that tend to slope at the rump. They have excellent feet and legs and exceptional udders, with high, wide rear udders and close front teats. LESTER is the world's leading sire of sons.

As a promising new addition to ABS' Jersey lineup, 29 J2924 MARVIUS debuts in the top 15 bulls of the breed for MFP$ (+217). A Duncan son from a 91-point TOP BRASS dam, MARVIUS has established a milk proof of +1812.

CLOSING THE GATE ON A BULL

We often talk about how important it is to turn a bull into a breeding pasture, but we often forget how important it is to get the bull out of the pasture in a timely manner.

Extended calving season are costly and can be very disruptive to good management programs.

Just think about it: if we can wean a 500-pound calf on October 1 this year, but allow that calf to be born a month later next year, it will cost about 35 pounds of weaning weight. There was no change in growth of the calf or feed requirements for the cow, but we ended up with fewer pounds to sell to pay the bills.

The major reason for an extended calving season is failure to get the bull out of the pasture. One effective method of handling bulls in most small herds is to turn him in with the cows for 60 days, pull him out for 60 days, palpate the cows, remove the nonpregnant cows, then turn him back out with the cows. This method helps to force a concise calving season, but also reduces the inconvenience of separating a bull to just two months.

It is no small thing to also force palpation of the herd and culling of open cows. As we're noted before, a cow who does not produce a calf one year will never make up for the lost income in her lifetime.

Management can also be more closely controlled with a defined, short calving season. The nutritional requirements of the cow change drastically between the last third of pregnancy and lactation. Protein requirements double and energy needs are nearly doubled.

With cows calving on the first of February and some still calving in April and May, there is no way an effective job can be done in feeding these cows. Some them are either being grossly overfed, or more likely, some are not getting what they need.

Secondly, part-time managers will find it helpful to concentrate their management time during a shorter calving season. It is essential that cows be well managed during calving because more dollars can be lost by poor management then than at any other time.

Third, an effective vaccination and health management program can be accomplished. It will do no good to give certain vaccinations to cows that have already calved, while the timing may be just right for those who are 30 days from calving.

Extended calving seasons will result in putting the cows through the chute twice or, even worse, not doing anything because all of them can not be treated on the same day.

Finally, we constantly shoulder a marketing problem with feeder calves in Pennsylvania because of small numbers. The addition of extended calving seasons that cause more variation in age and weight to the calf crop just compound the problem. Uniformity has value in calf production, so condensing the calving season to make calves more uniform in age and weight can add dollars to your pocket.

Pennsylvania Beef Expo

The 1993 Pennsylvania Beef Expo will be held in State College on March 25-28. The educational symposium will focus on "Making Money with a Few Cows."

There is a little change in the symposium this year. It will be held at the Toftrees Resort just down the road from the Meat Animal Evaluation Center. This change will allow us to have multiple sessions running simultaneously and being repeated during the day. This will allow us to cover much more material, and participants can pick and choose what will interest them the most.

The remainder of the week will include the annual meeting and banquet of the Pa. Cattleman's Association, the Performance-Tested Bull sale, purebred sales from five breeds, and a youth steer and heifer show.

You can get more information and registration materials by contacting me at (814) 863-3661. See you there!

Forage Handbook Available

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania farmers looking for information on hay quality, harvest management, and other forage topics can order an extensive forage handbook from Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

The publication costs $28 and has more than 200 pages of detailed information on soils and forage fertility, forage quality, species selection and establishment, harvest management, hay and silage preservation, pastures, forage pests, forage-animal systems, and forage economics.

"The handbook is meant to be a comprehensive guide for forage growers," said Dr. Marvin Hall, assistant professor of forage management in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "It contains a vast amount of information useful for anyone who works with forages."

The forage handbook contains material contributed by agronomists, dairy and animal scientists, entomologists, and agricultural economists as well as information from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Pasture Laboratory.

For more information or to order a handbook, contact Forage Handbook, c/o Lisa Crytser, Department of Agronomy, The Pennsylvania State University, 116 Agricultural Sciences and Industries Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 865-2543.

3 Reasons Why Your Next Cage System Should Be CHORE-TIME®

Reason Number 1

A Better Feeder

You save feed, electricity and parts with Chore-Time's Ultraflo feeder.
Ask any grower who has an Ultraflo Feeding System.
Call or send for our list of 76 farms with 182 Ultraflo houses in the Northeast.

Reason Number 2

Heavier Cages

Chore-Time Cages are 11.2% Heavier, That's Over 3½ Tons More Wire Per House!
(Based upon 108,000 bird house. Call or write for actual test data)

Reason Number 3

Over 14 Million Layers In Our Region

Since Chore-Time introduced the Ultraflo Feeding System in 1985, over 180 houses have been sold in our sales area which is Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, New York and New England.

Think about it. In only 7 years, 1 out of every 3 layers in our region has been switched to Chore-Time with Ultraflo! Many farmers bought one Chore-Time house and after seeing the results purchased more. Some large farms have replaced all their non-Chore-Time cage systems with Chore-Time cages and Ultraflo feeders.

Can over 180 houses and 14 million layers since 1985 in the Northeast be wrong? Why not check out the facts for yourself? Call today or send for the list of all Ultraflo houses in the Northeast.

Seedpiece Treatment For Potato Disease Control

PLANO, Texas — TOPS® 5 potato seedpiece treatment fungicide from Gustafson, Inc. has just received full federal registration by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for use by Potato growers nationwide in 1993.

TOPS 5 gives potato growers a new disease management option that features a more concentrated formulation compared to TOPS-2.5D®, the fungicide from Gustafson. Like TOPS-2.5D, TOPS 5 is a systemic fungicide formulated for the dry treatment of potato seedpieces to protect against rhizoctonia and fusarium for a faster emerging, more vigorous stand.

"The difference between the two products is the rate of active ingredient and the application rate," said Ray Knake, northern manager, research and development for Gustafson. "The benefit to growers when using TOPS 5 is improved disease protection due to excellent dust retention on all varieties."

TOPS 5 has twice the amount of active ingredient and the label rate is half the amount (0.5 pound per 100 pounds of seedpieces) compared to TOPS-2.5D.

In the Pacific Northwest, where TOPS 5 was used in 1992 under a special local need registration, "TOPS 5 provided excellent suppression of Rhizoctonia stem canker and Fusarium dry rot," Knake said.

For best results, growers should cut, treat, and plant. Because of varying conditions and cultural practices, the use of TOPS 5 or any product conatining TOPS is not recommended by the manufacturer for the practice of precutting, treating, and storing seedpieces to plant later.

For information on TOPS 5, contact your local crop protection product retailer or call Gustafson, (800) 248-6907.

Potato Growers Institute March 3-4

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — This year's Potato Growers Institute promises to be an information — packed seminar on the most important topics and problems facing potato growers.

The growers will be meeting at the Holiday Inn Conference Center in Allentown. The hotel is located at the intersection of I-78 and Rt. 100S.

The board of directors of the cooperative has voted to underwrite the total cost of the program, which is considerable. Your cost are meals, lodging, registration, and your time. Take this opportunity to get the latest potato information.

New Massey Ferguson MF 3670 tractor features high-performance 154 PTO HP diesel engine and new Dynashift powershift transmission that delivers more useable power to the PTO and wheels.

154 PTO Tractor Has Dynashift Transmission

DES MOINES, Iowa — "Massey Ferguson is introducing the new 154 PTO hp MF 3670 tractor with exclusive operational and productivity features to compete in the 150-159 hp range," said Doug Petterson, Massey Ferguson tractor marketing manager. "This is the highest-selling category for tractors over 100 horsepower."

The new MF 3670 features as standard equipment the new MF Dynashift powershift transmission that delivers more useable power to the PTO and wheels; Valmet high-performance six-cylinder diesel engine that excels in lugging ability and fuel economy; sealed rear axle planetary final drives for longer life; electronic 3-point hitch with heavy lift capacity and precise control; and automatic control of 4-wheel drive, differential lock, PTO, and 3-point hitch for increased productivity.

The new MF Dynashift transmission gives operators the best features of both a manual and a powershift transmission with the unique combination of a 4-speed powershift in each of 8 synchronized gears plus a synchronized forward/reverse shuttle. The operator has 32 forward and 32 reverse gears for unmatched flexibility in choosing a gear to match varying field conditions, with "close ratio" steps of only 17 percent in the Dynashift 4-speed powershift to accommodate relatively small load changes for maximum efficiency.

The turbocharged six-cylinder, 403 cubic inch Valmet diesel engine incorporates the latest technology for diesel engines. Mid-supported wet liners, a cross-flow head design, two cylinder heads, and new generation turbochargers result in improved performance, longer life, reduced oil consumption, improved fuel economy, quieter operation, and greater reliability, durability and productivity.

The MF 3670 four-wheel drive model features a true front and rear differential lock — not a limited slip front differential. A single push-button control simultaneously engages or disengages the front and rear differential lock. This exclusive feature gives improved traction from the front end when four-wheel-drive and differential lock are fully engaged, yet the flexibility to obtain an improved turning radius when the differential lock is disengaged.

For operator comfort and convenience a two door cab provides easy access to the cab for entry and exit and simplifies monitor installation, cleaning and service. A pneumatic seat is standard equipment and the mid-range 70 dbA sound level in the cab is among the quietest in the industry.

The new MF 3670 tractor offers a wide range of unique advantages to farmers looking for a tractor in the 145-165 horsepower category.

Video Features Test Sale Boars

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

NEW FREEDOM, (York Co.) — These Porcine stars will debut, via video technology, at the 1992-1993 Penn State Boar Test Sale.

The Boar Test Sale, held in conjunction with the Keystone Pork Congress, is scheduled to begin at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, February 17, at the Penn Harris Motor Inn in Camp Hill.

Boars were videotaped at Penn State on Feb. 4, according to York County pork producer Steve Wilson. "The video will be shown on large-screen projection for the sale at the Congress. Use of video for sales is an emerging trend around the world for all species of livestock.

"There is an excellent selection available, with ten pens of boars," said Wilson. "Pen average backfat is under .7, with three of them averaging .5. Daily gain of the high pen was 2.36. Feed efficiency low was 2.45 and pen loin eye average was 6.44 high."

Test pens from three York County hog breeders finished in the top five in the efficiency evaluation trials. Top pen belonged to Henry Holloway, Darlington, Md. Second was Wilson Yorkshires, New Freedom; third, Neutzel Yorkshires, Felton; fourth, Larry Baum, Elizabethtown; and fifth, Tom Frantz, Seven Valleys.

Top animals from the Penn State Boar Test evaluations will sell by way of video presentation during the Keystone Pork Congress.

For potential buyers who prefer to personally view the test boars, an open house is planned from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., Sunday, February 7, at the Penn State Meat Animal Evaluation Center at State College. Breeders will be on hand to answer questions and discuss their consignments, and refreshments will be served to visitors. Snow date for the open house is Saturday, February 13.

Attendees to the Pork Congress will be able to view the test boar videos prior to the sale in the lobby of the Penn Harris. Buyers wishing to view the videos at their own convenience may order copies of the tape.

Participating breeders are coordinating a delivery-available program to most areas or buyers may arrange their own pickup of boar sale purchases from the Penn State Center.

A direct-line phone connection to the sale site is planned for absentee bidding. Telephone number for bidding during the sale is (717) 763-0506.

Rodale Sets Composting Field Day

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — On February 24, an On-Farm Composting Field Day is scheduled on the farm of Jodi and Ron Snyder in Port Clinton.

The Snyders have an ideal setup for composting the manure from their 55-sow operation. The manure is pushed into a shed with a concrete floor and a tank for collecting any runoff. The runoff can be used to add moisture to the compost, or be used as a nutrient source for the pasture or field.

The Snyders have obtained leaves to use as their source of carbon for composting the swine manure. They use a manure spreader to mix the leaves and manure, and to form a windrow. The windrow is turned using a front end loader, or running the composting manure through the manure spreader.

At the field day the Snyders will describe their organically certified operation, the livestock and crops produced, and how they market their farm products organically.

In addition to seeing the compost operation and the discussion about the Snyder operation, Leon Weber from the Rodale Institute will be discussing the basic compost process, and management of compost to promote the composting process. Cooperative Extension Agent Herb Wetzel will present information on using grass clippings in a swine lagoon to conserve nitrogen and minimize odors. Patricia Peck from the Department of Environmental Resources will discuss the DER requirements for farm use of leaves and grass.

New Swine Biotech Topic Of Meeting

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Attention pork producers! In order to receive the best price, you must produce what the consumer wants to eat today. This requires the application of modern biotechnology. What you think they need or what is convenient for your system to produce may not be the answer.

Topics to be discussed at a meeting on Feb. 23 at the Ephrata H.S. Ag Department include demographics, changes being made at packing plants, grade yields, genetic potentials, and what the consumer wants today and why.

Speakers will be Michael Leininger, Thames Bend sales representative; Jay Horst, Thames Bend East Coast representative; and Richard Stein, owner of Thomas Bend Penn Breeding Stock Co.

Nitrogen In Ammonium Form May Prove Best For Sweet Corn

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Sweet corn needs nitrogen, and plenty of it. But did you know that sweet corn uses nitrogen in ammonium nitrate form the best?

That's because nitrogen in that form allows sweet corn to take it up when it needs it the most, and at the correct rate — from the seven leaf to tassling and finally to silk, according to Dr. Darryl Warncke, crop and soil scientist from Michigan State University.

Warncke spoke about how nitrogen affects sweet corn quality last week during the general vegetables session at the Pennsylvania Vegetable Conference and Trade Show.

Studies indicate that nitrogen demands for sweet corn are different at various stages of plant growth. The nitrogen uptake is only 6 percent up to the sixth leaf; from seventh leaf to tassle, nitrogen uptake surges to 25 percent; from tassel to silk, 30 percent; and finally, ear development consumes 39 percent of available nitrogen, according to the scientist.

Dr. Darryl Warncke, soil scientist with Michigan State University, spoke about the effects of nitrogen on sweet corn at the Vegetable Conference last week.

Take leaf samples

The best way to look at sweet corn's nitrogen use is to take leaf samples. But to ensure good yield and quality, growers should examine all stages of growth, and be sure to take regular soil tests and check for nitrogen availability.

Generally, according to Warncke, growers in this area under the clay loam type of soil conditions should strive for about 150 pounds of nitrogen per acre during the growing season. Special emphasis should be placed on getting the nitrogen to the plant when it needs it the most — right after the 6th leaf.

But it's important that the plant not only obtain nitrogen, but the other essential nutrients working in conjunction as well.

Nitrogen stress during ear development may result in kernel shrivel, affecting yield, quality, and taste. Growers should strive for about 150 pounds of nitrogen per acre, but don't exceed 200, because too much nitrogen will cause the plant to assimilate sugars away from kernels and into the leaves. (However, Warncke pointed out that more research is needed into the effects of excess nitrogen on quality of sweet corn.)

Affects protein content

Nitrogen also affects protein content in the ear. It's important for the grower to sample the leaves at tassling or silking to see if adequate nitrogen is going to the plant, according to Warncke.

The following steps will help sweet corn growers:

- Soil test regularly to look at the nutrient levels and growing conditions for the crop.
- Use 125 to 150 pounds per acre of nitrogen.
- Band 40 to 60 pounds per acre at planting time.
- Sidedress the remainder as late as possible — as close to tassling time as possible.

Nitrogen, available at the right times, according to the researcher, will provide good ear development, tip fill, and quality of corn.

Also at the conference, a special sweet corn pest workshop was conducted, which reviewed the major threats to sweet corn growers and ways in which growers can handle them. The workshop was conducted by Steve Spangler and Dr. Shelby Fleischer, entomology department at Penn State.

Additional topics in the general vegetables session on Wednesday included developing biorational insect control options, a panel featuring growers and their experience with photodegradable plastic mulch, growing tips for potato producers, organic materials in vegetable production, and other sessions.

Farmers To Share Advice At Marketing Conference

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Can farmers make more money selling their products directly to consumers rather than supermarkets or food processors?

Answers can be found at the 11th annual Mid-Atlantic Direct Marketing Conference and Trade Show, February 18-19 in Lancaster, Pa. An optional tour of local farm markets will follow on Saturday, February 20.

"This event will help farmers who sell products directly to consumers — primarily fruit and vegetable growers who run roadside stands or farmers' market stalls — develop a clearer view of their marketing choices," said Jeff Patton, Penn State Cooperative Extension agent in Lehigh County. "Many of the speakers are successful direct marketers who will share their experiences."

The conference will be held at the Lancaster Host Resort just east of Lancaster on Route 30. The event is organized by extension staff from Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and New Jersey, along with farmers and staff from state agriculture departments.

"There's no way farmers can survive on wholesale prices, which haven't improved much during my 30 years of raising crops," said Fred Funk, conference planning committee member and manager of Funk's Farm Market in Lancaster County. "But when we retail products directly, we get new headaches and stiff competition. We need all the information and inspiration we can get."

Topics to be discussed during the conference include new advertising and marketing techniques, farm market business plans, post-harvest handling, understanding baby boomers, discovering what customers want, and setting up an estate plan.

Trade show exhibitors will include specialty food and beverage producers, retail packagers, promoters, consultants, and produce auction organizers. The show also will feature new resources for farm marketers, including Quaker Foods' "Self-Study Program in Retail Food Store Operations" and the latest reports from the Food Marketing Institute.

Dr. John Stanton, professor of food marketing at St. Joseph's University, will open the conference Thursday morning with an address, "Customer Satisfaction — Where All Paths Begin." He will discuss consumers' food shopping decisions and the need for commitment to customer satisfaction. Following his address, a panel of three farm market managers will share their perspectives on customer service.

On Thursday afternoon, Joseph Anthony, a U.S. Department of Agriculture engineer, will describe how farmers can build a new batch cooling unit with off-the-shelf materials for less than $1,000.

Thursday evening will feature an ice cream social and farmer-to-farmer roundtables on personal selling, recycling, dried flowers and ribbons, retaining the farm market image, keeping kids in the business, and services that add value to farm markets.

Friday's highlights include in-depth looks at successful farm markets in Maryland, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

"The owners of each market will give an insider's view of their marketing techniques," said Patton. "A discussion of the issues affecting farm markets will follow their presentations."

Saturday's tour program begins with an address by Dr. Charles Coale, agricultural marketing specialist at Virginia Polytechnic University, entitled "How to Grow a Farm Market." Tour buses then depart for A.L. Kauffman and Son's Farm Market, the Bird-in-Hand Farmers Market, Oregon Dairy Farm Market, Kitchen Kettle Village and the Shady Maple Farm Market.

The conference fee is $40 for the first participant from each farm market and $20 for additional participants. A banquet Friday evening costs $30, while the Saturday breakfast buffet, talk and tours cost $25.

State Adopts Indemnification Plan

DOVER, Del. — The State of Delaware and the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. signed an historic Memorandum of Understanding that allows compensation to poultry companies forced to depopulate flocks as a result of a catastrophic disease outbreak.

Gov. Dale Wolf witnessed as Acting Secretary of Agriculture Roland Derrickson and Budget Director Michael Ferguson signed the agreement during ceremonies at Legislative Hall. Representatives from the state's eight poultry companies signed the agreement prior to the ceremony.

Representatives from the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI), the trade association representing the poultry industry on the peninsula, also were on hand to witness the signing.

The indemnification plan is the third phase of a program launched in 1987 by the Mid-Atlantic Health Council, a group of state officials, university representatives and poultry industry representatives from Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, and Pennsylvania.

The council established a set of procedures to deal with emergency poultry disease outbreaks on Delmarva and in Pennsylvania. The first phases describe provisions for the prevention and eradication of diseases.

"Our main concern at the time was avian influenza," said Derrickson. "However, the peninsula has experienced outbreaks of pullorum and avian bronchitis since then. The poultry industry is a vital component of the region's agricultural industry and its economic health. Since it is concentrated in a small geographic area, disease can spread rapidly and has the potential of wiping out an entire industry."

The Memorandum of Understanding outlines the responsibilities of the poultry industry, the state and the U.S. Department of Agriculture in the event flocks are destroyed.

Quality-Based Services For Baldy Cattle

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The formation of the American Baldy Beef Council has set in place a program offering ways for cattlemen to add value to their cattle, cut costs, and produce high quality beef through marketing and certification services for Baldy cattle.

The Council, sponsored by the American Polled Hereford Association (APHA), has launched this innovative program to help producers gain economic strength.

Initial services provided by the Council include a marketing service for superior Baldy cattle, which are universally recognized as the animals most in demand by producers and feeders and a certification plan which allows for quality and genetic documentation throughout the production chain.

"This plan offers practical solutions to beef industry challenges of carcass and beef quality, predictability, uniformity and production efficiencies," said APHA President Larry Heidebrecht. "The plan will expand and intensify the use of Baldy cattle in coordination with state-of-the-art technology and information systems in order to address these important industry challenges."

"Baldies are described by the Council as crossbred cattle, of any color, with white on the face from a British breed source," said Dennis Schock, APHA vice president who heads the program. "The newly formed organization will use the management, technical resources and computer services of APHA's industry service center located in Kansas City, Mo."

The marketing services will provide greater direct access to high quality Baldies, providing increased profit and value to their producers. A nationwide network of highly qualified, professional sales representatives will create a direct link with producers on a local basis. Baldy sales representatives will be knowledgeable in production practices and marketing and will operate within established guidelines based on integrity, service, skills, experience and standards. They will offer certification and marketing services and serve as advisors for the production of high quality, profitable Baldy cattle.

"The Baldy Source," a computerized sales listing service, will provide listings of Baldy replacement females and feeder cattle for sale. All Baldy sales representatives will have access to the most up-to-date listings on "The Baldy Source" and will be in a position to encourage the use of superior genetics in herds across the nation. The system will enable all cattlemen to have access to top quality Baldy feeders and replacement heifers, giving new opportunities for producers to gain increased profits through individual sales, cooperative marketing and satellite video sales.

"The certification aspect of the program adds value to the Baldy cattle which are already recognized as the benchmark for profitability for all segments of the beef industry," Schock said. "It will provide documented management practices, genetic background information and can serve as a vehicle for tracking the source of cattle throughout the production chain.

Producers who subscribe to the certification plan will receive a "Management Record" certificate, thus identifying the cattle as "Certified Baldies." Baldy cattle with sire or sire group EPD data on the certificate will be designated as "Certified Baldy Plus." Management records on both "Certified Baldy" and "Certified Baldy Plus" animals will include sire information, dam information, production records and a vaccination and implant chart.

The "Management Record" will be filled in by each owner and will follow calves from producer to feeder to packer. This quality management tracking is important as the beef industry focuses on Total Quality Management (TQM) production.

Baldy certification provides vital genetic and management documentation on individuals or groups of animals to enable owners to manage for maximum profit and quality throughout the production chain. Certification will help build the reputation of Baldy producers to provide lasting value and greater equity in their herds.

Subscribing to the Certification Services and the listing and selling of cattle is accomplished on a personalized basis through the Baldy sales representatives. Low-cost service fees have been established to encourage maximum participation. To use the listing service, a fee will be charged by the American Baldy Beef Council. Commissions on sales are negotiated by the Baldy Sales Representative with individual Baldy producers. Certification charges are $1 per head, with discounts for more than 500 head. The minimum certification charge per producer is $50, with the maximum charge set at $1,000.

"This program merges the beef industry trends of superior British breed crossbred cattle with total quality management," Heidebrecht said. "The plan emphasizes the National Cattlemen's Association's focus on quality and provides opportunity to measure financial success by encouraging involvement in Integrated Resource Management and NCA's Standardized Performance Analysis. Quality assurance checks at strategic points will be established to ensure customer expectations are met."

"We believe this innovative concept will help bridge the educational and marketing gap between consumers, packers, feeders and producers," Schock said. "The services of the American Baldy Beef Council are tools to help the beef industry and individual cattlemen who participate gain greater bargaining power, thus increasing their competitive advantage.

"The Council is dedicated to addressing and helping solve the major issues and challenges facing the industry. Our primary aim is to assist cattle producers in achieving greater profits through quality beef production."

A Rural Mystique Exists

F.K. Willits
PSU Prof. Rural Sociology

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The perceptions which people have of rurality in American society would be expected to influence their actions toward rural places, people, and things.

These actions, in turn, have implications for activities undertaken to foster the economic and social viability of small towns and rural communities.

Studying Perceptions

To ascertain the images of rural areas and rural residents held by citizens, a statewide mail and telephone survey was carried out and responses from 1,241 Pennsylvania residents were analyzed.

A substantial majority of the respondents held positive images of rural life, wilderness areas, and farming.

Most reported strongly held anti-urban attitudes, and an overwhelming proportion rejected negative stereotypes of rurality.

Taken together, these findings suggest that rurality is a valued element and that rural people and places are viewed in highly positive, almost mystical terms.

While these ideas were held most strongly by rural residents, older citizens, and persons with relatively low incomes, people from all areas and walks of life expressed belief in the overall goodness of rural life. Moreover, acceptance of such positive images was associated with personal behavioral and consumer choices which involved rural and country alternatives.

People who subscribed most strongly to the rural mystique were most likely to: choose rural-based leisure activities (gardening, camping, hunting, fishing, picnicking, and sightseeing in rural areas); select rural-type television programs, country and bluegrass music, country-focused books and magazines; buy produce directly from farmers; and enjoy shopping in small towns.

Helping Communities

These findings demonstrate that there exists in Pennsylvania and perhaps elsewhere a deep reservoir of warm feelings about rurality.

Advertisers have long recognized the market potential of the rural mystique.

Candy bars, soft drinks, beer, insurance, blue jeans, condominiums, cigarettes, and a variety of other consumer goods and services have been hawked by linking them with rurality in the hope that the aura of goodness and goodwill will enhance their attractiveness and market demand.

While these efforts may enrich manufacturers and marketers, they do little, if anything, to create more jobs or increase cash flow in rural areas.

If rural images can be used to market products, many of which are not even tangentially linked with rural life, it seems reasonable to expect that they can also be used to attract consumers to rural communities to shop and vacation — activities which would be expected to contribute to the local rural economy.

Marketing Rurality

Some communities have recognized the market potential of the "rural mystique" and have used a variety of different approaches to attract tourists.

The Lancaster County area, capitalizing on the public's fascination with the Amish and the agricultural countryside, has devised a wide range of tourist attractions which draw visitors from throughout the state, the nation, and the world.

The Pocono Region has developed a profitable tourism base by marketing the area as "The Near Country" for metropolitan residents in New York and New Jersey.

The northern tier counties have sought to attract hunting and fishing enthusiasts by proclaiming the natural beauty of the region and dubbing themselves "God's Country."

Other rural locations have utilized natural and scenic attractions to draw visitors for white water rafting, hiking, camping, bird-watching, and other outdoor recreation activities.

Seasonal rural events attract visitors to fairs and festivals throughout the state.

Historic sites focus not only on specific events (such as the Battle of Gettysburg or the winter at Valley Forge) but also on the small town and rural lifestyles of the past.

Farm vacations provide opportunities for visitors to sample the agrarian life (or at least its pleasurable aspects).

A myriad of small towns seek to draw day-trippers to their quaint shops and eateries.

Correcting Misperceptions

While examples of rural areas in which tourism has contributed to the local economy can be presented, it is also the case that most communities have not maximized their potential in this regard.

Many rural places are well-endowed with appropriate resources — picturesque farms, naturally attractive landscapes, distinctive architecture, folk artists, and regional ethnic cultures — but have not tried to develop the tourism potentials of these resources.

In part, this failing may reflect general misconceptions both of what attracts visitors and what are the impacts of tourism on the local area.

Traditionally, tourism destinations in America have been thought of as locations for significant historical events, or spectacular natural phenomena.

Thus, battlefields were of interest, simple pasture land was not; houses of important persons — patriots, writers, financiers — were worthy of restoration and public visitation, the homes of farmers and tradesmen were not.

Niagara Falls, the giant Sequoia forests, and Old Faithful Geyser were tourist sites, but wilderness streams and woodlands, no matter how appealing, were not viewed in the same way.

Increasingly, visitors and vacationers patronize smaller sites and locations, particularly when a number of attractions are situated in the same area and/or when the points of interest are close to home.

The public's interest in and reverence for things rural, as partially documented in the present study, suggest that rural-type destinations — even relatively simple ones — may have remarkable appeal, and that sizeable proportions of the population choose rural recreational pursuits and hold favorable attitudes toward shopping in small towns.

By creating recreational uses for the natural and man-made amenities of a rural community, tourism as a development industry can convert them into income producing assets. To the extent that visitors from outside the immediate community, state, or nation are attracted, tourism can introduce outside money into rural areas.

Two Sides

While tourism can bring economic profit to local communities, it can also bring problems.

The influx of visitors into an area may lead to pressure on roads, housing, parking, restaurants, and other facilities. Competition for limited acreage for tourist-based ventures may drive up land values and taxes, forcing local farmers and others to relocate.

"Outsiders" can disrupt and challenge the local culture and, by their activities and demands, overrun and destroy the very things they have come to enjoy.

The stereotype of the "ugly American" in international travel has a domestic counterpart which can color the perceptions of people about tourism and lead local communities to shun developing their potentials in this area.

Indeed, another recent statewide survey of Pennsylvania residents found that only 37 percent of the people responding favored giving higher priority to promoting rural tourism, compared to nearly 60 percent who felt that higher priority should be given to attracting industries from outside the state, and 64 percent who felt that communities should give more emphasis to encouraging existing industries.

This relatively low level of support for tourism development likely reflects, at least partly, the presumed undesirable effects noted above.

Developing Resources

Although many rural areas have resources with tourism potential, these attractions need to be nurtured, developed, interpreted, and maintained.

It is likely that the pastoral and nostalgic images valued by the subjects in this survey do not correspond precisely with typical rural communities in Pennsylvania or elsewhere.

To maximize the power of the rural mystique to attract tourists, weekend visitors, and day-trippers, it is important that communities focus on presenting appealing images. This involves not only removing eyesores by cleaning up litter, garbage, and trash, and being concerned with property improvements, but also developing specialized attractions and/or the interpretation of existing ones.

Attention must also be paid to the provision of hospitality services and to the infrastructure of the area — roads, bridges, utilities, water and sewage facilities, overnight lodging, eateries, and informational services.

While locally operated restaurants, lunch counters, and bed-and-breakfast establishments are congruent with the rural physical and social environment — and also may be economically feasible in situations where larger commercial operations are not — these operations too need to reflect friendly, homey images.

Accomplishing these tasks may require long-term commitment and vision. Moreover, while a few major sites may be able to "stand alone," the vast majority of rural attractions may be too small to do so.

Cooperation among various locales, coordination of multi-community efforts, and the derivation of regional approaches, to tourism development may enhance the viability of such efforts.

Not every small town or rural area can be successful in exploiting a rural mystique for economic development purposes. But this realization should not be taken as a reason to dismiss tourism as a viable alternative when considering local revitalization efforts.

Other development activities such as the siting of industrial parks are also highly competitive; some communities are winning and some are losing.

The beauty of a rural mystique, as this analysis has shown, is that it appears as an omnibus, multi-faceted phenomenon. Thus, although competition exists, the possibility of a community defining a specialized (i.e., unique) niche is possible.

Targeting Consumers

To maximize the success of their efforts, states, regions, and local communities must actively promote their amenities to an increasingly sophisticated audience, from families to corporate meeting planners.

This means more than simply erecting a few billboards or circulating flyers in adjacent regions proclaiming the attractions of the area. It requires reaching the segments of the population most likely to visit.

As with any commodity, to merchandise rurality one must understand the nature of potential consumers and the market segmentation. What are the characteristics of the target populations? What appeals will be most effective?

The present study suggests that urban and suburban dwellers, while somewhat less likely than rural residents to subscribe to the positive images of rurality, overwhemingly see small towns and open country life as desirable. Hence they represent potential consumers.

The relationships of income level and education to acceptance of things rural, in our data, suggest that middle and working class persons — rather than the wealthy — may be the most appropriate targets.

These groups have increasingly participated in travel and tourism activities and represent a growing market.

Similarly, the positive relationship between age and acceptance of the rural mystique support the idea that the burgeoning elderly population may represent important potential consumers.

Nostalgic images of traditional rural life and wilderness scenes may be the most appealing aspects of rurality.

Locating Assistance

Each community presents somewhat different problems which must be addressed if effective tourism development is to occur.

The organization and management of this process requires coordinated leadership of the public and private sectors of a community, or often of multiple communities. Moreover, since many of the specialized funding sources and skills to effectively accomplish the desired goals may not be available in the local area, the help of outside consultants and/or educators may be required.

Such assistance may be available from government agencies and/or educational institutions, particularly the land-grant universities through their cooperative extension systems.

While Penn State Cooperative Extension is involved in numerous rural development activities, the linkages of these to tourism and small business concerns need to be enhanced if rural tourism is to be effectively incorporated as a strategy for revitalizing communities in the commonwealth.

State government also needs to strengthen its efforts in this area. Most Pennsylvania efforts have gone to marketing and/or promotion, but with only a fraction of that effort focused on rural tourism.

Increasing the state commitment is needed not only to promote this idea but also to meet the educational or research needs in tourism development.

Increasing Understanding

While rural tourism is no panacea for the various economic and social problems which plague rural areas, and it may not be an appropriate strategy for all situations, it can and has contributed to the development of many rural communities.

Tourism, like other industries, is a source of jobs, income, and federal, state, and local tax revenues. Through tourism, income is redistributed, frequently from affluent urban and suburban residents to service providers in rural communities.

Jobs are created and supported, not only in businesses which directly service the visitors, but also in those which supply the local travel industry.

Tourism is generally a "clean" industry with few serious environmental impacts. It employs unskilled, often entry-level workers, and at the same time provides opportunities for small business development.

Moreover, when a community refurbishes to attract tourists and focuses visitors' attention on the unique features of local heritage, architecture, and scenery, a new sense of community pride on the part of local residents may result.

Until recently, few policy makers recognized the contribution tourism can make to the rural economy.

Indeed, government agencies concerned with rural revitalization efforts at both the state and national levels have tended to view tourism as "frivolous" and ignored its potential importance for vitalizing rural areas.

While that position is still the norm, there is increasing recognition of rural tourism as a tool for rural revitalization. The findings from the current study can contribute to strengthening that realization among citizens and leaders in Pennsylvania.

Club Travels To National Convention

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Not really minding the early hour or the cold weather, they stepped on the chartered bus and quickly chose their seats for the long-awaited trip to Denver, Colo.

On January 12 at 5:30 a.m., 15 Penn Staters and five students from the University of Maryland left University Park to participate in the annual Block and Bridle Club National Convention hosted by Colorado State University.

Just about dinnertime, they stopped in East Lansing, Mich., to stretch their legs, tour the Michigan State Swine Research and Teaching Center, and pick up 17 fellow students from Michigan State. Twenty-four hours later and still full of energy, they embarked on an action-packed weekend in the Rocky Mountains, beginning with some fancy two-stepping at the Grizzly Rose.

The Block and Bridle (B & B) convention officially kicked off on Thursday with the option of skiing at Winter Park Resort or a trip to the National Western Stock Show. Both activities proved to be very exciting. Thursday climaxed with a welcome dance where members greeted new faces and renewed old friendships.

On Friday, the group toured the Monfort/Kuner feedlot in Greeley, Colo., the Anheuser-Busch Brewery and Clydesdale Pavilion, and Colorado State University campus. They also enjoyed a lunch stop at Bruce's Bar and Grill for a taste of their famous Rocky Mountain Oysters and rounded out the day with an authentic Western rodeo at the National Western Stock Show. The rodeo kept everyone on the edges of their seats.

Saturday got off to a rousing start with a full slate of educational and motivational speakers. Gary Smith, professor of animal sciences at Colorado State University, holds the Monfort Endowed Chair in Meat Science. He spoke on beef quality assurance and consumer perceptions of the beef industry.

Smith is highly regarded for his contribution to research in the areas of food safety, meat animal carcass evaluation, and grading composition and quality.

Thomas Sutherland, professor of animal science at Colorado State University, spoke on his experience of being held hostage in Lebanon for more than six years. At the time of his abduction, he was dean of agriculture and food science at the American University of Beirut.

The afternoon session began with the convention's keynote speaker, William Pendley, president and chief legal officer of the Mountain States Legal Foundation and former assistant secretary for energy and minerals in the Department of the Interior under President Ronald Reagan. He spoke on prominent legal issues regarding agriculture and the environment, property rights, and the public interest in a strong and vibrant economy.

At the annual Block and Bridle awards ceremony that followed, Penn State B & B'ers proudly accepted second place for their annual yearbook. Saturday evening's farewell dance brought the convention's festivities to a close.

The National Block and Bridle Club meeting annually draws undergraduate students from across the country who have an interest in the future of animal agriculture. This year, more than 35 institutions sent over 800 delegates to the Denver meeting.

If you would like to know more about Penn State's Block and Bridle Club, please contact one of the club's co-advisors, Harold Harpster, (814) 863-0734 or Keith Bryan (814) 863-0569.

On January 12 at 5:30 a.m., 15 Penn Staters and five students from the University of Maryland left University Park to participate in the annual Block and Bridle Club National Convention hosted by Colorado State University.

New Courier Service To Benefit Vets

HARRISBURG, (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff announced that a new courier service will accelerate disease identification by helping animal health officials get samples to state laboratories.

Veterinarians and state officials are now able to send tissue and blood samples to the labs through a courier who provides pick-up and delivery services from numerous collection centers through the Commonwealth.

Courier Services Unlimited, Inc., will deliver the samples to the three laboratories that constitute the Commonwealth Veterinary Diagnostic System (CVDS). The three CVDS laboratories are located at Penn State University, the University of Pennsylvania, and the Department's own laboratory in Summerdale.

"In the past, Agriculture employees and veterinarians outside the Department tried to use the U.S. mail or some other parcel service to ship materials," Wolff said. "But the materials were often restricted and could not be sent. This new service provides a system of getting any kind of material to the closest lab, at minimal cost."

Funding provided by the Department's Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission will enable CVDS employees to use the service free of charge. Primary practicing veterinarians, who must pay to use the service, were notified by letter of the availability of the service.

"This provides a convenient and rapid system of getting samples to the labs, shortening the turnaround time," Wolff said. "It's another step that the Commission is taking to maintain animal health in Pennsylvania."

Selection of a Beef Breeding Program
John Comerford
Assistant Professor and Extension Beef Specialist
Pennsylvania State University

The appropriate breeding program will be different for every farm that produces beef cattle. Beef cattle production is a highly segmented, diverse industry that exists under many environments and with many managers. Before planning any breeding program, there are four questions which should be answered by the manager:

What are the goals of my beef cattle enterprise? Setting goals for the production and breeding program is not concerned with the present; it is concerned with the future. Even the cattle owner who just has beef cattle to eat the grass so he does not have to mow it has a goal for his production. Consequently, a breeding program to suit that low level of management is very important. Before any genetic improvement can be made, there must be some target for the process. This target may simultaneously be several things: improvement of production traits like weaning weight, the merchandising of cattle from the herd or the sale of forages and grain produced on the farm through beef cattle. The goals should be attainable and determine where you are now, where would you like to be, and how you can get there.

In order to answer these questions, there are some basic tools that are necessary. All cattle in the herd must be identified with ear tags, tattoos or brands. Secondly, there must be some recordkeeping system developed to measure changes in the performance of the herd. Finally, there must be equipment (scales) and facilities (working chutes) available to obtain the desired information. The equipment and facilities need not be elaborate or expensive, but they are essential to genetic improvement.

What are the resources available in the enterprise? This would include:

- Land, buildings and working facilities.
- Capital available.
- Management skills and resources.
- The potential for risk.
- Committment to a long-term program.

The answers to these questions not only deal with the physical resources of capital, land and buildings, but also to management skills, attitudes, risk management and commitment. The physical assets are the place to start in the planning process. The determination of how many cows are appropriate for the land available is a fundamental task. This includes both the total acreage and the potential of the land to support cattle in pastures and crop production. Another is how much feed can be produced or is available for the cattle. This is important in a breeding program because all cows, either within or across breeds, do not have the same nutritional needs every day. The weight of the animal, the stage of production, and the environment will determine the nutritional requirements. While the environment will not easily be controlled, the effects of the stage of production (i.e. the relative milk production potential) and the weight of the animal (i.e. yearling weight selection) can be highly related to the breeding program Management skills and resources are also a part of the breeding system. Knowledge is needed of how management of pastures, nutrition, reproduction, marketing, labor needs, facilities, etc. will change as the program progresses. Additionally, the beef business requires large amounts of capital and has a relatively slow cash flow. The breeder must determine how much risk can be tolerated and find ways to manage that risk on the long-term basis. Finally, a breeding program with beef cattle is a slow process. The results of a single generation of selection will probably not be known for at least 3 years; a well planned rotational crossbreeding system will be disrupted for at least one generation of production by any deviation from the planned matings; and changing the goals of a selection program expands the time needed to reach any single production goal.

What is my market? Unfortunately, this question is often answered after the fact. Determination of the market, meeting the standards of the market and the potential for marketing flexibility should be examined and studied before designing a program. For example, here in Pennsylvania there are many types of beef markets-purebred sales, high quality finished cattle, freezer beef, veal calves, cull cows, feeder calves, etc- and each one has a uniqe set of standards that must be addressed by a well planned breeding and management program. The "cowboy logic" that a program should design a cow herd to meet the restrictions of the environment and bull selection should meet the needs of the market has real value in planning aprogram. The selection of a market is closely related to the management and other resources available to the breeder. This is also a long-term activity, so markets should be stable, accessible, and competitive.

Are the genetics available for the program? Again, the management program will dictate how outside genetics will be used. In an A.I. program, for example, there are unlimited opportunities to incorporate new genetics into the herd. However, if A.I. is not part of the program, a close look at the genetics available locally will determine if there is sufficient quality (availability of performance information) and quantity (sufficient variation to select above-average animals) of potential breeding stock to meet the goals of the program. The latter will be true for breed selection as well as selection of individual animals.

Red Meat — Government Meat Purchases Benefit Meat Industry
By William R. Henning

Many of us in the livestock and meat business often look with disdain on government subsidy programs without realizing that the billions of dollars spent on assistance programs directly benefit our industry.

The largest of these programs is the USDA Food Stamp Program, which amounted to $22.3 billion in 1991. Nearly 10% of all Americans receive food stamps, more than any time in history. Therefore, if we assume that food stamp recipients purchase a similar food mix as non-recipients, the food stamp program accounts for an estimated $5.5 billion in retail meat sales. Government purchases in 1991 for a variety of other programs amounted to $259 million for red meats and $141 million for poultry. These meats, totaling 390 million pounds, are distributed through the following:

The Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC) serves almost one out of every three babies born in the country, but still reaches only about half of those eligible.

The National School Lunch Program feeds over 24 million children in 92,000 schools. The School Breakfast Program has served a limited amount of meat so far, but is growing.

The Summer Food Service Program serves needy children during summer vacation.

The Child and Adult Care Food Program is the USDA's fastest-growing program, providing food to child care centers and family and adult day care facilities.

The Commodity Supplemental Food Program provides food assistance through state agencies.

The Nutrition Program for the Elderly provides food for senior citizen centers and Meals-on-Wheels programs.

The Commodity Distribution to Charitable Institutions distributes food through churches, orphanages, food banks, and soup kitchens.

The Emergency Food Assistance Program was designed to move surplus foods into consumption channels.

Although we may complain about welfare programs, much of the economy is tied to them, even the livestock and meat industry.

Get Comforting Heat and Efficiency.

The Mahoning Outdoor Multi-Fuel Furnaces provide thermostat controlled heat by economically burning wood, coal or fuel oil. The furnace is placed 25-100 feet outside the structure to be heated; connections between the furnace and building are buried underground. Wood or coal is the primary burning fuel lasting 6-12 hours in the furnace. For convenient, automatic firing the separate oil burner combustion chamber can provide heat until wood or coal burning is desired. Both Wood/Coal & the Fuel Oil burners are enclosed to heat the same water tank. The purpose of the firebox is to heat the water-filled tank surrounding the outside unit, this heated water is then circulated through underground pipes into your home. A heating coil is installed inside your existing heat system. The thermostat controls the blower which picks the heat off the coils and delivers warm air through existing ducts and registers. There are safeties which eliminate the danger of over-pressurizing the system and automatic shutdown in case of a power failure. The Mahoning Outdoor Furnace can also be connected to an existing hydronic heating system, that operates at 180° F or less, using fin tube baseboard, cast iron radiators or hanging hydronic heaters. Only the thermostat and heating coils are installed inside your home, eliminating open fire dangers, smoke, dust and messy kindling wood boxes. Adjust the thermostat for the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace to your comfort setting and it automatically controls the water pump and blower to circulate heat to your home. You may set the thermostat for your existing heat system to back-up the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace when not in operation or in case the firebox is left to burn out. An Aquastat senses the temperature of the water in the outside unit and automatically adjusts the combustion rate to maintain the correct temperature (normally 160 degrees)

Hot Water too...!

A Mahoning Outdoor Furnace is a heat exchanger. By running a cold water line from your home to the outside unit, fresh household cold water can be heated and returned to the hot water plumbing in the house. A tempering valve adjusts the hot water at the faucets to a range of 120° to 160°. This boiler system will adapt to any existing plumbing. Heat your pool & hot tub with energy generated by a Mahoning Outdoor Furnace!

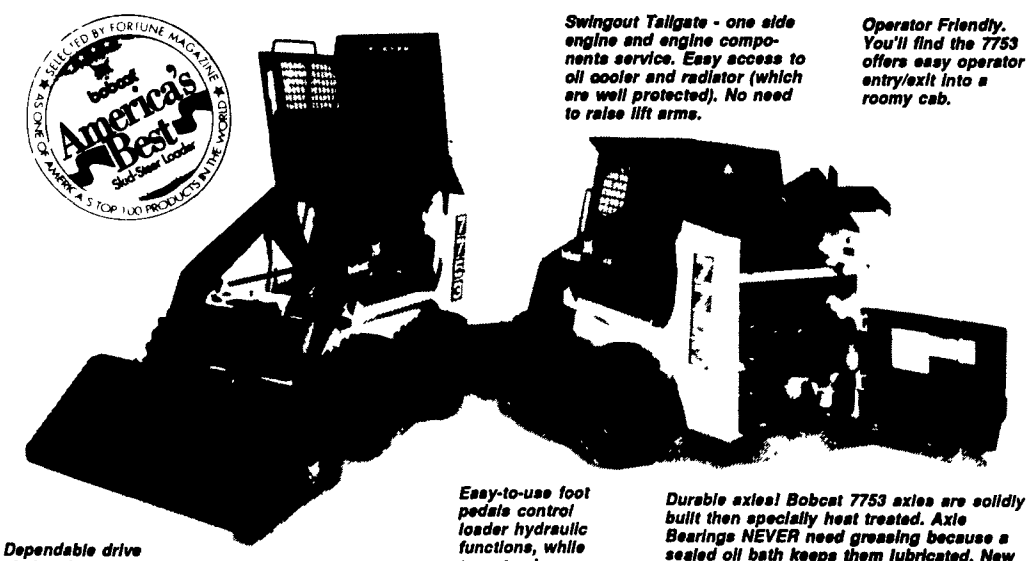
Bobcat® 7753 Long-Wheelbase Skid-Steer Loader

It's What's Inside That Counts!



Swingout Tailgate - one side engine and engine components service. Easy access to oil cooler and radiator (which are well protected). No need to raise lift arms.

Operator Friendly. You'll find the 7753 offers easy operator entry/exit into a roomy cab.

Dependable drive chains that NEVER need adjusting. The "bow tie" design uses prestressed, heavy-duty drive chains in two short continuous loops per side. That means long-life in the most rugged use and NO periodic, time-consuming drive chain adjustments.

Easy-to-use foot pedals control loader hydraulic functions, while two steering levers allow precise maneuverability.

Durable axles! Bobcat 7753 axles are solidly built then specially heat treated. Axle Bearings NEVER need greasing because a sealed oil bath keeps them lubricated. New axle hub design protects axle seal from damage from wire or twine. Hub is easily removed if service is required.

Experience America's Best.
Melroe company has over 30 years of skid-steer loader experience — longer than anyone else. That's one of the reasons Fortune Magazine has twice recognized the Bobcat loader as one of the 100 products "America Builds Best"

Reliable Components.
Other than a few daily checks and fills, you can rely on the PERFORMANCE of the 7753 Bobcat It has been designed and built with durability and low maintenance in mind.

Great Serviceability!
The Bobcat 7753 has been designed to be serviced quickly. For example, there's single-side access to the transversely-mounted engine, a lift-out oil cooler for easy cleaning and a tip-up cab to expose hydraulic and hydrostatic compon- entry. For repairs, the exclusive BOSS® System can help quickly diagnose system problems. These features, along with a factory-trained service technicians and "top-shelf" parts availability, mean your loader can be back on the job in no time.

TOTAL HAND CONTROL!
Dealer-Installed Option!

- Easy Wrist-Action Control.
- Push-Button Auxiliary Hydraulics For Total Hand Control. (Available only on 50 Series loaders. 40 Series loaders utilize foot pedal to activate auxiliary hydraulics.)
- Easy-Grip Handle.

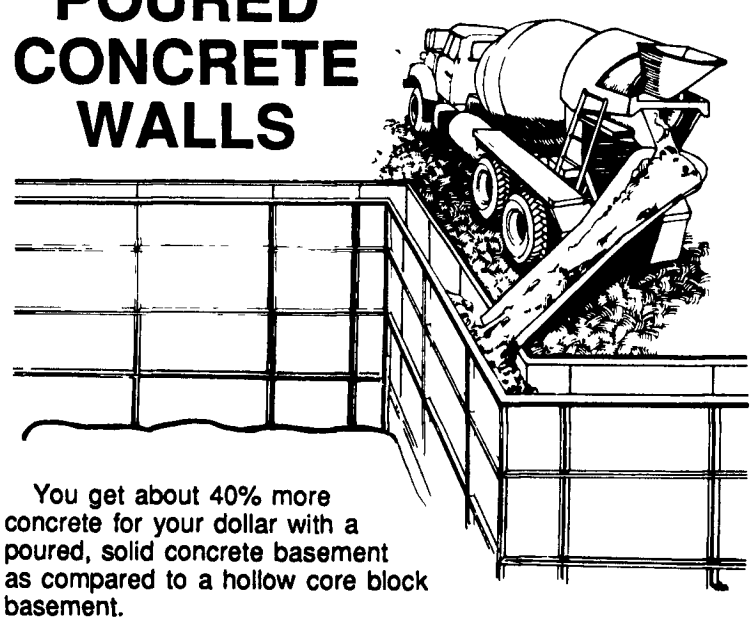
POURED SOLID CONCRETE

STORAGE SYSTEM SPECIALISTS

START WITH THE BEST!

POURED CONCRETE WALLS



You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement.

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs. more per cubic foot! Far denser. What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic ... there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration.

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured, solid concrete basements are competitively priced.

Solid Concrete For:

- Manure Pit Walls
- Hog House Walls
- Barnyard Walls
- Chicken House Walls
- Retaining Walls
- House Foundation Walls
- Silage Pit Walls
- Cistern Walls
- Concrete Decks
- Concrete Pit Tops

More than seed...

"The W-L I planted two years ago is giving me better yields and higher protein than any previous crop. I had a public variety in this field last time and I had to take it out in the third year. This W-L alfalfa is sure to go a full four."

For more than 25 years, W-L alfalfas have been bred, tested and produced to give high yields, leafy, fine-stemmed forage with long stand persistence and multiple pest and disease resistance. For the best return on your investment, you can't afford less than W-L.

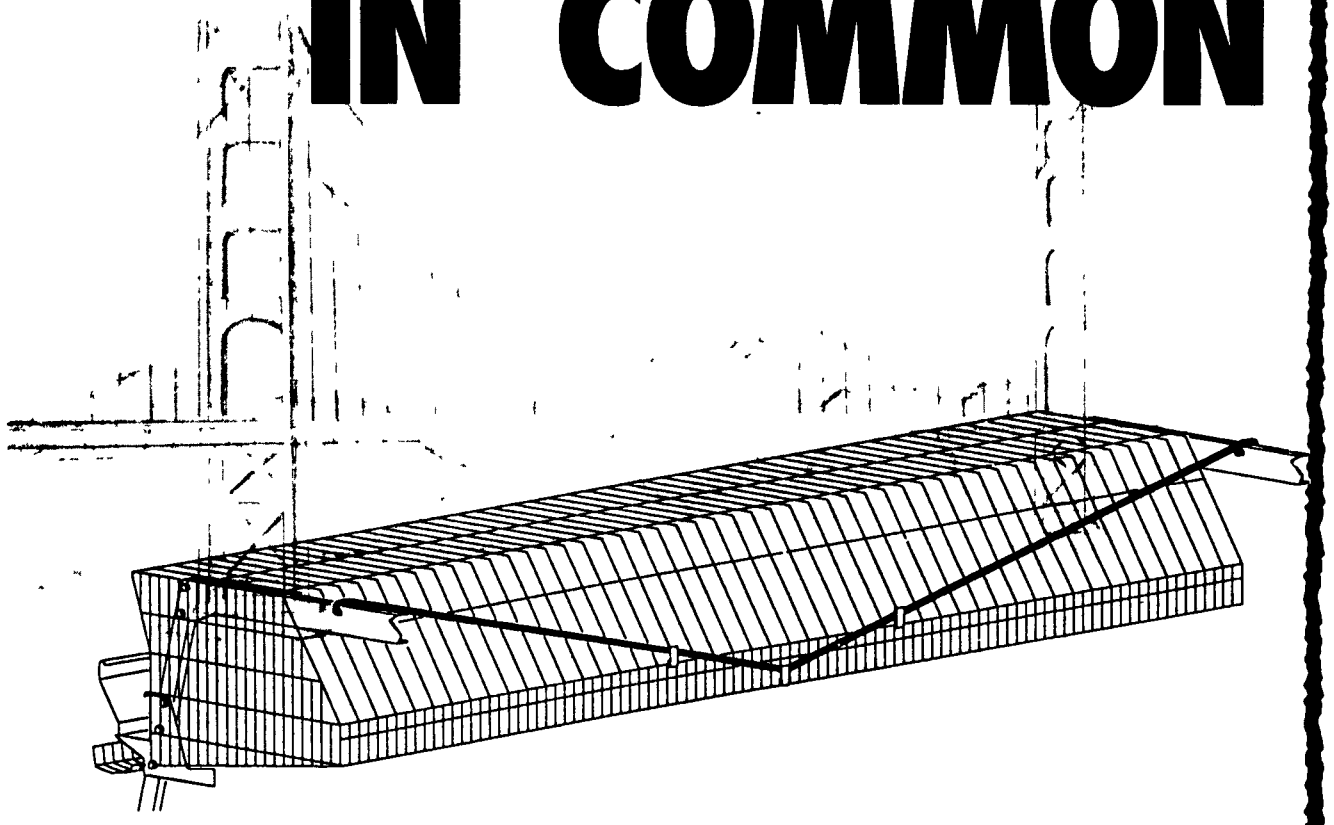
THE GOLDEN GATE BRIDGE and BIG DUTCHMAN PROFIT-TIER® CAGE SYSTEMS

HAVE ONE THING IN COMMON



THEY BOTH HAVE INTELLIGENT DESIGN

Our cage support system has been designed and engineered with tested technology This superior suspension makes the superstructure of the cage row stronger and better aligned from end to end

This is accomplished with a tie-in between the cage suspension rods, the cages and the stand in each section of cages

Leg stands are screwed together, not merely clipped together We feature a cage-to-stand mounting on tabs that are built into the leg stands

In addition, every cage section is attached to the feed trough which acts as an I-beam providing more rigidity and support The trough is also attached to the leg stand The result is superior strength, alignment and stability throughout the system

All of these features allow us to use a leg stand every 10 feet, significantly reducing building costs

When you purchase your next cage system, buy the one that was designed and engineered to endure We offer the important features that make a cage system work better and last longer
